Turner, the wiry stalwart stays with the Cats is still a question. For almost a month he's been nursing a bad knee — one with which doctors aren't quite sure what's wrong. Still, Edwards has been given the green light and pending further injury is a welcome sight for the local red and whites.

Turner, who a defenceman, spent last year with the Bobcats after the Buffalo Tondas, a tier two junior A club folded. The lanky 20-year-old proved he was capable of moving the puck out his own end last season with some speedy, wide-stride rushes.

Neither Paul Tilley nor Rick Langstaffe will be in uniform for the next couple of games. Tilley, a speedster imported from Peterborough, was charged with a spearing infraction last week and under current Metro Junior B legislation will have to sit out all three of this weekend's games.

Langstaffe, a sophomore with the Cats, will be out tonight and Friday, this being his penance for a game misconduct in the Markham contest last Friday.

Coach Meehan Bonnar announced that Jeff Merrill is the starting goaltender for tonight's game.

Rutledge Missing

The Belleville Bobcats will be missing Rick Langstaffe and Paul Tilley for the next few games but they'll be missing another very valuable man until Christmas.

Equipment manager Chris Rutledge has been gone from the Cats' dressing room for over a week now and isn't expected back until the Yuletide Season is upon us.

Chris, an all-star lacrosse performer in the city, has just returned home after a gruelling operation on his leg. In two or three weeks, he'll be back in the hospital to have the same type of surgery done on the other leg.

The 18-year-old has been behind the Bobcat scenes for the last two years and while he'll be missed he couldn't have left his duties in more capable hands. His father, George, is filling in while he's on the injury list.

Ottawa's Green Passes 1,000

Riders Upset by Lions

OTTAWA (CP) — Veteran quarterback Peter Liske had been listening to boos for most of the 1974 Canadian Football League season, but Wednesday night he brought the catcalls down on the Rough Riders as British Columbia Lions upset Ottawa 25-15.

He also showed Ottawa's highly publicized rookie quarterbacks, Tom Clements and Condredge Holloway, how to dissect defences — he sliced apart the Riders' secondary for a 225 yards passing in the first half.

He finished the game with 16 completions on 24 pass attempts for 309 yards and three touchdowns two to a slotback Jim Young and one to wide receiver Ross Clarkson.

Liske, in his first year with the Lions after being traded by Calgary Stampeders, has passed for 2,000 yards and 11 touchdowns this season.

Lions coach Cal Murphy said "Liske is criticized a lot, but there's no quarterback who can do it all by pairing it he doesn't have the runners to mix plays with and keep the defence guessing."

B.C. was without the services of injured fullback Lou Harris but Terry Bailey and Mike Strickland, in his first game with the Lions, provided the running punch Liske needed.

Brian Berg, the fourth B.C. placekicker this year, converted all three touchdowns and added a 37-yard field goal. Eric Gulls rie rounded out the scoring with a 6-yard single.

Ottawa fullback Art Green, who scored both Rider touchdowns on short runs, passed the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the season late in the game. Gerry Organ converted the first score and Clements passed to tight end Tony Gabriel for a two-point conversion on the second.

As Green retrieved the ball to mark his runing accomplishment, he was greeted with a standing ovation from the 19,002 spectators. It was about the only time the Riders heard any cheers from the crowd, the smallest of the season in Lansdowne Park which has been expanded to 35,000 seats from 28,000 last year.

During the first half, the fans loudly booed Ottawa's inability to move the ball or stop the Lions, expected to be easy pickings after their 14-8 loss to Hamilton Tiger-Cats Sunday.

But Ottawa coach George Brancato said he couldn't "pin the loss on any one player or any one phase of the game."

After managing only 117 yards on offence in the first half, the Riders staged a rival in the second half, picking up 309 yards before running what appeared to be a potential comeback bid with a string of penalties that cost them 56 yards in five plays. They ended up losing 102 yards in penalties in the second half.

Tired of Travelling, Orillia Gets Own Team

SUDBURY (CP) — "We get tired of travelling back and forth to North Bay so decided to start a team here," said Ralph Cipolla when his Orillia entry was accepted formally into the Northern Football Conference Monday.

"The decision to add a fourth team was made after a poll last weekend of the three NFC member clubs-Sault Steelers of Sault Ste. Marie, North Bay Tiger-Cats and Sudbury Spartans.

Conditions of Orillia's entry were the posting of a $300 annual fee; $50 administrative fee upon entry plus a $1,000 performance bond to be posted at the league's annual meeting here Dec. 6.

"We sure needed that fourth team," said Frank Kline of Sault Ste. Marie, NFC president. "It will make for a more interesting league."

The NFC, the only senior football league in Canada, is a number league operating in June, July and August and is made up of personnel from high schools, universities, and senior veterans.

Cipolla said it was no problem getting parties interested in forming a team since "Orillia is a real football town; we've got about 150 or so fans that go faithfully to the Toronto Argo games."

Nor does he expect too much trouble putting a team together with names of 65 players within a 40-mile radius of Orillia ready to draw from and a head coach in Ken Burns, a former player at McMaster University in Hamilton who now teaches physical education at an Orillia collegiate.

Canadian Earns Gold; Spectators Up in Arms

MEXICO CITY (CP) — The youngest member of Canada's judo team won a gold medal at the Pan-American Games Wednesday night and promptly found himself in the middle of a lively controversy.

Brad Farrow of Delta, B.C., was awarded the gold in the featherweight division when his Cuban opponent, Hector Rodriguez, was disqualified for committing his third foul of the final bout.

The crowd, which has tended to favor Latin competitors over North American opponents all week, loudly expressed its displeasure and police had to remove some spectators who attempted to get at the officials.

The Cuban team left the arena before the medals were presented, refusing to accept their silver, and boos virtually drowned out the playing of O Canada as Farrow was presented with his gold.

It may have been a left-handed compliment to the Canadians, who finished the judo competition with three of the six gold medals and two bronzes.

Farrow, an 18-year-old student at Concordia University in Montreal, was the only Canadian gold medallist of the day as Cuba and the United States continued to grab the lion's share of the spoils.

The Cubans, with eight gold medals Wednesday, ran their total to 22 in three days' competition. The Americans had won 18, seven of them Wednesday.

Brazil matched Canada's total of four golds with a world record performance by Joao Oliveira in the men's triple jump. The Mexicans, the only other team on the gold medal table, picked up their third when Manuel Bautista won the 20-kilometre walk.

Abby Hoffman of Toronto, who has been competing in the Pan-Am 800 metres since 1963 and has two gold medals and a bronze to prove it, added a silver to the collection as she was unable to match the finishing kick of 17-year-old Kathleen Weston of the U.S. Jours Wenzel of Waterloo, Ont., was third.

Dan Robitaille of Ottawa won the first Canadian medals in weightlifting, a pair of bronzes for finish-ng third in the snatch jerk and overall categories in the middle-weight division.

The shooting team capured a bronze in the smallbore, three-position rifle event, its third medal of the Games, and Chris Treebaczynski moved from the light-bronyweight judo class, where he had already won a bronze, to take another in the lightweight competition.

A virtually certain gold medal loomed on today's program for pentathlon star Diane Jones of Spokanova, who held a comfortable lead after three events with her back-jump specialty still to come.

Farrow, who had not been expected to win a gold medal, was settled when a Mexican reporter asked him whether he thought he was better than Rodriguez, ranked third in the world in his division.

"I'm just a fighter; not a politician," he protested.

"It was a really close match. I really respect him. I was beaten as much by the rules as by me. But he knows the rules. He's no dummy. He just let the rules beat him. I may not necessarily agree with them but he knows them and so do I."

Presbrzewski, who won his bronze as a losing semi-finalist in the unlimited class, lasted only 31 seconds against Jaime Antonio Felipe of the Netherlands Antilles, whose silver medal was his country's first of the Games. Jose Duarte of Cuba won the gold.

Oliveira's 58-foot, 8¼-inch effort in the triple jump, the first world record performance in track and field at the Games, finally justified the experts who had predicted spectacular results in sprints and jumping events because of Mexico's high altitude.

The old mark of 57-2¾ by Viktor Saleyev of the Soviet Union had stood since 1972.

Bishop Dolegiewicz of Laval, Que., and Ann Hoost of Toronto were fourth and fifth in the men's discus, won by John Powell of the U.S. with a throw of 200-10. Dolegiewicz, a silver medallist in Tuesday's shot put, managed 195-11 with his best throw and Hoost's best was 185-5.

Ken Elmer of Vancouver was a well-beaten sixth in the men's 800 metres, won by Luis Medina of Cuba in 1:47.56.

Marjorie Bailey of Vancouver and Joyce Yakimowski of Victoria survived two rounds of heats to reach today's final of the women's 200. Hugh Fraser of Ottawa made it to the final of the men's 200 but Bob Martin of Paris, Ont., was disqualified for running out of his lane in the semi-finals after winning his first-round heat.

The pentathlon looked like a shoo-in for Miss Jones, who placed sixth in the long jump Wednesday.

The University of Saskatchewan student moved ahead of the 13-girl field with a 30-3¼ heave in the shot put after posting the fourth-best time of 14 seconds flat in the 100-metre hurdles.

Then she cleared 6-4¼ in the high jump, breaking the Games record for the event set four years ago by Debbie Brill of Haney, B.C., to finish the day more than 200 points ahead of second-placer Cole Fitzgerald of the U.S.

Diane's younger sister Joanne was in third place after the shot put but faded to seventh after a disappointing performance in the high jump.

Jim Lee, a 42-year-old veteran of international competition from Coquitlam, B.C., made the best individual showing among the Canadian marksmen. Lee's finished fifth in the centre-fire pistol event and leading his teammates to another fifth-place ranking. The U.S. won both gold medals as Marvin Black scored 589 of a possible 600.

Margaret Murdoch's 1,182 points led the U.S. to a sweep of the individual and team golds in the small-bore rifle competition, making a total of 10 American victories in shooting events. Arne Sorensen of Calgary, the top Canadian, was seventh.

Bynum Is Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts announced Wednesday they have cut quarter back Bill Bynum to make room on their Eastern Football Conference roster for Chuck Ealey.

Ealey, a 35-year-old quarterback from University of Toledo, was a standout in a Canadian Football League trade Tuesday night with Winnipeg Blue Bombers for future considerations.

Ealey, who joined the Bombers mid-way through last season in a trade with Hamilton Tiger-Cats for quarterback Don Jonas, now retired John Steve Joachim as the Argonauts' signal-callers.

Another Issue Springs Up

Controversy Settled—Day Out

MEXICO CITY (CP) — One aspect of the Pan-American Games equestrian controversy was settled Wednesday night when officials confirmed that Jim Day of Hornby, Ont., had been disqualified from the three-day event.

But another issue had sprung up—whether Elizabeth Ashton of Orangeville, Ont., would get back to 30 seconds she lost when a Mexican army officer hoisted the most back her horse into a water hazard before remounting after a fall.

Meanwhile, with one day left in the competition, the Canadians remained in second place behind the United States with a chance for a silver medal.

Day was disqualified because officials said he broke a three-day-event rule by taking his crop in for the weigh-in. Day said Canadian team officials advised there was no such rule and equestrian authorities finally agreed.

But Day added that they turned around and disqualified him for jumping out of turn—a point he disputed on grounds that he missed his turn because equestrian judges refused to let him go when he was supposed to.

Finally, the Canadians agreed there was, in fact, a rule against being weighed in with a crop. The disqualification was made official.

That meant Day's points would not be counted but since only three scores are tallied for each team, the Canadians could get along without him.

What would help is the return of the 30 seconds Miss Ashton lost. It happened when she fell on a water jump. She tried to remount just beyond the jump but the army officer observing at the jump forced her back into the water.

By coincidence a CBC crew was filming that very jump and equestrian officials agreed to look at the film and then decide whether to give Miss Ashton back her lost time.

United States rider Bruce Davidson also became embroiled in the Day controversy when officials mistook him for Day and interrupted his ride in the middle of Wednesday's cross-country competition to impose the disqualification.

After discovering they had the wrong man, officials allowed Davidson to continue and his time penalty points and a penalty for a fall were taken away, leaving him in first place with a strong chance for the individual gold medal.

Mistaken Identity

U.S. Team Lodges Protest

MEXICO CITY (AP) — An American rider, the victim of mistaken identity, was disqualified for an infraction he didn't commit and the United States equestrian team lodged a heated protest Wednesday in the Pan-American games.

The complicated confusion began when Jim Day of Hornby, Ont., was weighed in with his crop, which is against the rules. After he had competed in the cross-country and endurance portions of the day's activity, officials became aware of the infraction and decided to disqualify him.

But they went to the wrong man.

Bruce Davidson of the U.S., the current world champion in the three-day event, was in the middle of the jumping portion of the competition when officials—thinking he was Day—interrupted his performance.

Even though the identities were straightened out, Davidson also was disqualified because he had been interrupted.

Wildly angry American team members, along with the Canadians, lodged a protest. It was to be heard late Wednesday, but there was no indication when, or if, a decision would be made.

Loss of Day would not knock the Canadian team out of the event because only the three best scores on the four-member team are counted.

The other Canadian riders are Elizabeth Ashton of Orangeville, Ont., John Henry of Toronto and Peter Howard of Woodbridge, Ont.

WFL to Continue In 1976 Season

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Chris Hemmeter, president of the World Football League, said Wednesday that most of the league's meeting in New York this week was devoted to marketing plans for the future after all 10 owners agreed to continue in 1976.

He said plans definitely include a WFL team in New York's Yankee Stadium or Jersey Meadows Stadium.

"We asked the owners to commit themselves to next year," Hemmeter said. "All of them did, absolutely. If there wasn't a commitment to '76, I wouldn't be here."

He answered newspaper men's questions after addressing a Chamber of Commerce luncheon honoring Jacksonville Express of the WFL.

"If you start whittling away ball clubs, you will, in my opinion, cause some concern as to the stability," Hemmeter said. "There are those in our league, very astute businessmen, who believe that if you have two products that are pulling you down in credibility by low attendance figures, you should cut out the cancer before it spreads.

"We haven't arrived at that decision," he said.

CP Air Struggles With the Economy

VANCOUVER (CP) — CP Air is struggling with storm economic conditions and may be forced into a loss position, its president says.

Jack Gilmer said the loss will amount to $3.5 million or $4.5 million. He said total revenue is up 25 per cent so far this year but "the last time I looked at expenses, they were up 31 to 32 (per cent) so that the situation is still deteriorating . . .'

The subsidiary of Canadian Pacific had a net income of $2.4 million in 1974 and $4.2 million in 1973.

Air Canada lost $9.2 million last year and has forecast a loss as high as $25 million this year. Pan Am lost $82 million last year.

CP Air has not rushed into purchasing newer and bigger planes.

"We have been inclined to wait the development of a market before we commit ourselves to the purchase of equipment," said Mr. Gilmer.

Costs have been rising faster than revenues and Ian Gray, vice-president of technical services, must drop some of CP Airs 7,600 employees.

He said "there are bound to be some layoffs' but most of them will come through attrition.

The earliest the airline will have to replace some of its planes is 1981 when its five DC-8s will have to go because their Rolls Royce engines cannot be modified to obey noise regulations.

In 1972, CP Air spent 11.6 per cent of its total expenditures on fuel; this year the average cost per gallon has increased and the airline expects to spend 22 per cent of its total expenditures on fuel.

However, Mr. Gilmer said even if fuel prices had not risen, the airline still would be in difficulty. Wages, landing fees and navigation charges are all up significantly.

Landing in Sydney, Australia, now costs 80 per cent more than in 1971 ($2.18 compared with $1.209).

Each return trip from western Canada to Amsterdam, as of Nov. 1, will cost 300 per cent more for en route navigation and communication than in 1972. The costs rose to $108 from $189. CP Air makes the flight eight times a week.

The company spent $20 million in wages, salaries and benefits for the first six months of 1973, compared with $46 million in the same period last year.

In Memoriam

ANDREWS — In loving memory of our dear parents, Charles and Fred who passed away October 13 and 18, 1964.
Time sad and lonely years have passed.
Since our great sorrows fell.
The shocks that we received those days
Pain can tell.
So many things have happened,
Since they were called away
So many things to share with them,
Every day we miss them.
Every day we think of them,
Memories of them come our way.
They were loved and cherished,
The things they always said and did.
In our memories their name is sublime
They died as they lived, everyone's friend.
We hide our tears as we speak their name,
Sadness, ache in our hearts remains the same.
Though absent, they are near,
Still missed, loved and always dear.
Our hearts are sore, our parents,
Can you hear our cry?
Can you'll never know the heartache,
Till they're out there.
—Lovingly remembered by their daughters, Freddie, Gertie, Donna, Patricia, and their families.

Mckay's Versatility Key to His Success

HALIFAX (CP) — In the often-troubled employment picture for Canadian actors Brian McKay, 25, is something of a phenomenon.

In the last 4½ years he has had only enough free time between jobs to recoup his energies or travel from one location to another in the Canadian theatre circuit.

His strong baritone voice with a tenor top has been heard on radio and television and in theatres from coast to coast and will soon appear on records.

His diverse roles at Halifax's Neptune Theatre include James Anderson in My Fat Friend, Marike in Jacques Brel and the aged Gepetto in Pinocchio. A few seasons ago he played the decrepit postman in the Charlottetown Summer Festival's smash international hit Anne of Green Gables.

He played that role so well with a stagger and a stoop that an elderly gentleman wrote to him and confided that he too had recently suffered a stroke and could Brian tell him what to expect.

Among his other credits are appearing with Richard Chamberlain, the TV Dr. Kildare, turned Shakespearean actor, whom he describes as a superperson, in the Seattle Repertory Company's Richard II.

He also spent a year with the Canadian Opera Company.

McKay thinks of himself as a Canadian but not as a diehard nationalist.

"Actors have to be allowed to work everywhere," he said. "All this red tape with work permits is just segregating the arts and that's destructive.

"I'm not a nationalist in terms of the theatre and feel we should be allowed to come and go to the United States and England."

McKay said it is unimportant to develop a national stage style.

"To develop a national system isn't important because an audience doesn't make that kind of judgment.

"There are variations in every play performed and one shouldn't be able to type a production as having a certain nationality."

In addition to his stage work, McKay is busy with CBC radio drama and has appeared on TV in four episodes of The House of Pride.

Royal Ballet Company Marks 44th Birthday

LONDON (CP) — The Royal Ballet Company is 44 years old this year, and while most European national companies trace their ancestry back to royal patronage, the British troupe has grown from a private scheme.

It was born in 1931 as a result of the work done by the Russian innovator Serge Diaghilev, who turned ballet into an art form.

His sudden death in 1929 left a rich fund of dance talent unused—most of it in London.

The time was right and by a lucky chance the right person to take advantage of it was at hand—Ninette de Valois. She was only 33, inexperienced, but unawed by the lack of state support.

She had been a member of Diaghilev's independent company.

The tiny troupe, consisting of six girls and herself, was launched at London's Old Vic theatre. This large and now prestige-laden company which has grown from it has earned its Royal charter the hard way—simply by deserving it.

Over the years its numbers have increased to nearly 150 and today it is an organization with a world reputation, a history of achievement and a style all its own.

Londoners were used to high standards of professional excellence and Miss de Valois made sure from the start that the technical hurdles which had been handed down from Italy through France should be the firm foundation of her company.

She engaged Nikolai Sergeyev, manager of the St. Petersburg and Diaghilev companies, to insert the choreography she knew so well and two of Diaghilev's stars, Alicia Markova and Anton Dolin, to dance in them.

Then she discovered Frederick Ashton, a young British choreographer and with an assorted school to ensure a continuing and consistent supply of dancers the company grew at a sensational rate.

After the interruption of the Second World War, the company moved into the Royal Opera House at Covent Garden, leaving behind at Sadlers Wells, a second, smaller company.

Apart from Lac Sylphides, most of the surviving ballets from the 19th century have been put on by the troupe.

Miss de Valois, who steered the company through its first crucial 32 years, retired in 1963 and was succeeded by Ashton who had been her close collaborator almost from the beginning.

He was uniquely qualified to carry on the policies she had inaugurated and when he in turn retired in 1970 he was followed by a man who had come right up through the Royal Ballet school and company, Kenneth Macmillan.

The company is independent drawing a large subsidy from the state-financed Arts Council of Great Britain.

It lays great emphasis on professional integrity and on technical expertise, yet it is flexible and loosely structured, permitting changes in organization.

Catholic in policy, it welcomes foreign choreographers like Leonid Massine, Jerome Robbins, George Balanchine, and guest artists like Rudolf Nureyev.

Your Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol
For Friday, Oct. 17

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's essential to keep your wits about you today. Frustrations will arise, but you'll find that you reserve judgment till you know you're on the right track.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you want to bring your budget into line, start now to trim off the fat. Spending only what you absolutely must for the rest of the day.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you have a tendency to push here in order to accomplish what you want today. Don't expect them to do for you what you won't do for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're overly touchy today in a sensitive way. Losen up — no one is about to take what is rightfully yours.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you close your first inclination to say you'll settle for second-best, be a bit more patient. You can have the quality you really want.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be dealing today with several temperamental associates. If you let them dominate you, they will. Stick to your guns. You can, turn them around.

LIBRA (Sept.23-Oct. 22) Set a sensible pace today, or you'll make lots of mistakes and burn yourself out. Be thorough and methodical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Determine your priorities with a critical mind today. Otherwise you'll strive to meet goals someone else set up. They'll be of no benefit to you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You may find yourself looking for a scapegoat today. A risky business because the victims will be reluctant to forget for a time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) You could waste a great deal of time trying to get others to shoulder your burdens today, only to find you must carry the load alone.

Liver Cirrhosis Hard to Diagnose

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend who thinks he has cirrhosis of the liver. He isn't a heavy drinker. Is this always caused from drinking alcohol?

He says that if he has this disease there is no cure for it. I'm sure that it can be helped. Any information you can give me on this subject will be appreciated. I am trying to get him into going to the doctor. — Miss V

What makes your friend believe he has this disease?

It is not easy to diagnose from outward symptoms, especially in the early stages. Damage to the cells of the organ is the only really conclusive evidence, and this might require a biopsy and several liver function tests.

There are broad symptoms that can raise powerful suspicions, though — loss of appetite, flatulence, nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain or tenderness, and weight loss that can't offset wise be accounted for. In the advanced state of the disease there may be a low-grade fever, foul breath, jaundice, and edema.

While alcohol is known to have a role in the problem, this maybe as much a dietary factor as a toxic one.

Malnutrition is usually involved. Alcohol provides calories, but it is lacking in essential nutrients, so a heavy drinker can be a victim of this nutrient deprivation. Certain drugs as well as hepatitis may be factors. Early detection is important. In later stages, where actual damage involving loss of liver function occurs, treatment is less successful. However, diet and avoidance of alcohol can keep the condition under control. Let your friend read this. It may prompt him to end his pursuing game.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have several questions.

After having an hysterectomy I must take hormone shots. Can I take vitamin E? If not, why?

Another question: A company sells vitamin C and claims the vitamins are coated with calcium because vitamin C does no good unless taken with calcium. Is this true?

After hemorrhoids start to bleed, can they be controlled with a medication? — L.T.

No reason I know of why you cannot take vitamin E if you wish to.

In the vitamin-calcium matter, you may be referring to vitamin D, not vitamin C. The vitamin D is needed for proper absorption of calcium in the body. It has nothing to do with vitamin C.

Local ointments might help with the pain of the hemorrhoids, but the bleeding indicates ulceration of the hemmorrhoids and a formation that would require surgical correction. The ointments will not control things.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: For almost two years I have been having trouble with loose bowels. And I have a rash on my face.

I eat a lot of wheat cereal and wheat germ on it. I wonder if I AM ALLERGIC to so much wheat. You recently had a piece in the paper dealing with gluten. I was wondering if that could cause my problem. I am 37 years old. — Mrs. M.S.

It is possible that you are allergic to the wheat products, but at your age, one would expect that allergy would have emerged sooner than this. You can try omitting wheat products for from five to seven days to see if there is any improvement.

The gluten article you mention dealt with a specific disorder. Non tropical sprueo is known as that this is your problem. It would have appeared years ago in your case. Gluten is the protein substance of wheat and other grains and it is conceivable that some people are sprue and celiac disease.

Possible allergy aside, you may be overdoing the wheat thing, especially for a person your age in whom a balanced diet is so essential to health. In avoiding wheat and altering your dietary balance doesn't help, you should get a thorough colon examination.

Gin and Squash

LONDON (CP) — The squeeze is on in English pubs for the lemon. Traditional lemon slices are on their way out for drinks in favor of a Scandinavian lemon peel delivered like spray perfume from a bottle. The product has the actual essence of the lemon and is mixed with alcohol, says its inventor Peter Wells says has no colorings, additives or preservatives, making it natural and pure.

Britons Debate 'Fame Drain'

LONDON (Reuter) — In a gathering climate of economic distress, Britons are engaged in fascinated debate on the plight of pop music stars driven from their homeland by the lure of riches.

The talk centres on popular idols who, in order to stay in the millionaire class, have been taken such joys as the English pub and the game of cricket to settle abroad among less demanding tanmen.

The problem was highlighted in a recent speech by Sir Geoffrey Howe, economic affairs spokesman for the opposition Conservative party and an unlikely champion for pop stars.

Sir Geoffrey said the emigration of high-earning performers like the Rolling Stones, Elton John and Rod Stewart represented a "fame drain" which the British treasury could ill afford.

He suggested the treasury usually might make a profit by lowering its top rate of income tax in 50 per cent and thereafter back those earnings which now find their way into banks in California, France or Spain.

The present top rate of British income tax is 83 per cent on all earnings exceeding $42,000 a year. If this income derives from investment, the tax rate jumps to 98 per cent.

The list of exiles is long. Rolling Stone Mick Jagger and actor Roger Moore live in the south-west France. Singers Elton John, Rod Stewart, and ex-Beatle drummer Ringo Starr live in Los Angeles. Cliffer Tony Jacklin moved to the English Channel island of Jersey where taxes are levied at a fraction of the mainland rate.

"Of course," Jagger told London Daily Mail, "I miss not being able to stay in Britain as long as I like. I hate being allowed only 90 days a year to visit my own country.

Ninety days is the maximum visit allowed if a non-resident Britian wishes to keep his British tax.

Supporters of Sir Geoffrey's argument say that apart from losing the actual income of the emigrants, the country loses the money and foreign earnings they generate by others around them.

Some critics suggested the British treasury should follow the example of revenue men in the United States and France and, in order to encourage the settlement of high earners, strike individual bargains under which the payer is granted special tax advantages.

Roger Moore told a newspaper he was saving about $1 million a year in taxes by living in France.

Record Number Entered

NIAGARA - ON - THE-LAKE, Ont. (CP) — A total of 281 Canadian films have been entered in the annual awards of the 1975 Canadian Film Awards Oct. 7-12 at the Shaw Festival Theatre. This represents about a 200-per-cent increase over entries in 1973, the last year the awards were held. Today's game would have been easier to bid if Homer Watson were using the Jacoby transfer, but that had not been invented in their day.

Anyway, Watson found himself in three notrump and proceeded to demonstrate what he had learned about safety from the auction.

His lack of clubs won the first trick. A careless player would have played out high hearts. After that suit failed to behave he would have cashed three spades, stopping in dummy. With spades, stopping in dummy, West would have behaving also he would have fallen back on the diamond finesse to wind up with only eight tricks assuming the defense had been on its toes.

Watson found a letter line of play. At trick two he entered dummy with a spade, led a heart and stuck in his 10. When this worked he had 10 tricks in top cards and managed an 11th by end-playing West. If the finesse had lost he would still have made his contract since West would not have been able to run his clubs.

The Happy Hooker Asks for Compassion

TORONTO (CP) — Xaviera Hollander, known for her book about her life as a prostitute, said Wednesday she plans to appeal on compassionate grounds a Supreme Court of Canada decision upholding a deportation order against her.

In February, 1972, Miss Hollander, a 35-year-old Dutch citizen, was ordered deported from Canada after an immigration inquiry ruled she could not remain in the country because she was guilty of a criminal offence—keeping a common bawdy house and being an inmate of a bawdy house while a resident of New York City.

The Supreme Court decision Tuesday upheld the deportation order on the grounds Miss Hollander was a self-confessed criminal.

In an interview, Miss Hollander said she was not surprised at the decision.

She said she would hate to have to leave Canada and also has been "an upright citizen" since coming here three years ago.

"Since my marriage, I'm more the happy housewife vs the happy cook than the happy hooker," she said.

Miss Hollander was married to Frank Allen, a Toronto antiques dealer, Oct. 21 last year.

Coroner's Jury Recommends Study of Hospital Doors

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury recommended Wednesday a thorough reassessment of the open-door concept in provincial mental hospitals, especially concerning the 10 per cent of patients considered by doctors to be dangerous to themselves or others.

The jury investigating the death of Douglas Lockie of Toronto made seven other recommendations to the ministry of health and 10 recommendations on gun controls to be sent to the federal government's study group on gun control.

Mr. Lockie, 34, who had fled from four hospitals, committed suicide last Aug. 5 by shooting himself in the head.

The jury's recommendations included:

—A study to ascertain the needs of Ontario mental hospitals to ensure first-class care of patients, including a review of staff qualifications, provisions for security and accommodations to control potentially dangerous patients.

—All offences involving firearms be placed under the Criminal Code and convictions for such offences be subject to severe fines and prison terms.

—Gun control legislation be revised to include all fire-arms, increase the age for purchase to 18 from 16, and to require proof-of-purchase to produce a federal gun permit prior to purchase of weapons or ammunition.

—The mental and physical health of an applicant be considered prior to issuing a firearm permit.

—An order of return should be processed when a certified patient is missing from hospital for more than 24 hours.

—The family be given comprehensive information on the treatment of a patient.

Coroner Dr. Margaret Milton said in her final summary to the jury Wednesday she believed that with better medical advice by the staff at the Whitby Psychiatric Hospital, the death of Mr. Lockie, a former patient, might have been prevented.

Dr. Milton charged that medical staff at the hospital were "passing the buck to someone else" during the five-day inquest.

"It was only when the Lockie family told us of their anguish and their battle to get the hospital staff to help them that we realized what a futile battle they had gone through," she said.

Dr. Milton said the six doctors called to give testimony were prepared for the inquest and evasive.

She also criticized Dr. John Deadman, the hospitals medical director.

"He could have discussed this case thoroughly with his staff to sort out many of the problems but chose not to," she said.

"I have never before been faced by such a crowd of medical people who simply wanted to pass the buck over this case."

Earlier Wednesday, family lawyer John Weingart told the jury there was a general lack of concern for all mental patients in Ontario.

"We treat our mental patients as second-class citizens and as a result they get second-class and third-class treatment," he said.

"If this inquest has shown anything, it has been that the mental institutions . . . are a shame to our community and that when we send a patient to such institutions we send them as second-class citizens and as a result they get second-class and third-class treatment," he said.

"If this inquest has shown anything, it has been that the mental institutions . . . are a shame to our community and that when we send a patient to such institutions we send them in the knowledge that the facilities and treatment will be ineffective and inadequate."

Earlier, the inquest was told the Lockie family received a letter addressed to their son from his doctors at the Whitby hospital 48 days after his death. The letter asked if Mr. Lockie was satisfied with treatment.

Pepin Pleads for Public Support

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean-Luc Pepin began his job as chairman of the new anti-inflation review board Wednesday by pleading for public support, which he said is essential to the government's three-year program of selective wage- and price controls.

"If people don't want it to work, there will be no ways of getting around it," he told a press conference.

Mr. Pepin said the guidelines, backed by yet unspecified penalties, will not succeed unless Canadians can be convinced he and accept personal responsibility for inflation.

"Let's call it an impossible task and we'll have to try to make it possible."

There was little clarification as to how board will actually administer the program except that it will have to be selective.

The legislation is due to be introduced in the Commons today.

With a staff not likely to exceed 200, Mr. Pepin said it would be impossible for the board to actively police a major portion of the economy. He hoped the board would make some symbolic rulings, which would set an example for other businesses, unions and groups.

Basically, the guides call for wage increases to be held to 10 per cent during the next 12 months and for prices to increase by only the amount needed to cover higher costs. The government hopes to reduce inflation to four per cent in 1978 from its current pace of about 10% per cent.

The bill establishing the program will provide for possible exemptions from the guides for workers whose traditional pay raises relate to other groups and for workers renegotiating contracts which were signed before 1974.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald made clear in the Commons Wednesday that it would be up to the board to rule on such exemptions.

The board's role will be to identify wage and price increases which exceed the guides and attempt to negotiate compliance. If this fails the matter will be turned over to a special administrator, who will have the power to enforce the guides and, in the case of prices, to order a rollback. Prosecution in the courts could follow if an order is ignored.

Mr. Macdonald said that where a company is ordered to roll back its prices, every effort would be made to identify consumers and have an unjustified increase refunded. But in cases where this was not possible, the money would be forfeited to the government.

Basford Okays Abortion Study

OTTAWA (CP) — A committee studying therapeutic abortion was given a broad mandate Wednesday to look into the operation of the 1969 abortion law in Canada.

Justice Minister Ron Basford tabled in the Commons terms of reference requiring the three-member committee to determine whether the law "is operating equitably across Canada."

The results of the study, due to be completed in six months, are to be made public and may lead to modification of the controversial 1969 law.

The government has found itself caught in the last five years between groups who want abortion on demand and others who feel the 1969 law, under which possibly 200,000 legal abortions have been carried out, is too liberal.

Abortion was illegal before 1969, when Parliament amended the Criminal Code to enable hospitals to set up committees to determine whether an abortion was required on the basis that continued pregnancy would endanger the life or health of the women.

The abortion study committee was named last month. The members are Toronto sociologist Robin Badgley, the chairman; Dr. Marion Powell, also of Toronto and active in family planning groups; and Denyse Fortin-Caron of Montreal, who specializes in family law.

Their terms of reference include several specific questions about the availability of hospitals, the rules therapeutic abortion committees must base their decisions on, and "the timeliness with which this procedure makes an abortion available in light of what is desirable for the safety of the applicant."

Postal Union Talks Re-opened to Avert National Mail Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) today reopened contract negotiations in a final bid to avert a national postal strike.

Before the talks resumed, chief union negotiator Jean-Claude Parrot said the 22,000 CUPW members have given their executive authority to call a walkout if negotiations fail.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said the government has made contingency plans for the delivery of essential mail and "is prepared to sit it out for a long time" if necessary.

Both sides entered the new bargaining session far apart on wage proposals.

However, the renewed talks likely will be heavily influenced by the fact that the anti-inflation review board must approve any postal office contract settlement exceeding the government's new selective controls which limit annual increases to a basic 10 per cent in the first year of a contract for more than four million workers.

Mr. Parrot could not predict how long the talks will last "but we hope they are serious negotiations this time."

The union, which represents mail sorters and postal clerks, has demanded a 71-per-cent increase of $3.36 an hour in a one-year contract. The average wage for CUPW members now is $4.89 an hour.

Mr. Mackasey said Thursday he was prepared to approach any new talks "in a conciliatory mood."

However, he refused to say whether the post office will budge from its offer to offer a $1.70-an-hour increase in four raises over a 30-month period.

"The union has set a good climate and I am not going to negotiate in public."

Mr. Mackasey said he still supports the proposal for a $1.70-an-hour increase contained in a conciliation report prepared by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court. It would give inside postal workers slightly more than letter carriers, who signed a contract last spring.

The postmaster-general got into political hot water Tuesday when he said the CUPW would qualify for an exemption from the basic 10-per-cent wage ceiling set in the new federal guides.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday it is up to the anti-inflation review board, rather than the government, to decide which groups qualify for exemptions.

The board is empowered to give special consideration to groups seeking to replace expired contracts signed prior to 1974. It also can make exceptions for increases necessary to maintain long-established wage relationships between closely-related groups. The postal workers fall into both categories.

Mr. Mackasey said Thursday he is willing to go before the board if necessary to plead for exemptions on behalf of the CUPW.

It appeared that the union and the post office might reach consensus on at least one issue.

Both sides have announced general support for the Moisan recommendation that would require the post office to give the union 90 days notice of planned technological changes in communications can be made. Unsettled disputes could be referred to binding arbitration.

The union's right to negotiate automation has been a major item in the dispute throughout negotiations, which began last winter. The CUPW also wants an end to the use of casual, non-union labor.

WALLACE, Idaho (AP) — Thomas Eugene Creech, former church sexton, confessed Thursday to 42 killings after taking the stand in his first degree murder trial. Postal Workers Walk Off

MONTREAL (CP) — About 25 inside postal workers, members of the Canadian Union of Postal Employees (CUPW) employed at post offices in nearby Joliette and l'Assomption walked off the job today to support contract demands. The walkout came one day after Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey said he was encouraged that inside workers had not walked out, following a nationwide vote by CUPW members in favor of strike action.

New York Near Disaster

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City was on the brink of financial collapse today, its treasuries virtually empty and a rescue plan foiled by the last minute refusal of a teacher's union to allow the use of its pension funds. State and city officials worked frantically Thursday to get the union trustees of the pension funds to change their minds, or failing that, to obtain more help from state pension monies or a loan from the Federal Reserve system.

Administrator Unnamed

Tough Fines Back Wage Guidelines

OTTAWA (CP) — The government Thursday outlined sweeping powers for a special administrator over its selective wage and price controls system along with penalties for offenders of up to five years' imprisonment and $10,000 fines.

The administrator is yet to be named, but a government official indicated Thursday night a civil servant will be tapped for the job.

Legislation tabled in the Commons Thursday shed little light on how guides are to be applied, but it did specify what the costs will be for defying them.

It will be an offence to knowingly avoid or conspire to evade the guides by any means, including by keeping false books. The penalties are:

—On summary conviction, a fine no less than $200 and up to $10,000, or both, or —On conviction on indictment, a fine to be set by the court, but no less than $10,000, and a five-year jail term.

Summary conviction cases can be dealt with more quickly since only a judge is involved along with witnesses. They are considered less serious cases because they carry lesser penalties than indictment cases.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, entering the Commons Thursday night, commented: "This should disabuse anyone of the notion that this is a voluntary anti-inflation program."

New Democratic Leader Ed Broadbent said he wanted to study the bill closely before commenting. But a spokesman for the NDP leader said his initial reaction was that some of the penalties are "pretty light."

By contrast, Combines Act amendments passed by the Commons Thursday night provide for fines on summary conviction of $25,000 for a wide variety of misleading advertising and unfair business practices.

However, a government lawyer who has worked on similar regulatory legislation said the unusual feature of the legislation introduced by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald is the extraordinary power given the special administrator.

The administrator has considerable powers to start his own investigation even after the front-line anti-inflation board has ruled the guides are being violated.

The lawyer points out that this leaves the special administrator power to bargain with the company or employees that may be in violation of the guides without public knowledge.

"These are extraordinary powers for one man to act without a public hearing," the lawyer commented.

The special administrator's reports are to be made public, but this will not necessarily reveal whether the administrator has bargained with the offending group, the lawyer notes.

Kissinger Overheard

Taped Conversation Causes Red Faces

OTTAWA (CP) — For U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, his first official visit to Canada has ended with far more fireworks than it began.

Left red-faced was virtually anyone in the external affairs department who had anything to do with the arrangements.

The faux pas which had official Ottawa both tittering and gasping Thursday was publication of intimate snatches from the renowned secretary's private dinner conversation here Tuesday during his 24-hour trip.

The stories resulted from a technical oversight which left open banquet table microphones that were to have been used strictly to carry after-dinner speeches by Kissinger and MacEachen as closed circuit to reporters outside. Most were unaware of what was happening. But a few, through lack of foresight, lured in throughout.

Despite the ensuing turmoil, officials here insisted relations between the two countries now are better than they have been for years. But nobody denied acute embarrassment.

The taped contents of the dinner conversation, in which Kissinger referred to former President Nixon as a "very old man" who disliked meeting new people, first appeared in a Washington newspaper.

Sunday Hours May Bring $10,000 Fines

TORONTO (CP) — John MacBeth, Ontario solicitor-general, said Thursday the province's new law to restrict Sunday night shopping might provide for fines of up to $10,000 for offenders.

He said he thought a fine of $10,000 would make it a tough law. Retailers now may receive a maximum fine of $250 for violating the federal Lord's Day Act.

Mr. MacBeth said the proposed legislation, to be introduced before mid-November and to go into effect by Christmas, will deal only with shopping on Sundays and some public holidays.

He added that the question of uniform store hours affecting night shopping will be left to the municipalities which now have the power to regulate hours.

Mr. MacBeth said that although many municipal councils have been reluctant to impose such controls, the province does not want to legislate in this area.

Leaving store hours under municipal control will allow for more flexibility in tourist areas, he said.

Phasing Dundas Project Shows Some Wisdom

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The sequel to a cost-saving proposals from city officials on the final phase of the East Dundas St. widening project has shown results.

Last June city council was taken back when Gow's bids on the project — including storm sewers and road reconstruction — ran as high as 38 per cent over estimates. The lowest bid was more than $1,200,000.

Then council accepted a staff recommendation to divide the phases, contracting sewer and road work as separate projects.

Tenders on the sewer installation have now been opened. The result: While the lowest bed was still 15 per cent over engineering estimates, even breakdowns strike a balance. Price of installing catchbasins and manholes were within a more "acceptable" range.

As a result there'll be an approximate saving of $57,000 over the previous total costs quoted earlier this year.

"We are far happier because this has brought the unit price down," said city manager Wilbur Purcell.

"This is expected to provide a financial cushion when bids are called on the roadwork phase."

City council Monday will be asked to accept the $561,457 tender of Korsan Ltd. of Cobourg for the sewer installation.

Plans are for the sewer work to continue through the winter so that reconstruction tenders can be called next year.

Subject to provincial government work on the sewer installation could start in two or three weeks, said Mr. Purcell.

Deaf Students-Untapped Labor Resource: Bemis

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Area industry is being asked to look at Sir James Whitney School (SSD) students as future staff and take advantage of the labor resource that so far has been left untapped, said city industrial commissioner Fred Bemis.

About 160 young people aged 13 to 20 daily attend the school gathering practical and theoretical experience in three general vocational areas, woodworking, metalworking and print.

J.W. Hodgson, vice-principal of the vocational school, said ideally each student will have spent about 2,000 hours in his chosen specialty before he leaves the school to enter the job market.

Thursday, a number of local firms toured the school and vocational centre — part of the plan to show potential employers the type of equipment being used, the quality of student work.

"One of the biggest questions in the employer's mind has been how safe is a deaf worker," said Mr. Hodgson.

The school has a rather impressive statistic that during the past 10 years of shop training and job work weeks for students, not one accident has been recorded.

While the school for several years has attempted to move its students into the industrial sector for jobs, only recently did the concerted effort begin.

"Now we're trying to find out what jobs might be coming available and then trying to tailor courses that will train specifically for the openings," said Mr. Hodgson.

"It is very important that we get our people into the labor market to illustrate what the school's students are capable of," said Mr. Hodgson.

"In future, if an employer won't believe us that he has trained a person about hiring a deaf worker, he might believe another employer who already has deaf workers on staff," he added.

Economic development commissioner Fred Bemis said he is interested in developing any resource in the community which serves to benefit Belleville. He is planning his participation in the scheme.

"The program here is a labor source that hasn't seriously been looked at," said Mr. Bemis.

Because of the extensive practical training each student receives in school, "there's more than a good chance that he will require only minimal orientation in a job situation," said Mr. Hodgson.

"The student doesn't go out on job training until there's a better than average chance that he will be successful" said Mr. Hodgson.

Quebec Considers Restraint Controls

QUEBEC CP — The Quebec government is to establish its own prices and incomes control board but Premier Robert Bourassa indicated Thursday the province is prepared to cooperate with the federal government in the fight against inflation.

Mr. Bourassa told a news conference the provincial board will be set up by legislation that will be presented to Quebec national assembly when it resumes Nov. 4.

Ottawa Has Alternate Mail Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government has developed an elaborate contingency plan for the delivery of essential mail in the event of a national postal strike, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said Thursday night.

Mr. Mackasey said in an interview on the CBC national news that "the government is prepared to sit it out" in the event of a long strike.

The CBC said the government has made plans to use rail express, bus and courier services to deliver essential mail if a strike is called by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW).

Unemployment insurance cheques and other social services payments could be picked up at local government offices.

However, both sides say they want to return to the bargaining table.

Hees Says Controls Needed

OTTAWA — A leading Conservative and Quinte district parliamentarian has called on Canadians to support the government's price-income controls program.

George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, says Canadians should get behind the plan in "the national interest".

Making the program succeed will not be easy, Mr. Hees told The Intelligencer Thursday.

At the same time he referred criticism of the government for delaying action on controls, a means of curbing inflation.

He said it has been clear for three years that government action was necessary to halt a "steady accelerating" cost of living rate.

In early 1973 the Conservative opposition urged restraints. But the government refused the suggestion and controls became a main issue in the 1974 general election.

The plan now introduced by the government differs in many respects from the original Conservative proposals.

But it has "the same objective in mind and must be given every chance to succeed" said Mr. Hees.

JOHN SKINNER

Sault Ste. Marie

A former Foxboro man, fatally injured in a freak hunting accident in Northern Ontario Oct. 4, will be remembered at a Belleville church service Sunday.

John Skinner, 26, was shot while hunting moose near Chapleau.

He died Wednesday in hospital at Sault Ste. Marie — where he had been living in recent years — eight days after he had been wounded.

Police allege he and a companion were cleaning a moose they had downed near a pond when a hunter driving down the saw a dark object in the bush and opened fire.

During the Sunday morning service at Christ Church in Belleville he will be "memorialized."

Burial will be in Sault Ste. Marie.

Union Lottery Aids Area Handicapped

Three hearing aids and two pairs of glasses have been purchased for handicapped children through a fund set up a year ago by the Civil Service Association of Ontario, Local 238 president George Webster said Thursday.

The president said the fund, for which money is raised through a lottery, now is running short on funds, but he hopes to expand already existing alternate sources of revenue.

To date, only one lottery has been run — the draw is being planned Nov. 71 and returns have not been as large as that the union local can supply "appliances to handicapped children outside of Sir James Whitney School.

The September local supplies the fund with most of its money, Sale of lottery tickets is not generally made available to the public, said Mr. Webster.

"Most funds come from our own members. We feel there is some outside selling 'of lottery tickets'," he said "It's not our policy to seek public donations."

One-tier Government Study Report Delayed

PICTON — Hallowell Reeve Keith MacDonald this week told Prince Edward County government appears to be "a bit of a joke" as delays persist in presentation of a report to council.

Reeve MacDonald, who is chairman of council's county government committee, said the proposal for a one-tier system possibly would be completed for council's study by Christmas time. Last July council was told the report would be presented in August and in August it was deferred until October.

At this month's council meeting reeve MacDonald said that further delays have been encountered.

"We are trying to compile information that will be beneficial to the people," asserted reeve MacDonald.

He said that his committee met this summer with a representative of the ministry of treasury, economics and intergovernmental affairs and material compiled for a county government report was reviewed.

Public meetings concerning the information has not yet been discussed.

Reeve MacDonald added that the county government committee has discussed its dissolution after presentation of the brief now in preparation.

Error in Tender Costs Picton Store $1,139

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has refused to pay Mason's Department Stores an additional $1,139 for extra drapery costs incurred through "an honest error."

The Picton store tendered to supply the draperies for the H.J. McParland Memorial Home last year but there was confusion in the specifications and more curtains were required.

"Mr. Mason under-tendered through an error in measurements. It was an honest error," said Sophiasburg deputy-reeve Jack Sprague during a recent council session.

Ameliasburg reeve Arnold Wetherall argued that Mr. Mason's tender was subsequently lower than that of several other bidders because of the mistake. He suggested that this was "unfair" to others who tendered for the work.

"I am sympathetic but if it is an honest mistake its part of the system by which we operate," said Picton reeve Larry Richardson.

He added that if persons who tender for a job make a larger profit than is expected they do not rush the extra money back to those who hired them. Similarly, if a job is under-tendered the workman should accept the loss as his own.

Beavers Cause Problem

TRENTON — The Public Utilities Commission (PUC) has been told by the ministry of Natural resources it had better learn to live in peace with its animal neighbors, Thursday.

Low water levels at the Tremor Lake reservoir prompted PUC manager Doug Maslow to approach the ministry for assistance in removing beavers the suspected cause of the problem, from the lake last month but the agency said it did not want to get involved and instead sent a pamphlet on how to live with the animals and still maintain water levels.

The commission also instructed Mr. Maslow to contact the ministry of the environment to clarify regulations governing five water taking permits held by landowners on Mayrea Creek.

The PUC is concerned the permits are being abused by the holders and questioned how they are being policed, if at all.

To counteract the low water level in the reservoir as the winter month approach a study has been requested to see if it would be possible to pump water from Fox's Pond, located below Tremor Lake, into the water basin to raise the level.

County Pays Taxi Fares

PITCON — Taxi fares for youngsters from needy homes who attend the Little Learners Nursery School here will be paid from the Prince Edward County Welfare budget to a monthly limit of $300.

The decision was reached during a meeting of Prince Edward County council this week.

The expenditure was questioned by Sophiasburg reeve George Foster who suggested if the nursery school is a part of the education program transportation costs might be funded by the county board of education.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson explained the nursery school program is subsidized by the ministry of community and social services. About 70 youngsters attend and a number of them are retarded.

It was noted that 80 per cent of the taxi fare charges will be subsidized by the ministry.

Data Collected

Alexina Cameron, an employee of Environics Research, is busy making a random telephone survey soliciting volunteers for a meeting to discuss Trenton's Neighborhood Improvement Program (NIP). Phase one of the NIP project is designed to choose the area of town that will receive the $760,000 federal provincial and municipal grant for upgrading of neighborhood services.

NIP Study Now Under Way

TRENTON — A five-member research team has begun work in town collecting information, that will help council decide which neighborhood in the municipality will reap the benefits of a $760,000 Neighborhood Improvement Program (NIP) grant.

Environics Research, a Toronto firm, is conducting Phase 1 of the project under a $15,000 grant from the municipality, which is recoverable from the government, and will complete the study by mid-December.

NIP is designed to assist municipalities in upgrading the living conditions in older, deteriorating and predominately residential areas. $380,000 of the funding will come from the federal government with $190,000 each from the province and the town.

The first phase of the three-part program entails the research team collecting all available material about the town's social resources, recreation facilities and municipal services.

During Phase 1 the team will also meet with groups of the 10-15 neighborhood residents in each of the five tentatively selected areas to discuss the ratepayers individual perceptions of that section of town and the services available.

"We are pleased with the response for volunteers, so far, in our random sampling of the neighborhoods and also with the reception and cooperation given by municipal officials," said Michael Adams, project co-ordinator for Environics.

I have been meeting with various resource people, like the heads of the parks department, public works and social agencies to get an upgrading on outdated reports from them," Mr. Adams said.

'Con Job' by Government Over 'Savings' One Reason for Turner's Resignation

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — You will know the government is really serious about restraint if and when Treasury Board lays down guidelines on the cost of its own trappings of power.

These are the status symbols — the offices and what goes in them — of the government's top spenders.

These are the senior executives — there are just about 1,000 of them — who draw between $30,000 and $50,000 a year.

They are the cats who get the cream.

They claim it as a reward from their political masters for dreaming up all those fine-sounding and high-costing "programs" the government finances with your taxes.

So when the government says it's buckling down to the business of restraint — not just for you and the guy next door — for itself with your money, don't look at the big fat figures in it, just look at the small numbers.

It talked in millions last June in the con job it did with the budget.

It boasted about saving an even billion dollars.

But that was a non-saving, made by simply deferring loans and investments and other commitments made for the future.

While doing that — and closer examination of the budget quickly unmasked the con — the government was increasing its real, current spending by nearly 17 per cent.

Some restraint. Some saving. That was the one compelling reason behind John Turner's resignation from Finance — he knew that if he caught hell for being forced him to such compromises, there would be nothing left of his credibility.

So with the reshuffled cabinet — same old faces in new offices — talking restraint again examine the fine print.

Look for a crackdown on the life-style of the senior executive echelon of the public service, the mandarin-inventors of those big-spending programs whose cabinet bosses prize so highly.

Right now, as far as Treasury Board non-guidelines are concerned, there is absolutely no limits on how much they spend in making their short working days comfortable.

The luxury of one of these public service executive suites can run an average $5,000 to $7,000, with a few of the really superlative layouts — carrying price tags in excess of $10,000.

Those are off-the-top bell-park estimates of a couple of know-ledgeable Public Works Department insiders who, with officers from Supply and Services Department lay it all on.

So who should be surprised that some of the more extravagantly elaborate public service senior executive pads should come equipped with cocktail bars, colored television, fine teak furniture, rich carpets, sumptuous drapes, original and sometimes priceless works of Canadian art rented from the Canada Council's Art Bank, private four-piece (shower included) washroom, a few with electric towel-warmers, and refrigerators finished in wood to look like cabinets?

There is one — could be several, in fact — but one that has been quietly and carefully examined, a suite complete with a fully-equipped kitchen and dining room.

These public service executive suites are located in the swest and fanciest of Ottawa's office towers.

Many of these towers were built by private developers financed by long-term leases given them by the government when the buildings were in the planning stage.

The developers used the government's leases — signed even before there was a hole in the ground for the tower-to-be — to raise mortgage money.

Next time you are in Ottawa take the express elevators to the top floors of Place Bell Canada and Place de Ville where the public service cats purr.

It should hit you as an atmosphere more like a Hollywood movie producer's playpen than the government executive office. Even including the palms.

That's un-restrained. And when they tax it around, you will know the government is not kidding about cutting back.

PC Ousts Juneau

Are the federal Liberals on the way out as the governing entity in this country? Ottawa correspondent Richard Jackson has written about Prime Minister Trudeau's waning star which may or may not have plunged still further with the anti-inflation measures of recent days.

He has pointed to a variety of other setbacks, including the resignation of John Turner, that have beset the Government.

And now to top them all has come the stunning defeat of Communications Minister Pierre Juneau in the traditionally Liberal Quebec riding of Hochelaga. Juneau had been the Government's communications czar only a short time following his tenure as chairman of the Canadian Radio Television Commission. In other words, he had been appointed to cabinet rank — by Mr. Trudeau — after the resignation of Gerard Pelletier, now ambassador to France.

The PC's man in Hochelaga, the personable Jacques Lavoie, won handsomely. Maybe he tried harder; indeed, he had been in the fight in the riding twice before. Perhaps his pitch that he was "one of them" appealed to voters, while Juneau's outsider image militated against the "parachuted" Grit.

In any event, it's a sign of rising Conservative fortunes, affirmed to some extent in a by-election in New Brunswick. The Liberals retained Restigouche, but by a significantly reduced majority.

The federal Conservatives are still hampered by the leadership hiatus occasioned by Mr. Stanfield's decision to step down, but the victory in Hochelaga nevertheless is a sign of shifting voter trends that almost certainly will be reflected in the next federal election.

Getting It Altogether

The Three R's. It's a subject that has been causing a good deal of agitation of late.

So many people can't spell, let alone express themselves properly, in "plain English," as the saying goes. Some of the young people coming out of our much-vaunted school system can't spell. Who says? Well, business executives have been saying it; they speak of youngsters seeking jobs who are deficient in spelling and grammar.

But then, there are any number of adults who cannot get it altogether either. Their spelling is prone to error, and their grammar is sloppy.

There are other aspects of the communications field too which are subject to error. Take the text of a five-year-old's-Sunday School reader — the U.S. published Bible-in-Line Reader. Here's a story about a little girl who writes a note to God and her mother, replying in the role of one of God's helpers, writes in part: "Dear Margie — I thought God would like for one of His friends to answer your letter. . ."

So there is an error there which readers may spot for themselves. Again, television viewers may shudder when they think of what programs such as All in The Family, Good Times, and Hee Haw — enjoyable as they are to many — are doing to the grammar and speech of young people.

Then there are errors of fact — as when anchor man Ted Baxter of the Mary Tyler Moore show says he is learning Spanish in preparation for an assignment in Brazil. But there the language is Portuguese.

A Bellevillian decided to take up the spirit. So he wrote to the producers and received a courteous reply from one whose name appears on the credits each week. He said in effect the error was deliberate, to tie in with the Ted Baxter personality — that of the bumbling anchor man who tries but never quite knows where it's at. It was an explanation, yet the error — even if deliberate — was one that very likely passed over most heads. Usually too, one or other of Ted's colleagues is quick to correct him — but not so in this case.

Again, there is that old chestnut — "irregardless." Incredibly, it was used on the CBC's late-night news recently by an otherwise extremely articulate foreign correspondent.

When all is said and done though, and "regardless" of how knowledgeable we may all claim to be, none of us is perfect. And amen to that!

Stephen Lewis' Moment of Truth

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Now will we start to see the real Stephen Lewis stand up?

One of the most interesting facets of this new leadership will be observing the NDP leader and seeing just how he will emerge in his new eminence as opposition leader and number two man in the house.

In the past few years Mr. Lewis has been in an unique spot, quite a cozy one.

In the last house the Liberals were regarded as the main threat by the government and it concentrated its attention on them.

The NDP and its leader were relatively free from attack and this meant they could pretty well choose their own issues and their own pace. Particularly it meant that their leader, not being subject to harassment, could adopt a restrained public presence and a statesmanlike political position.

We saw this illustrated very markedly during the election campaign.

Lewis was able to choose the issues he wanted — housing, energy, land and people's confine his campaign to them. Then he was able to remain removed from the hurly-burly and make statements such as that he didn't believe in personalities.

There was always considerable question as to how much of this was for real and how much an act, intentional or unintentional. A question, particularly with those of us who had known the old rebellious, fiery and defiant Stephen Lewis.

Now there should be some answers for the Lewis honeymoon should be over.

In this House he and his party should be the main targets. Then also with the unexpected success in the election he and his supporters should be getting a taste of potential power.

Both should step up the metabolism of the leader and the party and move them into the arena of slings and arrows.

They will have to ride with attack and counter it and will be forced into positions on all issues, not just those they choose. Lewis reportedly said he didn't discuss health costs during the campaign because it was "too complex" a topic.

Stephen should be forced into a position where he will have to show whether he can really take it (We know that he is a admirably excellent at giving it).

Then also there could be some revelations from the NDP caucus. Indications are that among the new members may be those who need grooming — some of them has been accusing the government of "union busting"—schools of the '20s). And before they are groomed one can't say what might happen.

The American and British Experience with Controls

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Yes, even with wage and price restraints the Americans did it first with the Phases 1, 2 and 3 of former president Nixon's plan to cool inflation and restrain prices and income hikes.

And so did the British who in fact have been introducing wage and price freezes longer than our new restraints, through most of the '70s.

On balance they were all successful in short-term. But in the long-term when they were removed or reduced in severity, they did not stop the climb of inflationary tendencies nor persuade big unions to make demands for record-size pay

The Americans beat us to the punch by better than two years. Phase 1 being the wage and price restraints ordered by former president Nixon in the summer of 1971, along with the first of his two devaluations of the U.S. dollar.

Phase 2 was the one which looked the most like our new Anti-Inflation Review Board, but more complex with a more complicated set of rules for various parts of a much larger U.S. industry.

And Phase 3 looked something like our old prices and incomes commission formed in 1969 and phased out in 1972, both of which were supposed to function on clearly losses of "voluntarism."

The major difference between the American and the Canadian experience with "voluntarism," (every man or company his own inflation restrainer), is that Washington put its interest guidelines first in Phase 2, then "voluntarism" in Phase 3. And we are doing it in the opposite order.

The chief regulatory agency in Phase 2 was the cost of living council (it directly to the internal revenue service as our new board will be in the department of national revenue.

But the rest of living council functioned through tough control mechanisms responsible to it, including a pay board, a price commission and a rent advisory board.

Unlike our across-the-board wage and price restraints for all companies with 500 employees or more as all federal departments agencies and Crown corporations, the U.S. restrictions were more complex.

But Phase 2 will definitely put the clamps on large pay hikes, price increases and required detailed reports on prices, costs and profits.

The move to Phase 3 in early 1973 still required U.S. companies with at least 1,000 employees to keep records on pay and price increases available in the cost of living council at any time. Satisfied that the short-term freezes of Phase 2 had worked, former president Nixon abolished the regulatory boards over prices and incomes boards and relied again on "voluntarism."

The British, about the same time, under former Tory prime minister Edward Heath, froze all salaries in Britain, permitting only an average 7½ per cent increase as of March 31, 1973, and fines of up to £1,000 for individuals and workers who organized strikes against the settlement.

On April 1, 1973, the former Health government also introduced a 10 per cent value-added tax which lasted for one year because the British government did not want businessmen to raise prices beyond the amount needed for the tax.

Mr. Heath's mounting political troubles with the unions overwhelmed him and in time his plan.

And it was effective for a time, perhaps the most effective one Britain has experienced since the post-war Labor and Tory governments.

One last point, why must Canadian government so often create literary titles for prosaic government agencies? We now have our anti - inflation review board and the Americans their cost of living council.

During the war we had the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and the U.S. its Office of Price Administration.

Perhaps the Ottawa view is that since we're going to be hit, let's be hit in style!

At Last Some Leadership But Events and Expediency Will Determine Duration

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Canadians can give thanks that Thanksgiving Day, 1975, at last brought forth a plan to start dealing with ruinous inflation.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's "severe restraints" on prices and incomes are not severe at all, when you look at them quietly — away from the anguished blasts of the privileged sons that are being gored.

Income increases of eight, 10 or 12 per cent a year for a given level of work could only be described as "restraint" in the context of an inflation that has been running wild.

Such increases represent real hardship and, in fact, guarantee a doubling of average Canadian income in less than a decade—perhaps, pretty much less.

But half a loaf, they say, is better than none.

Mr. Trudeau and his ministers have by far too long relied on pious statements, dreams of voluntarism, and don't-blame-us excuses, while the savings and living standards of millions of Canadians eroded—and while greedy and powerful minorities grabbed all they could get.

By themselves, Mr. Trudeau's "severe restraints" won't turn the tables.

Obviously, these are gaping holes in the government's program. Some of them could and can never be totally effective — no matter how in a complex, modern economy.

Prices of food and energy supplies, for example, will be exceedingly difficult to restrain. So, too, will the waste demands of monopoly unions in essential industries.

Given all that, it is nevertheless necessary that a start be made somewhere.

The prime minister's Thanksgiving Day cycle over the last start, belated and mild as they may be.

Their greatest usefulness may be that they demonstrate that the Trudeau government is finally willing to act.

Even if that action won't eradicate the inflation that has been ruining our economy, he has demonstrated sight of economic leadership from Ottawa may be enough to jolt Canadians out of the expectation of ever greater price and wage increases, and restore some confidence in the relative stability of purchasing power.

The Trudeau government, once before, managed to psyche Canadians out of their inflationary expectations—in late 1969.

But when the government found that there were political disadvantages in such a course, it got cold feet and changed direction.

Recently as mid-1974, it was making vast political capital out of the Conservative opposition's plans for restraint on incomes and prices.

Now, with the value of money again eroding by more than 10 per cent a year, it has dawned on the federal cabinet that restraint is good politics as well as good sense.

So it has sought the co-operation of provincial governments and of opposition parties in creating a national consensus in favor of a plan that it was ridiculing just 16 months ago.

How long will the expanded "restraints" last?

"A considerable length of time," according to the prime minister.

But, as past is any guide, they will last until their removal would bring the maximum political advantage to the government—in other words, probably until just before the next federal election is called.

With most economic signs pointing to an upturn in the business cycle over the next couple of years, chances are that the Trudeau program will have done some good by then.

The Issue of Privacy

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

With regard to your Oct. 11 editorial on the subject of privacy and the signing of letters to the editor, I think we were very close when you mentioned egocentricity and your comments were very commendable.

On the part of the anonymous then known Rejected (straight) it is rather obvious that he summoned all his moral courage finally to fight fairly. But why then should he attack others who might still commit his cardinal sin of cowardice. Can he have forgotten his own past error?

Alternatively now he considers himself superior to those not sufficiently courageous to overcome that which he did not at first manifest more. It may be that he wishes that others overcome the fear as he had.

As to the decision of whether to act or not to act, it is obvious that the decision, or indecision determined by the risk involved by the prospective or material gains. In the use of the written word, retaliation may come in the form of hate mail, physical attack or ridicule. I would think that the last would weigh most heavily.

And then there is another question — whether it is more worthy to act or not for injustice which one knows to exist, and remain anonymous, or not to do so. In that event the evil will remain uncorrected.

Civic Action Committee Works with Low Profile

One community service that doesn't need any attention or publicity is the Civic Action Committee headed by Margaret Doyle.

Mrs. Doyle works closely with a handful of volunteers in a confidential manner with people seeking guidance and assistance in a time of difficulty.

Mrs. Doyle said common grievances handled by the United Way agency are of the financial nature-unpaid bills, heat that was shut off in the winter, medication and temporary shelter.

Originating with the Catholic Women's League of St. Michael's Church, the 18-year-old committee was adopted in 1963 by United Community Services.

"We don't need the publicity," said Mrs. Doyle. "We've more work than money to pay for it."

She said word-of-mouth was how most people learned of their existence.

The volunteer staff operates on a small budget — $2,675 last year, that goes mainly to needy people. There's no overhead expenses such as office or full time staff, she said.

Construction May Cause Congestion on Bridge St.

Motorists can ready for heavy traffic conditions on lower East Bridge St. next year.

The warning was sounded in city council's traffic committee this week.

Reason for the expected vehicle buildup is the final reconstruction phase of the East Dundas St. widening program. Rebuilding of Victoria Ave the other main traffic artery parallel to Bridge — also is planned.

The detours necessary could result in traffic on East Bridge being "something out of this world," said Mayor Ben Corke.

Ald. Arthur Keegan agreed with the mayor — whose caution was evoked by request from Bridge St. United Church.

A.D. Revill, the church's congregational board secretary, asked that a rush-hour parking ban on East Bridge outside the church be reviewed.

Lack of parking space in the area now presents a problem to congregation members doing church work in the late afternoon, he said.

Villages Form Group To Get New Industry

MARMORA — The first step to bring industry to the Marmora area has been taken.

Acting on the advice of two representative from the ministry of industry and tourism given at a recent meeting with the councils of Marmora Village, Deloro Village and Marmora and Lake Townships, that the acquisition of industry should start from within the community itself, a new organization to be known as the Marmora and District Industrial Development Association is being formed.

Councillor David McLellan says it may take five years to show any results, Mr. McLellan said he hopes not only businessmen but all the people in the three municipalities will get behind the effort to bring industry to the area.

New Signs on Order

MARMORA — Twenty new signs will be ordered for Marmora Streeet to replace some that were damaged during the sewage project and others that have rusted.

Deputy-reeve Grant Aichart has recommended ordering white on green signs, similar to those Marmora Township is using, because they show up well at night.

Sewers Prompt Complaints

MARMORA — Residents at the east end of Matthew Street here are not happy with the way their entrances off the highway have been left from the sewer installation.

Earl Clemenger has asked the village council when he can expect the contractor to finish the job. Several loads of gravel and fill are needed to restore the entrance and cover the area around the manhole which was left sticking up, Mr. Clemenger claimed.

Roads chairman Grant Aichart assured Mr. Clemenger council is working on his and other complaints.

Picton Painters Devoted to Art

The sign over the door of the little house says "fine painting".

Inside, Jan and Mary Russell work steadily at their art, producing scores of canvases in their different yet complementary styles.

The walls are covered with the paintings, his in acrylic and watercolor, hers in watercolor and oil. In all cases the natural world is the inspiration for their works.

Jan, who has been painting all of his life, has moved through what he calls "ghosts and goblins" surrealism to romantic paintings and miniature abstracts and finally into his current style, a kind of extended open plane painting which uses a limited amount of media on a pale canvas.

"It's been like a purification process," Jan says. "I feel closer now to the thing I need to express; I feel confident. The cleaning process still goes on and its enjoyable."

Jan, who has exhibited in Artsfest and travelling shows in the area, doesn't feel that commercial success is necessary to his art.

"Selling paintings isn't the thing that makes me paint. I need to express life on the terms I feel other people are feeling it."

Unlike Jan, Mary Russell is a relative newcomer to painting, having spent the earlier part of her life doing an amazing variety of things.

"As the Indians say, I have a bags totem," Mary says. She's been a tourist camp "slavey", homemaker, factory worker, sales clerk, fashion and Elizabeth Fry society worker.

One day, while home with the flu, she was chatting with her sister by telephone when she suddenly picked up a pencil and began sketching.

That was five years ago and she hasn't stopped producing since. Her pictures are mostly landscapes and paintings of children doing any one of the hundred of things that children do on summer afternoons.

"I think people understand children . . . when you put high heels on a person and add a purse, something happens to them."

One of Mary's paintings is on display in the Corby Library as part of the Eastern Ontario art show which opens there Monday.

Wallbridge — Doxtator

The Christian Missionary and Alliance Church was the scene of the afternoon wedding of Valerie Jane Doxtator and Ernest Wayne Wallbridge September 20.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Doxtator, Carrying Place; the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ridley Wallbridge, Belleville.

Rev. Stephen Tilley officiated at the ceremony where the bride's aunt, Nancy Weese, was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of satiteen peau featuring an empire waist, fitted sleeves, wedding band collar and waiteau chapel train. Her ensemble was trimmed with lace and seed pearls. A scalloped edge dvell of silk illusion fell from a headpiece of embroidered chantilly lace and pearls. The bouquet was a cascade of red roses.

Deborah Doxtator, the bride's sister, was maid of honor in a blue gown with sheer set-in yoke and fitted sleeves, trimmed with lace. She carried a nosegay of daisies.

Angela Doxtator and Cathy Doxtator, the bride's sisters, wore green and pink gowns and carried nosegays of daisies.

Kelly Doxtator was flower girl in a high necked white dress and carried a basket of mixed flowers. Robbie Doxtator, the bride's brother, was ring bearer.

The groom's brother, Jim Wallbridge, was best man, assisted by Keith Brooks and Roger Townsend.

A dinner was held at Christ Church Hall.

After a wedding trip to the south, the couple took up residence in Belleville.

Books By And About Women

HER OWN WOMAN — By Myrna Kostash, Melinda McCracken, Valerie Miner, Erna Paris and Heather Robinson.

As a counterpart to "Women Today" by Greta Walker (highlighting the careers of ten American women, which appeared in this column recently), the above book includes the profiles of ten Canadian women. Five talented young writers combined their efforts to find successful women in a variety of fields with whom they could experience provocative encounters worthy of an interesting book.

These are frank and discerning interviews and cover a wide range of careers: Judy La Marsh, with a retrospect look at her contributions to Canadian politics, among them setting up the Royal Commission on the Status of Women, as well as an up-to-date look at her life today.

Then there is Barbara Frum, the radio and TV personality; Margaret Atwood, writer and critic; Esther Warkov, Winnipeg painter; Abby Hoffman, the athlete; and Rita McNeil who has emerged as an integral part of the Toronto women's liberation movement with her "Singing it Like it Is."

This book is available in the Corby Public Library.

First Women's College Celebrates Anniversary

HALIFAX (CP) — Mount Saint Vincent University is 50 years old this year. When its charter was granted in 1925 it was the first independent women's college in Canada.

Today, Mount Saint Vincent can claim an even greater distinction. It is the only independent women's college in the Commonwealth. The history of "the Mount" actually began in 1873 with the founding by the Sisters of Charity of the Mount Saint Vincent Academy for young women.

For several years this academy fulfilled the need for educating young women but by 1914 the Sisters of Charity became aware of a need for educational opportunities beyond the secondary level.

In that year a contract was signed whereby the Sisters would teach the first two years of courses leading to the bachelor degree and Dalhousie University would teach the remaining courses and grant the degree.

In 1925 Mount Saint Vincent received a charter permitting it to grant its own degrees.

On Jan. 31, 1951 the school was destroyed by fire.

Everything was lost and the students escaped with only the clothes they were wearing. A few hours later firemen had to halt their work when the water in their hoses froze. By early morning the school was a smouldering ruin.

The city of Halifax responded to the needs of the college community.

Organizations found space that could be used for dormitories, schools provided classrooms, residents donated clothing, food, supplies and encouragement, and the school was back in business.

A new building to commemorate the centennial year of the Sisters of Charity in Halifax was opened in mid-1951. By the fall students were returning.

In 1966 the college became a university.

Mount Saint Vincent has retained its affiliation with Dalhousie University and has added an affiliation with the Nova Scotia College of Art and Design. Both affiliations are aimed at reducing duplication of courses, activities, and administration between schools.

Ann Landers

He Drinks Every Night, She Worries

Dear Ann Landers: I'm in love with this boy and we plan to marry. Weve been going together for six months but there's a problem I can't discuss with anyone—least of all him. Doug is about 5 ft., 18 inches, weighs 110 pounds and is not in good shape physically. I don't want to end up a young widow.

He eats the worst junk in the world, cares nothing about nourishing food or a balanced meal, and never gets enough rest. He was in a car accident two years ago and received multiple head injuries. The doctor told him he shouldn't drink but he gets loaded nearly every night and it worries me sick. I know this is harming him because he gets terrific headaches, has blurred vision and h's trouble remembering things.

I just found out Doug takes LSD, uppers and downers, and also pot. I've begged him to take care of himself but he says he has to stay on the booze and junk to keep himself going. He's working two jobs trying to save enough money to buy a house so we can get married.

When I try to talk sense to him, he says, "Stop nagging me. I'm doing all this for you." What can I do to help him see he's killing himself?—Alba, N.M.

Dear Alba: Nothing. He'll kill himself before he'll listen to you or anyone else. Doug's physical condition is the result of his mental condition. He's self-destructive and severely unbalanced.

Your only hope is to make it clear you'll have nothing more to do with him unless he goes to a doctor and gets straightened out. If he refuses, my advice is to stop seeing him. The fact that you tolerate such erratic behavior and would actually marry such a sick guy raises many questions in my mind about your mental health.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 35 years old, a housewife, and have three children. We have been married 18 years. Our oldest child is 13. My husband is Euro- -born and does believe the parents should go anywhere without their children. The two of us have never been out for one evening together in our entire married life.

Am I wrong to tell him I don't think this is fair to me? When I mentioned it a few times he said, "There will be plenty of time for us to go out together after the children are on their own." What about it? He's a good husband but I—Fed Trapped

Dear Trapped: According to my arithmetic you married this man when you were 17 years old. I'm betting he is several years your senior and has always considered you more of a child than a woman.

It is virtually impossible for a wife to change her husband's thinking about family life after 18 years—especially if it's part of his cultural heritage. You might attempt a breakthrough by asking a close relative to be your next wedding anniversary or birthday—whichever comes first. And good luck. I hope it works.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I walked into the kitchen and caught my mother steaming open a letter with the tea kettle. It was to my 17-year-old sister from her boyfriend.

Mom seemed embarrassed and then said, "I'm doing this because I don't trust Marie and my mother has the right to know what's going on." Is Mom right or wrong?—Miss Dunno

Dear Miss: She's wrong. Such a mother will never know what's going on because her children won't trust her. Trust begets trust and it starts early. Your mom lost out a long time ago.

Dear Ann Landers: Last Monday I received in the mail a copy of your column about a married man who had been carrying on a nine-year affair with his secretary. The envelope was mailed from Fort Wayne, Mich. The following day I received the same column clipped from another newspaper. Yesterday the identical column turned up again.

My husband has never given me a moment's trouble. His secretary is a fine, respectable woman with a lovely man of her own. What does this sound like to you?—Baffled Plenty

Dear B. P.: It sounds like you know a needle artist with an air travel card. Forget it.

CONFIDENTIAL to Something Up the Sleeve? Like what? His arm? I wouldn't put much faith in a man who has failed to keep his word as many times as he has.

OMA Disclaims Reports Of Doctor Demands

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Reports that Ontario doctors are seeking fee increases of at least 35 and 50 per cent are not accurate, a spokesman for the Ontario Medical Association (OMA), said Thursday.

Dr. I. A. Todd, association vice-president, said figures attributed to OMA president Dr. Donald Neill should not be taken as absolute because the size of the increase sought will not be determined until December when it has presented to the OMA its members by all it district medical associations.

Dr. R. B. Andrews, director of OMA District 1, said about 250 doctors from the district voted for fee increases of more than 10 per cent during a meeting Wednesday.

He said the vote should not be interpreted as an effort to disregard wage and price controls imposed by the federal government which limit wage increases to 10 per cent this year, with a maximum of $2,400, because the doctors were not asked as to how the controls affect them.

But Health Minister Frank Miller has said that there is no question the guidelines apply to doctors as well as other professional groups.

Rejected Metric

CHICAGO (AP) — Thomas Jefferson recommended that the United States adopt the metric system of measurement in 1790, says the World Book Encyclopedia. Congress rejected the idea. And again in 1821, John Quincy Adams said his proposal for metric conversion defeated by Congress.

Psychiatric Head Objects to Findings

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Milton Fisher, administrator of Whitby Psychiatric Hospital, said Thursday he is outraged by the findings of an inquest into the suicide death last Aug. 5. of Douglas Lecoin, 24, a former patient at the hospital, and by the conduct of supervising coroner Dr. Margaret Milton.

The inquest ended Wednesday with Dr. Milton criticizing the hospital's medical staff. The coroner's jury recommended a reassessment of the open-door concept—especially in regard to common practice to deliver antemotion-sickness speech to the jury before it had heard the first witness.

Mr. Fisher said the hospital requested Mr. Lockie be returned for further treatment, after he had walked out, and his family declined. This point was ignored by the jury in forming its recommendations, he said.

"To jump to the wild conclusion that we ought to lock up everybody is both simplistic and dangerous," he said. "To destroy a treatment program because one or two or three or four individuals are borderline dangerous or suicidal would be completely unrealistic and, for the most part, of no benefit to the people up would be astronomical."

The 10 per cent of patients it said should be considered dangerous—practised by mental institutions in Ontario. The jury also suggested families be given more information about patients' problems and treatment.

Reacting to the criticism, Mr. Fisher said he has utmost confidence in the medical staff at the hospital and in the open-door treatment concept.

He said the purpose of the inquest was lost from the outset when Dr. Milton broke with

Some Seniors Should Not Be in Old Age Homes: Miller

TORONTO (CP) — A large percentage of the 35,000 persons in homes for the aged in Ontario should not be there, Health Minister Frank Miller said Thursday.

He told a news conference that such residents do not qualify for extended care beds in the homes in a medical sense.

A review by the ministry in July, 1973, indicated that many of the 11,000 medical requirements for payment under the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP),

Mr. Miller said he would like to see a panel or an independent person look at applications to the homes to determine whether there is medical need.

The ministry is reviewing the problem and seeking solutions to prevent further abuse of the program, he said.

Asked about reports that Ontario doctors will meet federal wage and price guidelines, Mr. Miller said he believes the doctors "will live by whatever interpretation of them we get from Ottawa."

Former Air Base Undergoes Facelift to Draw New Industry

TYENDINAGA — The latest works project upgrading facilities for leasing to light industry and commerce on this Mohawk reserve will start next week.

Plans call for installation of a pipeline system that will pump water from the Bay of Quinte into a site where potential for development has long been recognized here.

It's the Mohawk airfield — built as a military facility during the Second World War. When the site reverted back to the reserve it came with buildings and runway intact.

Some three decades later its a site that has "good potential" for commercial leasing, says Clifford John, the reserve's industrial commissioner.

A key feature is the landing strip, now leased as a private airfield. Then there is the adjacent road routes — nearby Highway 49 links into Highway 401.

The facilities - including two high-roofed aircraft hangars and a drill hall - have been undergoing upgrading in recent years.

There already has been some leasing of space for warehousing and light industry.

To date, on the site, water has been supplied for months.

But the wartime installation already included a pipeline from the Bay. Much of that line remains and is still sound says Mr. John.

The reserve council recently let a contract - awarded to Tatham Co. Ltd. of Rosemore - to upgrade the line where necessary and link the various buildings flanking the airstrip. This will make available for industrial processes and fire protection, says the industrial commissioner.

Work on the project is expected to start Monday and up to 2,000 feet of line may be installed.

Suspect Remanded

A 25-year-old Belleville man was remanded in provincial court here Thursday to Oct. 23 to set a date for trial on a charge of assault causing bodily harm in connection with an attack on a 51-year-old city woman here Oct. 4.

In addition, a charge of rape against Floyd Johnston of 28 Centre St. has been stayed due to lack of a complainant, a city police spokesman said today.

Both charges had resulted after the woman was taken from the front of 28 Great St. James St., to the rear of 54 Station St. where the offence occured.

Builders Studying Controls

Manager of the Quinte Construction Association said Thursday he does not know yet how many of the associations 60 members will be affected by wage and price controls announced this week.

"It's bound to affect a percentage of members as some employ in excess of 20 persons," said Don Sutton.

The Quinte association is made up of general contractors, mechanical and electrical contractors and suppliers.

Henry de Puyjalon, president of the Canadian Construction Association (CCA) said this week the association will co-operate in the wage and prices control program.

"The construction industry had publicly protested for the past two years that there be greater cost stability and restraint," said Mr. de Puyjalon in a message to member associations.

The federal government said earlier this week wage restraints will apply to firms in the construction industry employing more than ten persons. A contractor with fewer than 20 employees is included if some or all of them are covered by a labor agreement negotiated by an association.

Aftermath

Tenants of 90 and 92 Victoria Ave. drift into the building to inspect their apartments following a fire early this morning. The second floor and roof were damaged extensively in the fire which forced 11 tenants to evacuate. The fire apparently started in a second floor apartment.

UCS Within Its Budget, But Will Take Close Look at Agency Spending

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

With only 2½ months left in the fiscal year of the United Community Services, director Gord Mitchell reported Thursday the agency is spending less than its allocated budget for 1975.

The budget set at $38,775 for this year, includes salary and staff benefits, maintenance & costs of operating from the centre on William St., and miscellaneous items such as insurance, office supplies, telephone and audiline fees. Only $34,714, 63 per cent of the budget, has been used to date.

Mr. Mullan said the advertising and campaign expenses for the Belleville United Way drive are included in the $146,000 goal for this drive. He said $1,800 of this amount has been set aside specifically for advertising purposes.

Board members are planning to use the extra funds from the budget to repair the sidewalk and chimneys on the UCS home.

Jeff Green, agency review man, said at an executive meeting will be organized soon to deal with scheduling an earlier budget review for next year.

The UCS sponsors 15 member agencies.

Mr. Green told directors Thursday night there are no policies set up regarding the admission of reviewing budgets.

He said the difficulty in creating a smoother running budget review system is because some of the agencies have different fiscal years.

Area MPs Plan Protest Against Riding Changes

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The interest of Hastings County communities and neighboring centres will be included for consideration when the federal Electoral Boundaries Commission for Ontario meets in Belleville next Thursday.

As a result, one local politician believes, the commission could be headed into a heavy session.

Political representatives from Quinte constituencies & adjoining ridings are lining up their appeals for reconsideration of proposed new voting boundaries that would transform their electoral territories.

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, expects the revisions now proposed will prompt a "very heavy" agenda for the commission session - set for 9:30 a.m. at the Hastings County administration building main court room here.

Aside from Mr. Ellis, other MPs who say they will attend include

Douglas Altenbrook of Northumberland; Paul Pontes of Lennox and Addington. Boundary redistribution would revise the riding into a sprawling territory from northwest of Peterborough to northeast of Kingston - with most of Hastings County's township the core area.

— Bill Scott, MP Victoria-Haliburton, whose current riding now including six northern Hasting County towns would be abolished by the proposed redistribution.

George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, who would lose Prince Edward to a new riding of Northumberland, as not expected to be present. A spokesman at Mr Hees' Ottawa office said Thursday he may not attend because of other commitments.

Mr Ellis said he will personally back up his suggestion that the commission review its proposed boundary lines involving his political jurisdiction.

These would abolish the riding of Hastings as presently known - which reaches from Belleville to north of Bancroft.

The suggested re-alignment would create the new riding of Prince Edward - to include Belleville, neighboring Thurlow and Tyendinaga townships with Prince Edward County. Also included are Adolphustown, North and South Fredericksburgh Townships from the southwest tip of Lennox and Addington County on the Bay of Quinte.

The new Northumberland riding would retain Sidney Township and Trenton.

But Mr. Ellis has registered a bid to include more Hastings communalities in the new Prince Edward riding — an appeal for which he already has received the formal backing of Hastings County council.

Emphasizing strongly historic community-of-interest ties more than a century old, Mr. Ellis has asked that the townships retained in his area for the same reason - traditionally they're oriented to Napanee.

Instead, he said he'd like to trade an area on England's city limits to Pittsburgh Township that includes big military installations at Barrefield.

Student Counsellors Prove Worth in City High School

Secondary school guidance counsellors are now discovering that peer counselling use of student counsellors is making a major impact on school communities.

For two years now Centennial Secondary School's guidance department, headed by Sid Alcorn, has implemented peer counselling, a new concept to education. The program has since grown from a meagre six student counsellors the first year to 22 this fall, with many of them having a year's experience.

The student peer counselling usually involves a senior student meeting with a junior student to iron out problems related to the school functions. The counsellors help staff guidance people in orienting Grade 9 students to the school atmosphere.

Mr. Alcorn now says that the guidance department can reach all the new students for basic orientation. Centennial has a student population of about 1,200 with only three full-time staff counsellors.

The program is closely scrutinized and student counsellors are carefully screened prior to deal with his or her fellow students.

"It's basically kids helping kids", explained Mr. Allerie, who also added that any major problems either personal or academic, are referred to the staff counsellors.

Controls Pose Problems

Due to Ottawa's 10 per cent wage limit, the Hastings County Board of Education now finds itself in a dilemma over proposed salary increases for its administrative council.

On Oct. 6 the board's staff board relations committee (the academic and business arms) agreed to recommend to the board about a 12.5 per cent increase for its administrative, including the director, superintendents and other executive officials of the board.

Last Tuesday, the board met to discuss the increases which usually come about mid-Oct. ber and are retroactive to Sept. 1. However, 24-hours earlier Prime Minister Trudeau announced the governments new wage and price restraint, limiting salaries to 10 per cent.

The increase if approved will give the director of education $45,000 a year an increase of $5,000. Salary ranges for the superintendents will be raised to $32,000 — $39,000 from $28,000 — $32,000.

Miriam Graham, vice-chairman of the board, said Thursday the board approved the increases subject to clarification from the new legislation expected this week.

Mrs. Graham said the problem should be cleared up in several weeks. Many other boards of education, currently involved with teacher salary settlements, also find themselves in a similar situation.

Firefighter Collapses At Two-alarm Blaze

A 19-year veteran of Belleville Fire Department is in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital following a heart attack suffered during a two-alarm fire in the city early today.

Chief Leo Culhane said Capt. George Woodhouse collapsed at the rear of 90-92 Victoria Ave., a 100-year-old apartment block extensively damaged by fire of an unknown origin.

Sid Meeks and his 17-year-old daughter, Ginger, of Labelle Street responded. Mr. Meeks said there was no sign of life when he first saw Capt. Woodhouse. He said he and Ginger began external cardiac massage and installed an airway before carrying him to hospital.

A second firefighter, Fred Ellis, was treated and released from hospital with a burned right hand.

Chief Culhane said the fire began in one of two apartments in the northwest corner of the building. The first alarm was turned in at 2:12 a.m. followed by a second 35 minutes later when flames broke through the roof and there was potential danger to surrounding structures.

He said 11 off-duty firemen were summoned to assist the regular shift. They had the blaze under control in about 90 minutes.

Chief Culhane said there was extensive fire and water damage to the top floor of the two-story brick building and water and smoke damage on the ground floor.

All 11 tenants escaped uninjured. The building is owned By Robert M. Sasby of 88 Selina Ave. in Belleville.

Two Held While Police Check Mysterious Powder

Two Toronto men were to appear at a bail hearing here today on a charge of possession of property obtained by crime laid by Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville Thursday.

Police identified the two as Dennis Craig Moule, 24 and Michael John Preudhomme, 21, both of 48 West Lawrence Ave.

Police said they were arrested early Thursday during a routine traffic check on Highway 2 at Bayside.

Police said about 30 grams of a white powder in substance and a white, powdery substance were seized and are currently being analyzed.

LIP Grant Outcome Known By Next Month

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Local Initiatives Program officials will be making a "big push" to process Hastings grant applications and announce the recipients of this area's $314,000 federal government allotment by Nov. 2, says LIP officer Barbara Heller.

Speaking from Toronto Thursday, Mrs. Heller said she is "pretty sure" the deadline will be met, but it will mean LIP officials will be working overtime.

In the federal constituency of Hastings, 44 applications for funds had to be given a fair hearing, a process that took longer than expected and forced a four-day delay.

"We were late in sending up (to Ottawa) recommendations", said Mrs Heller, in referring to necessary work for a set of 3 meetings she attended with a 10-member citizen advisory committee appointed by Jack Ellis (MP Hastings — PC).

The advisory committee culls all applications and sends them on to LIP officials in the regional office in Toronto. From there, applications move to Ottawa where, in the end, they are subject to final approval by Robert Andras, minister of Manpower and Immigration.

This year, the local committee has approved 15 unknown applications for final study in Toronto and Ottawa. And in 1975-76 more money is available for the eventually approved projects to use — $314,000 — as opposed to $149,000 the previous fiscal year.

VON Acts as Bridge Between Patient and Doctor

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

The Victorian Order of Nurses works behind the scenes - treating people who can't help themselves. In fact, this coast-to-coast nursing service has been serving people for the last 75 years.

It's a service that assists hospitals who can release patients early under their care. They works closely under their patient's doctors.

Covering Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Cobourg, Bancroft and Campbellford, a typical nurses day can involve everything from giving an insulin needle to a diabetic, changing a dressing or pushing health education-diets and exercise.

One of the United Community Services agencies, the VON operates under a variety of funds. A sliding fee scale is used for patients — the maximum charge per visit is $9.60. Health plans, government funds under the Health and Welfare Act and re-embursement from agencies such as Home Care, Workmen's Compensation, Veterans Administration and welfare agencies make up the rest.

Sue McNish nursing director in Belleville and area, stresses the VON is a stepping stone between hospital and patient recovery. She said their service augments the public health service.

"We gear ourselves to active nursing care. And people enjoy the personal visits. We play a big role in co-ordinating the services for patients in the community," she said.

Mrs. McNish said during an average month Belleville put 2,500 miles on their car.

She said she now is trying to organize a screening process for senior citizens where a group can utilize one evening for a complete check-up by the VON.

"That's a big gap in the services in this community," she said. "I hope we can improve the situation."

Winnipeg Jets, with their European players leading the way, made it three wins in a row Thursday night with a 7-3 victory over Denver Spurs.

The victory give Winnipeg a 4-1 record and first place in the Canadian Division of the World Hockey Association. Quebec Nordiques are second with four points on two wins and a defeat.

Veli-Pekka Ketola of Finland scored twice highlighting a four-goal first period for the Jets. Winnipeg have outscored their opposition 16-6.

In another game, goalie Ernie Wakely stopped 30 shots for his first shutout of the season as San Diego Mariners blanked Indianapolis Racers 3-0.

Other European players scoring for the Jets were Mats Lindh, Willy Lindstrom. Lindh also had two assists, Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson. Bill Lesuk completed Winnipeg's scoring with his first goal of the season.

The Jets scored three goals in the first four minutes of play. The Spurs took advantage of a Winnipeg penalty to score two goals within 14 seconds, one by Francois Rochon and the other by Larry Bignell.

Rookie Alan Tieler scored twice to pace the Mariners' offence in 1:27 period.

The Racers held a two-man advantage for one minute and 32 seconds early in the third period and managed a dozen shots against the Mariner goal, but Wakely turned them away.

Gerry Peacock scored the other San Diego goal.

Hull Apologetic Over Salary

TORONTO (CP) — Bobby Hull, World Hockey Association (WHA) superstar, said Thursday his $2.7 million contract is contributing to inflation and hitting hockey fans in their wallets.

"I'm sorry, genuinely sorry," he said in an interview from Denver, Colo.

Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of Ottawa's new anti-inflation review board, said Wednesday he wants to take a hard look at the inflationary effects of the huge contracts signed by superstar athletes.

"Sure the contract causes inflation," Hull said, "but it's not my fault, it's the fault of the two hockey leagues."

He said the amalgamation of the National Hockey League and the WHA "would have an effect of bringing down prices."

Hull jumped from Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League (NHL) to Winnipeg Jets of the WHA in 1972 for a bonus of $1 million on top of the contract that gave him $12 million over 10 years.

Frank Mahovlich, forward with Toronto Toros of the WHA, admitted high-priced hockey talent is contributing to inflation, but wondered what can be done to control it.

"How can you tell a junior player making $60 a week he won't be upset when he comes into the league?" he asked.

Mahovlich said players would pack up and move to teams in the United States if the government imposed wage controls on athletes.

Anderson's Little Joke Sparks Perez at Plate

CINCINNATI (AP) — Boston Red Sox find themselves on the critical list today after the hit and run over by the Big Red Machine.

After struggling through the first four games of the World Series, Tony Perez suddenly returned to form with two home runs as Cincinnati Reds routed the Red Sox 6-2 Thursday night and took a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The National League champions can finish off the Red Sox on Saturday in the sixth game at Fenway Park in Boston, where Jack Billingham will face Boston left-hander Bill Lee.

"I never get down on myself," said Perez, who had fought a torturous batting slump before breaking it Thursday night before a capacity-crowd home-town fans in Riverfront Stadium.

Cincinnati's all-time RBI leader had gone hitless in 15 World Series appearances before smashing a hanging slider from Reggie Cleveland over the left-centre field wall to give the Reds a 1-0 tie.

In the sixth inning, Perez got another good pitch from Cleveland — a tantalizing fastball but that one a little higher over the left-centre field fence. Two men were on base at the time and it gave hard-throwing Don Gullett a handsome 5-1 lead.

That second homer clinched Cleveland, a native of Swift Current, Sask., and the first Canadian ever to start a World Series game.

Perez came up with runners on second and third after Joe Morgan walked and Johnny Bench singled through a hole vacated by second baseman Denny Doyle, who was moving over to cover the bag when Morgan started for second.

"On the first home run, the ball was in my mid and it felt good when I hit it," said Perez, happy to finally escape the hitless clutches of his series-long slump. "It was the first pitch all series inside to me.

"The second homer was on a fastball inside. They kept the ball aggey from me all series but tonight they came in. I felt real good in batting practice."

Perez' depressing slump had reached such a point that manager Sparky Anderson tried some humor before the game to

Sox Credit Gullett

CINCINNATI (AP) — Boston Red Sox gave credit to Cincinnati southpaw Don Gullett for his spellbinding performance Thursday night but refuted to concede anything else to the Reds.

"This gets them one up, but they still have to beat us. The Boston third baseman Rico Petrocelli said after the Reds defeated the Red Sox 6-2 to move to within one game of the Cincinnati's first World Series championship since 1940.

"Sure, we are behind 3-2 in the Series, but now we're going home to our ball park," Petrocelli said. "We're just going to have to go like hell Saturday.

"You can bet we'll be ready. We've come this far by pitching and we can do it again."

Boston shortstop Rick Burleson was equally confident.

"Sure, I think we still can do it," he said. "I'm not worried. We're going home looking to win two.

"Gullett pitched one heck of a game. But now their best is gone, and we still have our best ready for them in Boston.

"I'm not taking anything away from their other pitchers. Cincinnati has darn good pitching. But Gullett has been rated their best all year. We have (Bill) Lee ready for Saturday and Luis Tiant ready for Sunday."

Boston manager Darrell Johnson said Gullett was the main reason the Red Sox were beaten.

"Don Gullett dominated the baseball game," Boston Manager Darrell Johnson said. Until the ninth inning he was overpowering. He threw the heck out of the ball."

DON GULLETT

up only two hits to Boston through eight innings and then three more in the ninth before being forced from the game with one out to go.

"I lost a little bit in the ninth," said Gullett, explaining he got cold while waiting during a long Cincinnati eighth inning. "I asked pitching coach Larry Shepard if I should go down and throw in the bottom of the eighth to keep warm, but the bottom of the order was coming up, so I couldn't.

When the chunky southpaw gave up two-out singles to Carl Yastrzemski and Carlton Fisk, Anderson was out to talk to him.

But when the obviously tired Gullett later gave up a run-scoring double to Fred Lynn, Anderson revisited the mound and brought in Rawly Eastwick, who blew three pitches by the dangerous Rico Petrocelli for the clincher.

Johnny Bench assessed Gullett's over-all performance as near his best.

"I've never seen him throw any better," he said. "He was just super. In my opinion, he pitched as well as anybody can possibly pitch."

Gullett gave up a run in the first inning on a triple by Doyle and Yastrzemski's sacrifice fly before Boston's ninth-inning flurry. Along with Perez' four RBIs, the Reds got a run in the fifth on Gullett's single and a double by Pete Rose and one in the eighth on Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly.

Clarke Still the Key

By GLENN COLE
The Canadian Press

Before the 1975-76 National Hockey League season got under way, someone asked captain Bobby Clarke, the heart and soul of Philadelphia Flyers, if the two-time Stanley Cup champions could make it three in a row.

"We're a better hockey club now than we were last season," said Clarke. "We are one, solid team. We still are hungry to win. But don't forget, we're in the toughest division in the league."

Clarke has been a key man once again for the Flyers as they have won their first four games of the young season, lifting them to the top of the Patrick Division. The latest triumph came Thursday night with Clarke scoring two goals as the Flyers edged St. Louis Blues 3-2 in one of three games played.

In other action, Buffalo Sabres crushed Chicago Black Hawks 7-1 and Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins battled to a 2-2 tie.

In Philadelphia, Clarke's second goal of the game and fifth of the season, on a power play with four minutes gone in the third period, proved to be the winner. He backhanded a shot through the legs of Yves Belanger after the St. Louis goaltender had made a good save on Gary Dornhoefer.

Dornhoefer gave Philadelphia a 1-0 lead with a power-play goal at 3:38 of the first period. But Garry Unger tied the score with a power-play goal at 4:02 of the second period.

Clarke then scored with about five minutes left in the second period to give the Flyers the lead they never relinquished. Bob Hess got the other St. Louis goal in the third period.

The Sabres, who lost to Philadelphia in a six-game Stanley Cup final last May, won their third start of the year before a capacity crowd of 16,433.

The Sabres jumped to a 3-0 lead in the opening period but Floyd Smith, Buffalo coach, said some muscle applied by defensemen Jerry Korab and ex-Sabre Gerd Nattress had to do with the win.

"Their bumping seemed to get Chicago off balance," Smith said. "Everything was going our way after that. People say we can't check."

In Detroit, a crowd of 8,863 saw Wall McKenzie score from a goalmouth scramble at 16:28 of the third period to give the wingless Wings their third tie of the season.

Terry O'Reilly's second goal of the season was set up by Phil Esposito at 5:30 in the second period after Danny Grant's power-play goal at 4:48 opened the scoring.

BOBBY CLARKE

Esposito notched his second goal of the season with one minute to play in the opening session to put the Bruins, now 0-1-1, ahead 2-1.

Esposito then became the target of derisive and booing after he smacked his stick against the plexiglass in frustration before a two-minute Boston power play finished in the second period.

At one point, Esposito gave the Detroit goaltender five and later pushed the fan, who had reportedly hassled away by stadium police.

"I was admiring because I lost my temper," Esposito said. "I shouldn't do things like that. I was in the heat of the battle and all that ....

"The security isn't good here. We have been complaining to the league for years, but I guess they have to wait until somebody gets hurt."

Tweed's Claude Leclair Is Going to Do What?

Evel Knievel attempted the Snake River Canyon. Now it's time for some stunts on the local scene. Owen Sound, newly's Claude Leclair will be looking to set a new water record for snowmobiles.

The current mark, held by a Timmins man at 70.70 feet, Leclair has his sights set on 2.400 feet.

He plans to rev his machine up in Tweed Park, on the Bayview Drive in the grass area, hit the water at 70 - 80 miles per hour and skim across the top of the water from the shoreline to an island a little under a half-mile away.

The 34-year-old Leclair isn't particularly concerned with the danger involved.

"As long as you hit the water on the level, there shouldn't be any problems," he said, "It's just that the lake is quite low and I may have difficulty making my entry.

"All proceeds from the event are to go to the Tweed-Hungerford Kinsmen Club for its charitable works.

This isn't Claude's first attempt at wave-mobiling. His initial encounter with the hair-raising sport came a few weeks ago. It, however, was a flop. He only travelled a distance of 40 feet.

"I had the wrong kind of machine for that run," explained the daredevil, "and because of the terrain I didn't get up enough speed."

Leclair was aboard a Rupp in his maiden voyage. Next he'll be scrabbling a 650 modified Alouette.

The Alouette has a rubber track, which Leclair said, will have a sliding effect across the water. The Rupp had a metal track and he said, "it was too heavy and just chewed through the water before it finally sank."

The father of three claims if he hits the water at 80 mph he can make the run easily.

As a matter of fact, he claims he may not need the snowmobile to reach the island.

"If I hit the edge of the water with one side of the machine lower than the other it will flip and they use most of the way."

Tickets in the grandstand event are available at the gate of the Tweed Park or from members of the Kinsmen Club. Enthusiasts at the event even have a chance of making themselves a few bucks.

If you don't think Leclair will accomplish the 2,400 foot stunt you can purchase tickets from the Kinsmen and estimate just how far you think he will get. The ticket holder who comes closest to the distance will win a share of the pot.

The dynamic feat is scheduled for 3 p.m. and with the anticipated crowd, seats may be in short supply. So get to the park early.

Thompson Keeps Cats Win Streak in Tact

BOB THOMPSON

Belleville Opens Season

Bob "Bubba" Thompson's first and only goal in Tuesday night's Metro Junior B game here against the Kingston Township Voyageurs could not have come at a more opportune time, at least as far as the Belleville Bobcats were concerned.

Thompson's goal with only 1:57 remaining in the game broke a 5-5 deadlock and lifted the locals to their fourth straight victory in the regular season action.

Belleville, playing only their second game in two weeks, "did not play well" according to Meshan Bonnar. He "Cats relieved coach after the fast and furious closing minutes of the third period. Bonnar however was impressed with the winning goal.

"It was just a super play: Tony (Meagher) won the draw in our end and fed the pass to Leedham, who made a great play to get the puck to Thompson."

To make things easier for the Cats in net for Bobcats, Kingston goalie "Steve" Dine had come into out of his net, not expecting Graham to be able to get the puck out to Thompson. Dine, on more than one occasion during the game, made the same mistake although no goals were scored.

SHOTS ON GOAL

the Bobcats had a 5-3 lead and appeared to have the game well in hand. The home team came out flying in the final frame, apparently catching the Cats off guard and it was only a matter of time before a shell shocked Jeff Merrill could no longer keep out the flying rubber.

The losers fired a total of 31 shots at the Belleville netminder over the course of the 60 minutes of play; 20 of those came in the third period. Merrill looked very sharp in the Belleville win, oft times left all alone to kick out shot after shot with little help from the defence.

Two new faces were in the line-up for Belleville - both taking up positions on the blue line and both have seen action before in a Belleville uniform. Joey Edwards and Neil Turner have been added to the local roster giving the Cats some badly needed size. Turner picked up a goal and an assist in his first game this season.

The arrival may have come at a good time as Belleville will be playing shorthanded for a while. Rick Lang-Pelle and Paul Tilley who both missed Thursdays game will be out for an indefinite period.

Joining the pair on the sidlines for sure will be Scott Samis, one of the Cats faster skaters. Samis will be being taken into the boards off balance may have a partial seperation of the shoulder. Grant Gosgen and Paul Dettman also sustained injuries in the win over Kingston although the extent has not yet been determined.

Commenting on the victory, Bonnar explained that "they (Kingston) played our type of game; firing the puck into our end and forcing the play, which is what we usually do." Although Bonnar was a little displeased with the quality of play, he was more than happy with the win. "Any time we can play a bad game and win, something must be going right."

Bruce Leedham led the scoring charge for the locals with a pair of goals less than a minute apart in the opening period with singles going to Ricketts and Meagher to round out the Belleville scoring.

The Cats make a back to back homestand beginning tonight when they host the Whitby Young Bruins. On Sunday the Pickering Panthers will empty the visitor position in an 8:15 p.m. game at the Memorial.

JEFF MERRILL

Women Victorious Over RMC

When the Belleville Squash Club opened a few years ago, it was originally conceived to be an all male establishment. The women of the area weren't going to stand for that and after some degree of consideration the women were offered limited membership.

That move proved to be one tremendous foresight of the men of the club. On Thursday night a women's team took on a team from the Royal Military College and came up with a 3-2 win.

Individually, Sandra Classe defeated Jennifer Amsbbett 9-2, 9-2, 9-6; Erica Hayes downed Edna Cooke 9-7, 9-4, 9-3; and Mary Lee Ross routed Donna Faulkner 9-2, 9-2, 9-0. Joining Classe, Hayes and Ross in the Belleville team, two other Belleville players scored quite as fortunate as their teammates. Woodley lost to Jenny Ellis 8-10, 5-9, 2-9 and McLaughlin was edged by Sandy Raymond 9-1, 10-9, 1-9.

The ladies will go again November 13 at the local club when they face a team from Queen's University.

Culkin Throws Saints Into Tie for Top Spot

With one game left to play in the senior division of the Bay of Quinte Secondary School Football League a four way split for first place appears almost inevitable. The only way four clubs couldn't end the season in a deadlock is if the remaining contest, between Saints and Centennial tonight, comes out with a tie score.

Wednesday night, Centre Hastings finished its season with a victory over Moira giving the two clubs a 3-3 record and a share of first. Thursday night, Quinte Saints rolled up a 25-18 win over Bayside Rec. Devils to make it a three way split at the top of the senior flock. Tonight, Trenton and Centennial, both with 2-2 records square off with the winner gaining a quarter of the number one position in the standings.

In the junior game Thursday Centennial Chargers put together an overpowering ground game to dump the Saints from Quinte 25-8.

The senior saints went to the air for their win. Quarterback Rick Culkin keyed the aerial onslaught with a mixture of long and short passes from the heart of his team's: shotgun formation.

Culkin connected on two TD passes in the first half. A 50 yard bomb to Al Rutherford and a 35-yarder to winghack Bill Rogers. Rutherford was the Culkin's number one receiver in yesterday's win catching four passes for over 100 yards. Rogers totalled close to 75 yards in pass receptions.

The other first half TD was scored by Gord Crawford. The opening 30 minutes ended with the Saints up 18-6.

"We just couldn't cope with their passing game," explained Bayside coach Gord Smith. "we did better in the second half, but they were just too strong."

In the final two quarters the Saints got a touchdown from Gord Male on an eight yard run up the middle andanother from backup QB Barry Beer. Rogers collected a two point conversion.

Art Darrow had the most spectacular offensive play of the contest when he ran back a Quinte kickoff 100 yards for Bayside's first major. Rick Hodgson managed to get far enough outside the Saints corner linebackers to break an end sweep 65 yards for the Red Devils other TD. He and Ron Bell capped off the touchdowns with two-point conversions. Paul DeSilva and Vic Podmishak each booted singles to round out the Devils scoring.

Quinte saw their record drop to 3-3 in the junior standings as the Chargers offensive line ripped through the Saints defence leaving gapping holes for running backs Terry Thompson and John Reyer. Both backs had excellent rushing games, but it was the lanky Thompson that racked up the points. He counted three of four Centennial TD's

Plane Leads Reid's

Ralph Plane collected five assists Thursday night as his Reid's Dairy crew rolled to a 7-2 Quinte Minor League victory over Belleville Hotel.

Plane helped set up three goals by Gerry Lacas and one each by Moe Hunter and Bob Boyle. The only two he wasn't in on were taken by Al Ray and Rick Rosebush.

Ted Waite accounted for both Belvedere goals and Doug Daloe drew a pair of helpers.

The victory gives Reids sole possession of first place with two consecutive victories in two starts this season.

In the other Quinte contest, Devolin Motors, led by the two goal effort of Tom Pope, edged O'Brien-Steele 4-3. Phil Meeks and Roger Johnson were the other Devolin markmen.

Kevin Allen had a goal and two assists for the losers. Joe Goodfellow and Joe Clarke each scored once.

Hearing Held Off

TORONTO CP — Delays in court proceedings resulted in civil interim injunctions allowing Wayne Gretzky and Brian Horsbeck to play minor hockey for Toronto teams in a country both boys to fall apart at the seams, says their lawyer, Morris Wolfe.

Gretzky, 14, formerly of Brantford, Ont., and Horsbeck, 13, formerly of Brighton, Ont., have moved to Toronto under legal guardianship and are attending Toronto schools.

Court action was instituted on the boys' behalf last week after they lost appeals to the Ontario Minor Hockey Association to be released from their former OMHA teams to play for Toronto Nationals Hockey Club in Toronto beginning Oct. 1.

However, the hearing Thursday was adjourned until Monday to allow W.A.W. Scott, lawyer for the OMHA, time to file information from his clients with the court.

Pearce said Thursday the boys haven't known whether they can play hockey since Sept. 19 when the OSHA first refused to validate the signed release forms from their respective OMHA teams.

Pearce said he is worried about the possible "irreparable harm" the boys may suffer if another adjournment is ordered next week. He said he feels the boys' hopes for a solution will

Diane Jones Clears Hurdle in Leg of Pentathlon Event

Pan-Am Gold Not Satisfying

MEXICO CITY (CP) — For Diane Jones, even the wall of the winner's podium at the Pan-American Games was a distraction from the task at hand.

Most of the athletes in the Canadian camp would consider any kind of medal a reward for years of hard work, self-denial and occasional frustration. But the gold medal Diane wants is not to be found in Mexico City.

"I found this meet a nuisance because I lost two months of endurance and strength training," the 24-year-old University of Saskatchewan student said Thursday after her impressive victory in the pentathlon.

Miss Jones, ranked fourth in the world in the event, has her sights set on the 1976 Olympics in Montreal, where she faces stronger competition than the 12 girls she defeated in the Pan-Ams.

Even so, "it turned out to be a tougher competition than I thought it would be."

Her winning score of 4,673 points technically does not qualify as a Games record because Patricia Winslow of the United States scored 4,808 in 1967 under a more generous scoring system which was revised four years later. Debbie Van Kleek of Toronto, who won the event in 1971, had a total of 4,290.

It was a good day for Canada in field events. John Beers of Burnaby, B.C., and Rick Cutell of Vancouver claimed silver and bronze medals in the high jump, won by Thomas Woods of the U.S. with a leap of seven feet 4½ inches.

Both Canadians cleared 7-1½ with Beers taking second place because he needed fewer jumps to get there.

Lacette Moreau of Vaudreuil, Que., took the bronze in the women's shot put, surpassing the former Games record with a heave of 55 feet 7½ inches. The winning throw by Maria Tarria of Cuba travelled 59-1½.

The old mark of 51-8 was also exceeded by Maureen Dowds of Winnipeg, whose 54-foot throw was good for fourth place.

The Canadian equestrian team, surviving the disqualification of Jim Day of Hornby, Ont., for a rule infraction Wednesday, coasted to a silver medal in the three-day event behind the United States.

American riders also finished 1-2 in the individual competition, in which Jim Henry of Toronto was fourth, Elizabeth Ashton of Orangeville, Ont., ninth and Peter Howard of Woodbridge, Ont., 10th.

The Americans drew level with Cuba in gold medals as they won eight of the 15 awarded during the day to the Cubans' four for matching totals of 26. The pentathlon gold was Canada's fifth, along with six silver and 12 bronze medals. Two countries came up with their first Games victories as James Gilkes of Guyana won the men's 200 metres and Domingo Dibadutta of Colombia came up with a strong finishing kick that brought him a narrow victory in the 5,000 metres.

Canadians were not a factor in either event. Hugh Fraser of Ottawa ran the 200 in 21.09 seconds, finishing fifth behind Gilkes who was clocked in 20.43.

John Sharp of Toronto was a distant 10th in the 5,000.

Marjorie Bailey of Vancouver and Joyce Yakubowich of Victoria were fourth and sixth in the women's 200 as 16-year-old Chandra Cheesborough thwarted the bid of fellow-American Pamela Jiles for a sprint double in a photo finish.

The times were 22.7 seconds, a Games record, for the winner and 22.81 for Miss Jiles. The Canadian times were 23.28 for Mrs. Bailey and 23.34 for Mrs. Yakubowich.

Jathan gold Wednesday, topping the field in the shot put and lying for first place in the high jump after a fourth-place finish in the 100-metre hurdles. Another first in Thursday's long jump added to her margin and a fifth-place finish in the 200 metres did her no harm.

But the perfectionist from Saskatoon was not satisfied.

"My 200 metres is my downfall," she said before heading home for more strength and endurance training.

Diane's 20-year-old sister Joanne was eighth in the event, collapsing at the tape in the 200 metres because of lack of oxygen in the high altitude. Diane said her sister suffers from an asthmatic condition.

In Memoriam

CLAPP — In loving memory of a dear father Gerald, who passed away Oct 17th, 1971.
Today recalls the memory,
Of a loved one gone to rest,
Of a kind and loving father,
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave,
Mary wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath
Will never fade away.
—Ever loved by daughter Dolores and husband Gene Mundorff.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a wonderful husband, dear father and grandfather, Grant A. Wright, who passed away one year ago today, October 19th, 1974.
Sad and lonely one year has passed,
Since our great sorrow fell,
The grief that we received that day,
No one could ever tell.
God gave us strength to meet it,
And courage to bear our load,
But our hearts ache with a love one,
No one will ever know.
You took us over a last farewell,
Your even said goodbye,
Your last sigh of love we knew it,

Record Firms Pushing French Artists

MONTREAL (CP) — Record companies have begun giving wide recognition to French-Canadian music on the lucrative Quebec rock-music market.

Substantial promotional effort is being channelled into selling home-grown music alongside the popular imported sounds of British, American and European groups, on a market which companies describe as the most rewarding in Canada.

Support of French-Canadian music, through radio, television and written exposure, has led to the emergence of a star system in the province's rock-music field, a system which has helped numerous promising Quebec groups achieve some standing on their home ground.

Beau Dommage is one such group. After two years together, the group has established a firm footing in the province through concert appearances—lately top billings—and strong promotional support from its record company.

Beau Dommage describes its music as "spontaneous and natural," a feeling especially conveyed on the group's debut album released in September, 1974.

Since then the group has been constantly in the public eye. A 50-town tour of the province between January and August, culminating in a home-coming concert in Montreal, brought packed houses at every stop. The album, titled simply Beau Dommage, meanwhile has sold more than 125,000 copies in Quebec.

A follow-up album, as yet untitled, has been scheduled for release this season.

Looking back on the hectic year, the five musicians and singers who make up Beau Dommage admit their popularity throughout the province came unexpectedly.

Michel Rivard, guitarist, singer and composer, remembers the feeling of surprise and confusion when the record caught the public's fancy almost as soon as it appeared.

"Even in Quebec, where local music is an important part of the general market, the success of a local group's first album is far from assured," Michel said in an interview.

"The sudden success scared us; we didn't know how to react to it. Six months earlier we were playing the Hotel Nelson (a music club in Old Montreal) and some nights the room was half empty. Shortly after the record came out we did another engagement there and the people were queuing up for a couple of blocks outside."

Beau Dommage was formed with a mutual inspiration to create "music that is individual, something that touches the listener in a special way," said pianist and composer Robert Leger.

"First of all we found we could work well together; there was little tension and the music came out easily and naturally," he said. "Then we were able to carry this through into the studio and I think the album sounds spontaneous and natural because we didn't force it, we just let the right sounds come along."

The easy-listening music of Beau Dommage's gentle ballads balanced by catchy uptempo soft-rock songs offers a new and refreshing sound, uninfluenced by musical trends and gimmicks.

During the first year the group spent together the seeds of the music were sown. Like many new groups, Beau Dommage struggled to survive, playing small clubs and discotheques and each member occasionally took odd jobs to keep the books balanced.

But, as singer Marie-Michele Desrosiers remembers, "It was an exciting time; the music was just being born and we were beginning to realize there was something different about it, something special."

The group initially featured four musicians but later added drummer Real Desrosiers when it decided to branch out of a purely acoustic structure to include upbeat compositions.

Pierre Bertrand, guitarist, singer and composer, is aware of the limitations of making music in Quebec where, despite the accessibility of the market, "there is a saturation point . . .

"We are probably one of the top three bands in the province already," Pierre said.

"It doesn't worry us that before long we will reach a stage where we cannot get any more popular here. After all, writing, recording and playing our music is what we're concerned with above everything else and I don't see we'll tire of that just because there are no more goals to be achieved on the market here."

One of the major problems facing promotion of French-Canadian music outside the province, Pierre said, is the language barrier.

In general the potential market is limited to French-speaking countries in Europe, such as France and Belgium.

Beau Dommage has already opened up a channel into the Belgian market following the group's appearance at the French Song Festival in Brussels last July. Its performance impressed the Belgians and plans are under way to market some of the group's music there.

Beau Dommage is not discouraging English-speaking audiences, though.

"We don't want to hide in Quebec," Pierre said. "If audiences in the rest of Canada are prepared to accept us as we are, then we'll come out and play. But we'll never prostitute our music by singing it in English. If they want to hear us in French, then we'll play our music for them. Just the way we play it here."

Controlling Traffic

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — New traffic control devices are to be tested soon by the Washington State Patrol in the Seattle-Tacoma area. Each control system consists of a stationed atop a patrol vehicle which rests flat on the vehicle's roof when not in use. When needed, it can be raised to more than five feet for viewing from the rear of the patrol car. Signs will include arrows and other directions.

Toilets Float

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Last year California installed floating toilets in five mountain lakes and they proved so popular with fishermen that more are being proposed. These restroom boats cost $14,000 each and are being tested in the hope they will help prevent water pollution and enhance fishermen's pleasure.

Your Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

For Saturday, Oct. 28

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're likely to face opposition today from a source you'd least expect. Don't be too harsh. This person has some pressures he's loath to talk about.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your time won't be your own today. One who's done you a favor is going to call on you for help. Come through the way he did for you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you show favoritism in your little circle of friends today, you could unknowingly wound another's feelings. Be balanced in all dealings.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) While you know what you should do today, you may yield to pressures and get off course. Follow your own compass for best results.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You are responsible today and could read into casual remarks much more than the speaker intends. Ignore what you think you hear.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This is the day you must look a gift horse in the mouth. What you feel someone is doing for you may be just a ploy to further his ends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You and your mate will be on different wavelengths today. Guard against embarrassing another by asserting your differences in front of her.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Time and energy are not sufficient to permit you to accomplish all the tasks you've set today. Don't bite off more than you can chew and choke on it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Avoid social functions today which include people whom company you don't enjoy. You say something sharp to them with which you'd bit your tongue later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're an eager beaver to wrap up a deal that's been pending. You're not a good finisher, today. You may talk to much and lose everything.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't challenge a friend today on an issue on which he has very strong opinions. His feelings are already close to the surface. You could bring them to a boil.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Keep on top of obligations. You may wind up with a red face if others have to remind you of what is due them.

By Oswald (and) James Jacoby

Even if Holmes had elected to pass his 13-high-card points he would have wound up in three notrump.

As anyone can see a spade lead and heart return would beat him two tricks. But no one can really find fault with Scurry's choice of a heart.

After a heart lead it would have been a simple matter of the great deceptive lie made four odd by means of successive diamond finesses, but he managed to wind up one in the spot.

It seems that Scurry led his deuce of hearts instead of the conventional fourth best. Holmes' queen covered East's 10 and he led a club to dummy's king. East took her ace and led back the five of hearts.

Holmes took his ace and went into deep thought. That five could have been the lowest from an original holding of jack-10-6-5. In that case the deuce of hearts would have been from king-4-3-2. Holmes decided that was the case so he led a spade to knock out that ace and insure his contract.

The answer is a very strong yes. In the ACOL system, opening bids of two in any suit playing strength, but not enough high cards for the standard American two bid.

To Your Good Health

An Apple a Day Is Not Enough

By G. C. Thestesen, MD

Dear Dr. Thestesen: Can a diet consisting of apples (one a day) and bananas be harmful?

The reason for this diet is to stabilize my blood sugar. It's either too high or too low. A couple of years ago my doctor told me I was a mild diabetic. I used to take pills, but discontinued all medication.

At present I'm not under the supervision of a doctor. I'm 59-years-old and female. — A.A.D.

Your letter has confused me.

If you are not under the supervision of a doctor, how do you know your blood sugar levels are? You certainly cannot have the equipment necessary to conduct "kitchen" tests. And if you are going only on the basis of do-it-yourself urine tests, you may be fooling yourself.

The condition of the urine is not necessarily an indication of the condition of the blood. If you were once suspected of having diabetes, you should find out if there is still cause for suspicion, and I'm afraid it's only a "doctor can provide the answer to that.

Diabetes cannot be cured — only controlled.

Your apple a day may keep the doctor away, but, in your case, I'm afraid not for very long. The diet you mention is unsatisfactory.

I suggest you end the attempt to treat your diagnosis. Consult a dietician and chemist.

Dear Dr. Thestesen: Could you please print some information regarding tapeworms? I've heard so many pros and cons about it I am completely confused.

Just what causes them? What are the reliable warning signs? What does one do to remove them? I've heard curing them is a very painful process. — Mrs. R.M.

This is an intestinal infestation by parasites, mainly from improperly cooked or raw beef, pork or fish. The worm that develops is flat and large like, from which it gets the name.

The cause is the eating of eggs (larvae) or a part of a worm with the poorly cooked or raw meat.

Also, unclean fruits and vegetables — contaminated in handling or grown in an area contaminated by human wastes — can be the source.

In the intestine, the head of the worm attaches to the bowel wall and its body grows in segments, the beef-type worm often reaching 15 to 30 feet in length.

There may be only mild symptoms of digestive disturbance, a mild diarrhea, for example. There may be hunger but not ordinarily appetite and weight are not affected.

The first conclusive symptom is the presence of the worm segment in the stool, or even in the vomitus in stool specimens.

The treatment is not painful, but it can be lengthy — until the head of the parasite is removed. Atabrine (quinacrine hydrochloride) is the usual medicine, and it must be prescribed. The harsh treatment if you remember may be a reference to aspidium oleoresin, which can produce toxic effects and is no longer used. Catharticas are also given in this therapy.

With closer inspection of meat and other food sources, the tapeworm problem has been reduced greatly in recent years.

Dear Dr. Thestesen: What would be the cause of a discharge from the nasal tissues like pus and has an odor. Would it be some infection? How would you get an infection in the navel? — Miss E.M.

This is usually a fungus infection. Some belly buttons are deep, and material can get into them and not be removed by ordinary bathing. The area should be cleansed with a cotton swab.

There are preparations your doctor can prescribe to clear up the infection. One is a hydrogen peroxide preparation. This liquid can be "puddled" (for want of a better term) into the belly button while you are lying down. Another is a gentian violet solution which is painted on with a swab. This latter preparation stains the skin and would rule out bikini swimsuits for awhile.

You really should see a doctor about this if only to determine the exact nature of the problem.

Family Welfare Up 20 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States welfare expenditures shot up 20 per cent in the last fiscal year as the rolls of the biggest family assistance program climbed to a record high, the department of health, education and welfare reported Thursday.

The report said the number of persons receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) dipped slightly last June for the second straight month after being pushed steadily upward by the recession the previous nine months.

Total welfare spending in fiscal 1975 ending last June got reached $22.6 billion, up 20 per cent or $3.8 billion over the previous year.

Monthly AFDC payments averaged $64.30 per recipient last year, compared with individual payments averaging $57.25 in 1974 and $53.35 in 1973.

The report said the AFDC caseload averaged 11,078,000 persons a month, an increase of 233,000 persons, which wiped out the previous year's decrease of 190,000 recipients.

Last year an average of 3.3 million families were on AFDC, 6 per cent more than in fiscal 1974.

AFDC rolls last June, the latest month for which figures are available, topped 11.3 million persons and the cost of money payments, medical care and welfare social services set a new monthly high of $2.1 billion.

Development Incentives Will Now Be Extended

OTTAWA (CP) — The Regional Development Incentives Act soon will be extended for five years, to 1981, Regional Expansion Minister Marcel Lessard said Thursday.

Mr. Lessard told the Commons that he will introduce legislation to extend the act from December, 1976. There would be no changes in current provisions.

Outside the Commons, the minister said the regional expansion department is facing problems with companies who wish to locate in underdeveloped regions but feel they cannot get into production by the time the incentives act expires next year.

An extension of the program would enable these companies to benefit from the program, if their applications were approved.

Under the five-year-old program, industries receive loans and grants for establishing plants in underdeveloped regions.

Regions designated for incentives include all of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and the Atlantic provinces, parts of Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia and all of Quebec except for the Montreal-Hull corridor.

Ottawa, Alberta Can't Reach Price Accord

OTTAWA (CP) — With a deadline only two weeks away, federal and Alberta governments officials have yet to reach agreement on the wording of an accord increasing domestic natural gas prices, Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie said Thursday.

Talks between the two governments are continuing on a formal document that will hike the increases on Nov. 1 to 45 cents a thousand cubic feet, an amount they agreed to last spring and ratified in late-September meetings.

Unless some government action is taken, say officials of the National Energy Board, the increase to consumers Nov. 1 would be based on a provincial arbitration board award last spring boosting the price 70 cents a thousand cubic feet.

The government agreement on price would add about $65 to annual heating bills of consumers using natural gas for heating, while the arbitration board price would add $195 a year.

Although there is no disagreement between the governments on price, their lawyers are having trouble, problems wording sections of the accord dealing with the sharing of increases in gas export prices.

When Ottawa announced last spring that the export price on gas shipped to the United States would go to $1.60 a thousand cubic feet on Aug. 1 and $1.80 on Nov. 1 from $1 prior to Aug. 1, it said the additional money would be shared among all gas companies on the basis of how much they now produce.

National Gallery Gets Surrealistic Painting

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Gallery has acquired its first painting by the Spanish surrealist Salvador Dali, a tiny greenish-ochre work entitled Gala and the Angelus of Millet Immediately Preceding the Arrival of the Conic Anamorphoses.

Dali put much detail in the tiny painting—about 9¼ by 7¼ inches—while leaving room for large areas of architectural flatness. The painting was done in 1933.

The purchase price was not disclosed, in line with gallery policy.

Gala was the wife of the surrealist poet Paul Eluard when Dali met her in 1929. She now is the artista wife.

In the 1930s, Dali became fascinated by the Angelus, a sentimental painting by Jean-Francois Millet, showing a farmer and his wife pausing in a field to pray at the ringing of the angelus bell.

Dali found repressed sexuality in the 19th-century master's painting and reproduced it in increasingly surrealistic ways in some of his own paintings.

Hospital Union Challenges Controls

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A union representing 4,200 workers in southwestern Ontario hospitals and other health-care institutions urged the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) Thursday to challenge the federal government's selective wage-and-price controls.

Local 220, London and District Service Workers Union, sent a telegram to CLC president Joe Morris, recommending that he call a meeting of CLC affiliates to prepare a plan opposing the guidelines.

The union said the meeting should include government employees, teachers and other labor groups not associated with the CLC.

Prime Minister Trudeau "arrogantly and deliberately uses the workers of this country as a scapegoat by perpetuating the myth that workers' wages are the main cause of inflation," it said.

Ottawa Contributes $8.8 Million Towards Legal Aid in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government contributed about $8.8 million to legal aid programs in nine provinces and the Northwest Territories during the year ending March 31, 1974, Gerard Laprise (SC—Ahuntsic) was informed in the Commons Thursday.

In a written reply, he said the money helped pay lawyers in about 60,000 criminal cases across the country, including 175 murder cases in Quebec and 50 in Alberta.

Nearly $1 million in federal funds went to Ontario, where 8,720 of the 22,386 legal aid cases involved theft charges. The next highest category was narcotics charges at 2,505, followed by 2,409 assault cases.

Quebec drew about $2 million, where the catch-all category "other" was followed by theft, assault and drug cases. Altogether there were 18,209 legal aid cases in Quebec.

British Columbia was next with 11,198—4,052 theft cases and 2,487 drug cases—taking $1.1 million in federal funds.

Theft, assault and drugs were the most common charges in almost every province. Saskatchewan was not included because it did not draw any federal funds.

The federal payment and the number of cases in other provinces: Newfoundland $75,372 for 270 cases; Nova Scotia $254,500 for 1,728 cases; Prince Edward Island $17,400 for 50 cases; New Brunswick $266,818 for 1,728 cases; Alberta $515,859 for 1,749 cases; Manitoba $463,015 for 1,434 cases.

McKeough Seeks City Help for Controls

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario municipalities must pull together to make the federal-provincial anti-inflation program effective and urge their employees not to demand more than 200 workers, Prime Minister Trudeau asked the provinces to co-operate by limiting the wage of provincial and municipal workers.

The controls limit wage increases to 10 per cent a year for all federal employees and agencies and for firms with more than 500 workers.

Darcy McKeough told the Municipal Liaison Committee Thursday.

He also predicted some tough times ahead, particularly for municipal workers.

Four Underworld Figures Murdered

MONTREAL (CP) — The bullet-riddled bodies of a young woman police say was "jacking for power" in the underworld, a male friend and his parents were found in an east-end tenement Friday.

Police said Colette Dupuis, 25, who had survived a previous underworld attempt on her life, was killed at the front door of a four-room, second-storey apartment.

Rene Ethier and his wife Alice, both 50, and their son Paul-Emile, 30, were then slain in their living room where they had been watching television, police said.

The shootings likely occurred more than 18 hours before the bodies were discovered Friday afternoon, a police spokesman said, adding that each of the victims had been shot several times.

Police believe that Dupuis, described as "the brains behind several robberies and hijackings" committed by gangs in the city's east-end, died after letting the killer or killers into the apartment.

The bodies were discovered after a neighbor, glancing into the apartment's open door, noticed Dupuis' body in the kitchen.

The neighbor called police, who rushed to the apartment shortly after 3:30 EDT Friday.

A police spokesman said indications were the slayings took place some time after 10 p.m. EDT Thursday.

Only the elder Ethier was fully dressed, police said. Both women were wearing night gowns and the younger Ethier was clad in jeans and a bathrobe.

Police said tenants in the building reported they heard nothing.

"Colette Dupuis was the brains behind a lot of crimes," a police spokesman said early Saturday. "She was the one who rounded up the guys to pull the jobs."

Her ambition almost cost her her life last summer, one police source said, when she was shot in an east-end cafe.

A police spokesman said detectives believe the three were innocent victims, killed because they were present at the slaying of Dupuis.

The shootings raised to 29 the number of gangland slays in Montreal Urban Community this year.

Earlier Friday, a shooting incident took the life of Jean-Claude Brisebois, 27, in front of his east-end Pointe-Aux-Trembles home.

Postal Situation

Both Sides Contiune Despite Tough Talk

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators for the post office and the 22,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) appeared today to be settling in for a heavy weekend of bargaining.

"We feel these are serious negotiations," said chief union negotiator Jean-Claude Parrot after almost 12 hours of talks Friday.

The post office and leaders of the CUPW, which represents postal clerks and mail sorters, reopened contract negotiations Friday morning in a final bid to avert a national postal strike.

Both sides have taken a tough stand in the touchy bargaining session.

Mr. Parrot said in an interview late Friday that "the most we feel it is not worth while we will use our (strike) mandate."

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said earlier in the day that the government has made contingency plans for the delivery of essential government mail in the event of a strike.

"I am not bargaining from a position of weakness," he told reporters.

Mr. Parrot would not comment Friday night on the progress of the talks, beyond saying that "we are still trying."

With the government's new selective wage controls in place, it appeared that the major bargaining points were the issues of premium pay for night and weekend shifts, union asks an end to the use of casual, non-union labor.

The newly-established anti-inflation review board must approve any post office contract exceeding the selective controls which limit annual increases to a basic 10 per cent in the first year of a contract for more than four million workers.

CUPW president Joe David-René Ethier and his wife son announced his intention Thursday night of going into the new bargaining session with the union's original demand for a 21-per-cent pay increase of $2.36 an hour to a one-year contract.

Mr. Mackasey has announced his support for a conciliation board proposal that would give inside postal workers a $1.70-an-hour increase in four raises over a 30-month period.

The average pay now is $4.50 an hour.

Biologists Plant Fish Eggs in Lake

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Sometime during the weekend Ontario ministry of natural resources biologists are expected to be planting 100,000 fish eggs near Main Duck Island in Lake Ontario.

It's a trial planting to determine if splake, a hybrid of speckled trout and lake trout, will survive in eastern Lake Ontario, said George Whitery, regional biologist based in Kemptville.

Although he describes the planting as a "small scale experiment" it's an organizational nightmare of waiting for proper weather conditions for diving and flying the eggs from Northern Ontario.

"We've planted splake in Lake Huron with great success," said Mr. Whitery.

He said this is the time of year when lake trout normally spawn and splake was chosen as they grow faster and mature earlier.

He said he's hoping the eggs will survive to hatch in the spring in waters where trout hasn't existed for 20 years: "We're not sure if the shoals are suitable."

Divers using video tape equipment will investigate the shoals around the island about 20 miles off shore near the U.S. border.

Algae and silt, he said, may interfere with the eggs and divers will be sent down once a month to check them out.

"Many years ago there used to be Atlantic lake trout but they're gone now, mainly due to the lamprey eel."

The lamprey population now is under control due to federal and provincial programs, he said.

"There may have been a change in the animal life in the lake over the years."

Tru-Glass May Hire More Than Expected

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Tru-Glass Ltd. could hire up to 130 employees before it completes its first year of business in Belleville — compared with earlier, more conservative estimates of initially hiring 40 employees.

Company comptroller John Malwiy said the firm will immediately hire 15 employees for training sessions to be held in December.

In light of current business trends, said Mr. Malwiy, "we are hopeful that we will double the initial employment before the end of the year."

Original plans were to have one shift working the plant. These plans have since been changed to incorporate two shifts.

Cornerstone Builders Ltd. in charge of plant construction believe the building located in the city's northwest industrial park should be completely finished by the end of December.

Mr. Malwiy said equipment is expected to begin arriving in November.

The plant will produce glass products such as windshields and windows for the transportation industry.

Teachers Save Financial Disaster in New York City

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City was another last-minute reprieve from financial default Friday, but officials say the city is still in grave trouble and only federal help can save it from collapse.

The city was rescued from possible fiscal disaster when the teachers' union agreed to use its pension funds to help refinance $423 million in debt obligations.

A complicated financial plan to meet about $1 billion in debts through November, however, is still not completed. Both in December and January the city faces a total of $2.16 billion in cash shortages with no source of the money in sight.

To consider possible ways the federal government might help with the post-November problem, the Senate banking committee resumes hearings today in Washington. Mayor Abraham Beame of New York is to testify Monday.

The decision by the teachers union to release the pension funds ended a day of concern in which the city's plight provided a least the first taste of the possible economic repercussions which some analysts say would follow default.

Bond trading all but halted and stock prices were down sharply in light trading. In Europe, currency trading came close to a standstill, and world gold prices rose in a pattern which suggested that the value of the U.S. dollar could be hurt if default were allowed to occur.

Gov. Hugh Carey sent a telegram to President Ford declaring that New York is "exhausting its resources" to avert default through November and that after that "the welfare of our citizens rests in the hands of our federal government."

Carey repeated his call for federal guarantees of the city's borrowings to allow it to raise money in private financial markets.

But at the height of Friday's crisis, White House Press Secretary Ronald Nessen said Ford "will not take action to prevent a New York City default."

And Ford himself said in an interview that "nothing I have done so far—and there must have been six or seven alternatives that have been suggested to me by a variety of people in and out of government—is an answer, and they all open potentially serious problems of one kind or another."

Budget cuts began earlier this week when Beame presented plans for trimming $200 million from this year's budget—an approach that could mean firing another 8,000 of 292,000 city employees in addition to 21,000 already dropped this year.

Pilots Misuse Locators

Forces Waste $1.3 Million On False Alarm Distress Calls

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — More than $1.3 million of the Search and Rescue (SAR) budget for Canada is being spent on responding to false alarms issued by emergency locator transmitters (ELT) since the devices have been made mandatory for all private aircraft, a spokesman for the Air Transport Command (ATC) said Friday.

Statistics from a Department of National Defence (DND) survey indicate only one per cent of all ELT instigated search operations are legitimate air distress calls, said Peter Hyphter, a senior civilian operations research adviser with the ATC.

The figures, collected during a three-month study from April - June 1975 record 381 ELT cases of which only four were real air distress alerts. There were 181 of the signals traced and the remaining 216 died out or were turned off before a location could be made.

The problem has existed since their use was ordered in January of 1973 but the production of a more suitable communication instrument has been limited by the companies and pilots desire to keep cost at a minimum, Mr. Hyphter said.

ELT's and crash position indicators are "sophisticated and expensive models, have been used in military and commercial flights for years with a high degree of success.

There are 19,000 private aircraft and about 20,000 private pilots in Canada but the ELT equipment for light aircraft, which are 40 times more likely to crash than commercial planes, lags far behind in quality, Mr. Hyphter said.

"Most of the problems we are having with the ELT's can be directly related to lack of education of the pilot, abuse of equipment and the efforts of the manufacturers to keep the cost of the unit at a minimum," Mr. Hyphter said.

"When the study to determine the range and durability of ELT's for private use was being done a prime consideration was the price the civilian pilot would have the bear," Mr. Hyphter said. "Not many people want to go out and spend more that $150-175 and as it was there was a lot of complaining about cost from pilots when it was made mandatory," he said.

Most ELT's don't have a visual or audible indicator so the pilot does not even know when the device is transmitting if he is not tuned to the emergency radio band. Theoretically, the mechanism is triggered by a certain amount of G—force, or increased gravity, induced by a sudden jolt like a crash.

Mr. Hyphter said of the alerts that go untraced most are obviously caused by the pilot who turns the device off before he can be pinpointed. The ones that are traced have been triggered by rough landing, the pilot inadvertently turning the ELT on or other human error.

Some of the units have been discovered emitting transmissions from a motel, an office shelf and two girls in a canoe were once located playing with the device.

Use of the ELT to pinpoint crash locations increases the efficiency of search operations by 13 per cent. Searches can last anywhere from 18 minutes, the shortest on record, said Mr. Hyphter to weeks and months.

Buffalo Stations Want To Jam Signal to Canada

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the operators of three Buffalo, N.Y., television stations have asked the United States Federal Communications Commission to jam their signals so they cannot be picked up in Canada.

In a Washington dispatch, the newspaper says the stations are WBEN, WKBW and WGR, affiliates of three United States networks—the Columbia Broadcasting System, the American Broadcasting Corp., and the National Broadcasting Corp.

The newspaper says this is the latest action in a dispute between the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) and U.S. broadcasters.

The Canadian government also has ruled that Canadian advertisers no, longer can claim tax deductions for advertisements carried on U.S. stations.

Education Beat

Agenda Might Attract Public

BY RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

About every ten months Belleville trustee Donald Prentice makes a concerted effort to find ways to attracting the public to regular meetings of the Hastings County Board of Education.

Last week he appealed to fellow trustees to place advertisements in the media notifying the public of the regular meetings, held the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

His concern is valid but misdirected. No doubt, there is an obvious attendance problem at the meetings. Normally, the audience consists of a few scattered people somehow connected to education. Either they are interested in one particular item or they are there to lap up some praise.

One notable exception is Pat March, president of the Hastings County Home and School Associations, who attends the meetings regularly.

First of all Mr. Thrush urges the board meetings be advertised. A good point but not enough to entice the public. What the board should do is make an effort to advertise important issues or presentations that may be dealt with at each meeting.

To go back one step the board sends the media an agenda for purposes of and prior to the meeting on the condition that its contents not be published prior to the meeting.

Trustees apparently get annoyed at being approached about a subject on which he or she has not done their homework. Once the agenda is released at the meeting the formality of a parliamentary procedure avoids any embarrassment.

So it is quite simple. Until the board makes an effort to improve its meetings and then a simple notice of the meeting time will not do.

A good deal of board meeting procedure is dull, complicated and often just requires a rubber-stamping from the trustees. It is little wonder the public is not interested. However, business is business and that's the board's problem.

There are some notable exceptions where the public would find the proceedings interesting and informative.

Case in point being last week's presentation on the board's out of school learning program by its director Wayne Brooks. Indeed an exceptional presentation and one that gave an accurate and honest portrayal of what the board is trying to do in this area.

The board room was also filled with displays depicting the out of school learning programs which by the way is often used by the general public.

This would have been an excellent opportunity for the board to advertise this presentation in hopes of sharing the information with the public. A presentation of this type is difficult for the media to report due to space limitations.

Another example of this pattern is that during the next couple of meetings the topic of electronic calculators in schools will be discussed and most likely a policy will be formed. There is much public interest in this matter.

Unless the public is aware of what is being discussed or deal with at board meetings the board's crusader Mr. Thrush will continue to be frustrated by public attendance.

Farm Machinery Demand Still High Say Dealers

By CLIFF KENTON
Staff Reporter

It has been a better year for the sale of farm machinery than expected, say a number of Belleville area dealers.

Peter Watson of Peterick Equipment Co. Ltd. Highway 401 and Wallbridge Road, said: "It's better than I figured it would be."

Large tractors, 65 horsepower and up, have been selling well if dealers could get them from manufacturers.

"They can't make the big tractors fast enough," said Mr Watson. He said demand for the big tractors is greatest in Western Canada and, mid-Western United States. Eastern Ontario gets only the surplus.

Russell Thompson of RR 7 Belleville said sales this year have been good despite increases in some pieces of about 50 per cent between Jan. 1974 and June this year.

"Farmers are funny. If they have money they'll spend it, they'll improve their equipment. Sometimes I wonder where they get the money from," said Mr. Thompson.

The busiest time of year for sale of farm machinery is May to November. The manufacturers year begins and ends in November.

John Orser of Allen Hadley Farm Implements Ltd., 371 North Front St., said it appears the new year will start out about the same as last year.

Don to the federal government wages and prices controls, he said: "We're going to see a lot of price increases one wouldn't normally have seen."

To ensure profits, said Mr. Orser, manufacturers will increase prices by the maximum allowed for the year and give farmers a cash rebate on purchases until production costs meet sale price.

Jack Rushdell of Allis-Chalmers, RR 5, Belleville, said sales this year were ahead of last year's.

Farm income this year, said Mr. Rushdell, has been relatively good.

Most sales have been to milk and hog producers. Due to beef prices, beef producers have had a bad year, and were not a big part of the buyer's market, dealers said.

Shortage of Big Tractors

John Orser of Allen Hadley Farm Implements Ltd., 371 North Front St., inspects one of the newest tractors in stock. It's worth about $30,000. He said it's been a good year for farm equipment sales but there is a shortage in eastern Ontario of large, high horsepower tractors. Most go to Western Canada and United States where demand is greater, he said.

NDP Says Controls Threat To Farmers

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat Les Benjamin says he views the anti-inflation board's intention to investigate marketing boards as a threat to farmers' incomes.

Mr. Benjamin (Regina-Lake Centre) said recent statements by the chairman of the new board, former Liberal cabinet minister Jean-Luc Pepin, and his vice-chairman, Beryl Plumptre, "clearly are against agricultural marketing boards."

He sought confirmation, in the Commons Thursday from Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan that "the government intends to allow the controls program to develop the best mechanism which agriculture producers now have for ensuring that their prices are related to costs of production."

Mr. Whelan replied that a well-run marketing board has nothing to fear from anyone.

New Mall Might Teach Merchants

By MARG HAVLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — If a shopping plaza were built on the outskirts of Picton the downtown core would be blighted says Prince Edward County Planner Rianaldon Ahmed.

Mr. Ahmed made this observation during a public meeting held last week to discuss the Picton-Hallowell urban area study. The planner explained that plazas constructed on the fringes of small towns usually prove detrimental to the central business sections. It's a fact of planning.

Planning may protect Picton's downtown core from plaza blight but the amuse bud already has attacked and, if unchecked, can only promote mall shopping in neighboring centres.

Plazas and malls are bright, clean and new with convenient facilities such as public washrooms. Downtown Picton looks dingy and dirty and there are no public washrooms.

Several Picton merchants take pride in their stores and offer customers attractive shopping atmosphere and well-maintained store fronts.

A handful have worked to provide patrons with the big city look in a small town. Windows are stylishly dressed and the merchandise displayed with flair. The customer receives courteous treatment and leaves feeling that his trade was appreciated.

Other merchants ignore the niceties of the buyer-seller game. Picton's Main Street shrinks under more than one tattered awning and a number of store fronts have peeling paint.

Several apparel shops accommodate their customers with fitting rooms obviously designed for midgets. The lighting is poor, the mirrors are small, there are no hooks on the doors and no clothes hangers.

More than one Picton department store lacks air conditioning and in last summer's heat wave both clerks and customers wilted in the aisles.

The town of Picton offers customers no free public washrooms. In fact, this is one convenience that money cannot buy as there are no pay toilets either.

In contrast with Picton's Main Street dotted by several poorly maintained store fronts, plazas offer a uniform neatness.

The Main Street of Wellington village within Picton up as a town whose slip is showing. The stores in this neighboring centre all are in good repair and the look is clean and fresh, not "intermittently tidy" as in Picton.

If Picton merchants are concerned with avoiding blight on Main Street they will focus their efforts on a restoration of the town's store fronts. There is a distinction between rustic and rundown.

Head in Sand Won't Solve Any Problems

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

Trenton seems to be an ill-informed community, about local issues.

Nearly 40 people had to be polled during a recent man-on-the-street study to find six who were aware that Trenton had the choices of remaining a separated town or joining Northumberland or Hastings Counties.

It is a sad situation when so few in an area destined for such tremendous growth are aware of the possible owners of development open to the town.

It seems the only time a resident makes an effort and learns about a contentious issue is when it will personally affect his pocket book, seemingly not concerned about future generations or the effect on the community.

Can town council be blamed for this obvious lack of interest in municipal affairs?

Council meetings are broadcast over the radio and the results are carried in two newspapers in town. Perhaps when council is holding one of its many caucus meetings it is only complying with the people's will which is saying we don't want to know?

Rising vandalism which is being blamed on young people, if indeed they are the guilty parties, is only a reflection of the low regard their elders display towards possessions and responsibilities.

If adult residents showed an interest and pride in the municipality its workings and possessions and the future, rather than exhibiting an "it will work itself out" attitude, local youths would have an example worth following and become encouraged in less destructive activities.

It is necessary and vital that some group, agency or just a single individual organize a program to show Trentonians what they are missing out on by not enjoying the satisfaction of being proud to live in this town.

Too long have the streets echoed with anti-Belleville sentiment, polluting the attitudes of the young and old.

Trenton is a good place to live, a strong and beautiful community with room for expansion and profitable growth.

It is not the Garden of Eden but neither are we, the residents, eternal innocents.

'Shortfall' Needs Close Watch

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

A few years ago, there was a subject that was extremely popular, epitomized by one word that was bandered about with great frequency. And that word was "ecology". Simply defined, ecology refers to the relationship between the organism and its environment. And in our case, man and his world.

Now, another term is currently popular — "Short fall" — a state of affairs where supply does not or cannot meet demand. We're familiar with the expression in terms of the world supply of foodstuffs, oil or natural gas.

Now, let me pose a question. What would happen to our "ecology" if we had a "short fall" in the world's supply of oxygen. And it's conceivable.

Because this vital life factor knows only two sources of origin: about 60 per cent — from the plankton of the sea and about 40 per cent from the green plants of the land. The plankton of the sea is being polluted out of existence at an alarming rate. Goodbye oxygen.

And every time we build a road, a plaza or a parking lot or lay waste to the earth's surface — we deplete the supply even more. By comparison, every time you germinate a seed and propagate it into a plant — you are contributing to the world's supply of oxygen. Now if that sounds like a minor contribution, let me say this. In a space of about 22 square feet you can grow to maturity about 1250 plants. If a million people did the same, then those efforts would become a major contribution.

And every time you grow a vegetable plant, you're adding to the world's supply of food. And while you may be taking the bread out of the supermarket's mouth, you could be putting food in the mouths of those who need it.

And as Mark Twain was reported to have said: "One thing that makes land a good investment — they aren't making any more of it." And if what NDP Leader David Lewis said to Premier Bill Davis is true, that arable land in this province is being gobbled up at the rate of 26 acres a day, then growing under artificial light in a controlled environment is going to become even more important in contributing to our ecology.

And there's another contributory aspect to indoor light gardening that a young lady brought up the other evening in a lecture class. What more thoughtful gift is there than a plant that you germinated and propagated to maturity, on which you lavished time and attention.

It's a gift that is personally yours. And a gift that will keep on growing in value, literally and figuratively, for months or even years.

Question: All questions are welcome and will be answered. Simply address your query to Ross Hawthorne, The Intelligencer, Belleville.

Political Opportunism and Next Election Factors in Anti-Inflation Moves

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Inflation has beset mankind, in one way or another, ever since the Phoenicians invented money to aid them in their domination of Mediterranean civilization.

In trying to check such an ancient and apparently inexorable process by imposing "severe restraints" on prices and incomes, the government of Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau is setting itself a giant task.

Its critics would say its a futile task—that controls are like "a cork in a fermenting bottle" (in the words of Richard M. Thomson, president of Toronto-Dominion Bank) and that a blow-up is inevitable once controls come off.

The history of anti-inflationary restraints is a chequered one.

Controls can cause enormous complications and disruptions in a free-market system, leading to black (and gray) markets and the waste of prodigious amounts of human time and talent.

On the other hand, they have sometimes worked—which nothing else seems to do where inflation is concerned.

Here, then are some of the reasons that may have led Canada's government to invoke the radically new restraint plan that Mr. Trudeau announced on Thanksgiving Day:

—There was a big burst of inflation this summer, especially in food prices. And there's no indication whatever that inflation will lose any steam on its own.

Energy costs are pointing sharply higher, and labor's wage demands are greater than ever before.

When prices of things at basic to the economy as labor, energy (including transportation) and food take big jumps, you can expect most other prices to rise accordingly—because of both necessity and opportunism.

Nature, too, plays a part. Bumper crops this year would have helped to keep the lid on prices of grains and other farm products. Now, no declines are expected in prices of meat, cereal or dairy products next year.

—But the political climate was right—and here Mr. Trudeau is an expert.

Last year, when he led his minority government into a general election, the course of political events was to ridicule his Tory opponents for proposing that controls on incomes and prices be introduced for 90 days, to break the public's inflation psychology.

In the fall of 1975 inflation—plus unemployment, the foreign trade deficit, labor productivity, capital investment and most other economic indicators—are much worse than in the summer of 1972.

That means that some sensible action to deal with inflation is politically acceptable now, whereas in 1972 the Trudeau government has a comfortable majority in Parliament.

And the removal of controls just before the next federal election, a few years from now, would give the Liberals a great blast-off into that campaign.

—The governments of the United States and the United Kingdom have not fallen back on the limp excuse that inflation is an international problem that must be solved on the international level.

Instead, they have demonstrated that anti-inflationary restraints actually work, and don't lead to rioting in the streets.

John Turner's resignation may have jolted the Trudeau government into the realization that Canada, too, ought to be doing something to prevent the economy of this country from going down the inflationary drain.

(That, of course, is speculation, since Messrs. Trudeau and Turner choose to maintain what they consider to be a gentlemanly silence about the underlying reasons for the former finance minister's resignation.)

—The business cycle is in the ascendant. The economy has a strength of its own, not unlike the tides of the sea, and will eventually show that strength regardless of what the political leaders may do.

At this juncture, most indications are that the world economy is recovering from recession—a recession so forlorn disaster—will continue to expand.

As industrial production increases, current shortages will be alleviated and one of the causes of inflation will be removed.

Thus the government, by taking an anti-inflationary stand now, will be able to claim credit for the almost inevitable economic improvement that lies ahead.

Economists at Wood Gundy Ltd., Canada's biggest investment dealers, predict that Canada's gross national product will be essentially unchanged in 1975, but will rise by six per cent in 1976 and five per cent in 1977.

What's in store for Canadians, as individuals?

You may not get the big pay increase that you thought you were in line for.

You could find yourself spending some—and perhaps a great deal—of your time looking for ways to get around the restraints. Time spent that way is time lost in productivity.

If you must borrow money, you probably won't find money if any relief from today's sky-high interest rates until inflation starts to abate.

If you have financial assets, such as cash in the bank and an investment portfolio, you will eventually find your purchasing power eroding less than in the past few years. But don't expect a return to the golden age of price stability.

The Rural Environment

A trend toward country living is reflected by the increasing number of new homes in the rural parts.

Hastings and Prince Edward counties are typical. New homes are springing up on country side roads.

But few if any of these are housing people who plan to engage in farming in any serious way. For the most part they are city folk who have decided to forsake the urban environment yet keep within easy distance and thus enjoy the best of both worlds.

Travel farther into the rural heart of this region and the core and life of the farm community are revealed.

But here there are few new homes, only those that have housed generations of farm families. Dating back, in many instances to the last century, many show their age but reflect the pride, integrity, and, self-sufficiency of those who till the soil.

The names on rural mail boxes in this Ontario heartland indicate the European as well as Anglo-Saxon origins of many on our farms. And this is interesting in relation to a report that has been issued by the Canadian Council on Rural Development.

The Council's brief says problems related to urban congestion apply to both Canadians and immigrants alike. And it says rural revitalization must take place before "Canadians are encouraged to stay in rural areas or before the Government will be successful in attracting migrants to non-metropolitan areas."

Just what is meant by "rural revitalization" is not spelled out, but the brief goes on to say that should policies be adopted which lead to such an objective, "there will be both a need for and space for immigrants with appropriate skills and aptitudes."

The Council has as its "chairperson" a woman in Professor Jane Abramson of Saskatoon, and its publicity release, mentioning 18 recommendations on immigration policy, makes a curious observation. It says that immigrants "should not be required to live with hardships and restrictions which Canadians themselves are not prepared to accept."

It is curious for instance in light of the fact that immigrants (who for the most part become Canadian citizens too) usually "rough it" better when the going is hard than is the case with the native born. A case in point: the nurses from other countries who take jobs in the Arctic which their contemporaries here tend to avoid like the plague. And indeed the farmers too who have come from Europe and have made a success of their calling in a new land.

The concept of "rural revitalization" though is a valid one. There may be a preference for the older farm homes that have stood the test of time, but the farmer, like his urban brother, should have the opportunity also to move with the times in housing as in other developments of the day. What about recreation for the young people, and opportunities to get together with other youngsters? There's 4-H of course, but there may still be gaps and needs to be filled.

Watch for Government Economies

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — There were a couple of things that Prime Minister Trudeau had to say in his talk to the nation which are worth sticking in the head and nursing a bit.

One was his explanation that wages and profits must be related to the increases in production of the country. If they are more than the increase they will be inflationary.

The second was his stress on the need for economy in government.

In these two points the prime minister could have been hitting at a good part of the gut question in inflation.

A key factor that a good many people don't appreciate today (including those in government) is that government spending now represents more than 40 per cent of the GNP and that insofar as economic improvement is concerned this is a weight.

As government spending contributes nothing to the national worth (it doesn't produce goods, or even services with a real value) this means we are left with a maximum of 60 per cent of the national effort with which to advance society.

Which, thanks to government spending, means our scope is strongly limited.

And in turn this means that government should be very reluctant about starting new spending, which it should be anyway but certainly it always isn't.

And a pertinent question now is if will it really take a sharp look.

There are few, if any, big one-shot savings that it can make.

The big proportion of government outlay goes on education and health and it is hard to do any substantial surgery in these fields.

But there is other smaller spending which can be cut and which, in total, could add to a good sum.

Last summer for example, the government spent free money on the lawn at the parliament buildings.

A lovely lawn, but really should government be doing it, particularly when it should be cutting down on spending. A few hundred thousand dollars would be involved and it could have been a few hundred thousand.

A close look at spending would probably uncover a good number of other examples of border-line spending which might be cut out.

It will be interesting to see if government now takes a look at these, and particularly if it defers from spending into such fringe spending in the future.

Its attitude will be a test of its bona fides.

Zambia's Economic and Communications Crisis

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Thomson News Service

Zambia hit hit the headlines in Canada with the shooting of two Ontario girls by Zambian soldiers, allegedly for straying into Zambian territory along the very sensitive and heavily guarded border between Zambia and Rhodesia.

But the country deserves our attention now for the kind of economic crisis she faces. This is due to the reduction in the world cost of copper and the growing difficulties of shipping out that commodity from a land-locked supplier.

Zambia's current balance-of-payment crisis is the classic one we have been told about many times in recent years which plagues the developing countries.

Many of them rely on a single commodity for most of their national income and often its price is at the mercy of world cartels over which the developing country has had no influence.

This is why so many countries calling cartels of the producing countries in bauxite, bananas, sugar, oil and copper have been formed.

Zambia is closely tied in with Chile and Zaire on the formation of a copper producers cartel. But it too has partly broken down over stark political differences.

The Chilean military junta is anathema to Zambia's socialist society as is the semi-capitalistic one of Zaire's ambitious President Mobutu.

But Zambia's current economic troubles which have brought the usual clamping of overseas use of foreign currency earned by Zambian students, teachers and businessmen abroad, has as much to do with her geography as world political differences.

This interior state of southern Africa relied on white-dominated Rhodesia for the rail shipment of her copper to the Mozambique ports of Lourenco Marques and Beira.

The Rhodesians currently in a new conflict with Zambia President Kenneth Kaunda over racial policies, have sealed the border, forcing the Zambians to ship the heavy commodity either across northern Africa to the Angolan port of Lobito or via the even more costly route to Dar-es-Salaam in Tanzania to the north.

This latter route makes use of the new Tan-Zam railway built by a Communist Chinese technology and labor. But Zambian copper then moves into a port already filled to overflowing with shipping supplying the pressing economic and industrial needs of Tanzania herself.

The Angolan route is now politically secure with black African liberation movements about to take over from the colonial Portuguese.

But even here the long-suffering President Kaunda faces the uncertainty that these politically sympathetic groups are engaged in a bitter civil war among themselves for ultimate control of the huge former colony.

The United Nations estimate Zambia's serious balance-of-payments will get worse not only because of copper export cutbacks, but also because the longer shipment routes could add $200 million to the transport costs of exporting the vital copper.

Zambia's growing economic problems may seem distant to ours. However, we are maintaining regular commitments through the United Nations and our own aid and assistance programs to bring about equilibrium in these emerging countries.

The plight of this relatively large southern African nation indicates how difficult it will be to achieve any of these long-term goals, given the many local conditions over which international agencies and concerned groups in the developed states have no control.

Broadcasts in French

The prospect of a French-language radio re-broadcast station in Belleville is welcome news for the French-speaking community.

There has always been a sizeable French-speaking community here, of which the Club Alouette is a part, but this move permitting re-broadcast of CBC French-language programs is recognition of the broadening cosmopolitanism of the community.

English is still the main means of communication here, but the French fact exists too. There may also be those in Belleville's ethnic mix who are not necessarily French but who have learned the language in childhood or at school and therefore have an affinity for it.

A resolution seeking a ban on the sale of margarine in Ontario was thrown out today by delegates at the annual convention of the Ontario Farmers' Union meeting in Guelph. Introduced by a farmers' union local at Marysville, near Belleville, the motion urged the Ontario government to follow the lead set by the Quebec government in banning margarine.

The Belleville branch of the Canadian Red Cross has transferred its headquarters to the Kiwanis Centre on Dundas Street. Officials have been seeking suitable quarters for some time and they feel the Kiwanis Centre will fill their needs. Rooms had been provided for them in the Church Street Armories which have been recently renovated, but difficulties in getting the quarters felt the locality would not be suitable.

Complaints over the slowness of the traffic light on the four corners were shown to be justified this week following a test checkup of the light. Constant wear and the formation of grime in the inner workings caused the inefficiency. The unit will be replaced today by another lit box which has been overhauled and cleaned.

Special Communicator's Girl Friday Does Whiz Job for Media

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

Ottawa — Guy calls from out of town.

Wants to know how deeply the federal government was involved in the restructuring of a certain labor-intensive manufacturing industry through the rationalization of a couple of multinational corporations.

Was it last year, or two years ago?

And did the figure on federal funds run $150 million?

Just like that.

What to do?

Call that section of Industry Trade and Commerce doing business with that particular manufacturing sector, of course, and ask to speak to the Director.

"Sorry, he's at a seminar all day at the Conference Centre."

Then how about his assistant?

"Sorry, he's at language school."

Then perhaps the Number Three man?

"Just stepped out of his office. Sorry."

Well, was there anyone there who might have the answers?

"Not really, unless you want to leave your number or call back later.

But surely, there has to be somebody with a clue among all those people whose names are spread across two pages of the government telephone directory as experts in particular industry and who might have heard about some government funding for rationalization?

"Oh, that's in the hands of a special task force — I'll give you the number — call Mr. So-and-So."

The call is made.

"Sorry, but he's in with the deputy and won't be available all day."

Then perhaps his senior aide?

"He's on holidays."

Maybe one of his other assistants?

"On their coffee break."

Anyone then? How about you?

"The e's nobody available, and I don't know anything about it."

But there must be 5,000 people on the staff over there; somebody's got to know something.

"Yeah, about that; but I'm not sure."

The department fills a new office tower and it lists 71 names in its information staff, not counting secretaries and pigeon, messengers and office boys.

"Yeah, I know, but I can't think of any of them who have answers."

Well, leader, huh?

"Well, why don't you give our special communicator (yep, they do have such a guy) a call. I hear his files are fantastic."

Might as well, nothing else has worked.

The Communications Specialist is called.

"Sorry, he's out."

So who's supervisor?

"But maybe I can help you."

The messenger didn't go for coffee on the way, didn't take his lunch break, didn't spend an hour on the Mall ogling the legs. Didn't have twenty other drops to make.

He came straight over from the federal tower to the Press Gallery with the two ministerial statements.

Time: 12:10 p.m.

Fantastic.

Call up the Special Communicator when he returns to say thanks and tell him what a great gal he has sitting in for him. Only, incredible, doesn't need a diagram to understand. Knows what's required, how to get it and how to move it fast. Move it not later, not tomorrow, not by mail, not after lunch, But now, in 20 minutes.

The special Communicator says as he gives news service hand he and his staff know that news is now.

THE UNEXPLAINED

What's Impossible?

For me, one of the most puzzling parts of the unexplained is why scientists go on making cocksure statements about what is and is not possible.

Every day, it seems, some noted custodian of the revered truths of science intones that "healing miracles are impossible," or "ESP can't possibly exist" or "the positions of the planets can't possibly influence human life." And so on.

Well, it's profitable to consider similar pronouncements made by eminent scientists in the past. Such an exercise serves as an antidote to the trend toward know-it-all scientism — the making of science into a religion pretending to a greater infallibility than any pope ever claimed.

This column is devoted to famous and not-so-famous examples of men of science who were sure that what was not explained in their day couldn't happen.

Seventy years ago Simon Newcomb, mathematician and astronomer, was considered by many the greatest scientist in the United States. He was the first American since Benjamin Franklin to be made an associate of the venerable French Academy.

In an article in The Independent magazine of October 23, 1903, Newcomb proved conclusively that heavier-than-air flight was impossible.

"The demonstration that no possible combination of known substances, known forms of machinery and known forms of force, can be united in a practical machine by which men shall fly long distances through the air, seems to me as complete as it is possible for the demonstration of any physical fact to be," Newcomb wrote.

Three months later, on December 17, 1903, Orville and Wilbur Wright made the first powered flight in the history of mankind using a combination of known substances, known forms of machinery, and known forms of force.

Even then, Newcomb hadn't learned his lesson. In 1906 he told a reporter who asked the great man if passenger planes were a future possibility: "No, because no plane could carry the weight of anyone besides the pilot."

Astronomers seem to make particularly lousy prophets. In May, 1907, Britain's Astronomer Royal, Dr. Richard Woolley — holder of that nation's top astronomical post — was asked if space travel was a future possibility.

"Space travel," said the great scientist, "is utter bilge!"

Five months later the Russians put the first Sputnik into orbit and today, less than 20 years later, man has walked on the moon and sent rockets hurtling past Jupiter to the stars beyond.

And speaking of rockets, on December 3, 1945, Dr. Vannevar Bush, the high priest of all U.S. scientists working on the war effort, told a Senate committee that intercontinental rockets were nothing to worry about.

"Technically, I don't think anyone in the world knows how to do such a thing," intoned the great scientist and advisor to presidents, "and I feel confident that it will not be done for a very long period of time to come, if ever."

Even a truly great scientist, a real giant, can be as fallible as the next man. Ernest Rutherford of Cambridge University was considered one of the fathers of atomic physics. He was one of the first to chart the intricate microcosmic universe within the atom.

Yet on September 12, 1933, Lord Rutherford told a meeting of scientists: "Anyone who expects to get a source of power from the splitting of atoms is talking moonshine!"

In 1942 — nine years later — Enrico Fermi, at the University of Chicago, initiated the world's first controlled nuclear reaction, paving the way for the atom bomb and ultimately the peaceful use of that stupendous power which Rutherford called "moonshine!"

Is it any wonder that an explorer of the unexplained my motto is: "I never said it was possible; I just said it happened!"

Oswald: "Sherlock Holmes — Bridge Detective' will be successful that Frank Thomas has produced a sequel called 'The Return of Sherlock Holmes — Bridge Detective.'"

Jim: "The hands are interesting and almost all show the great detective at his best. However, even Sherlock is not perfect and today we see him making a rare slip."

Oswald: "Sherlock deduced from the bidding that a trump lead would be the best defense. It turned out not to be."

Jim: "Betty Castle, the lady expert sitting South, wasted no time end playing the defense. She won the trump, led a spade to dummy, ruffed a spade, led a second trump, ruffed dummy's last spade and led a diamond."

Oswald: "Holmes and Watson took three diamond tricks and then Watson had to lead a club. Betty played for the club honors to be divided and wrapped up the rubber."

Jim: "Had Holmes opened a diamond there would have been no end play and no way to make the contract."

ASK THE JACOBYS

A Missouri reader wants to know if it is true that Bryant McCampbell of St. Louis invented the 4-3-2-1 point count.

The answer is that back in 1915 McCampbell wrote his friend Milton Work suggesting that for notrump valuation he should count an ace as 4, a king as 3, a queen as 2 and a jack as one point. Work adopted this and for many years it was called the Work count. Goren extended it to suit bidding by adding one point for each doubleton, 2 for each singleton and 3 for each void. Today, it is called either the point count or the Goren count.

Charlie Wendell demonstrates his newly-found skill picking apples.

Family's Success Can Be Measured in Bushels!

By ISABEL HUGGAN

Thinking of trying something you've never done before but worried about taking a chance? Go ahead! Win a little luck and a lot of work you can 'make your life turn out the way you want it.

Need proof? Take a look at the Wendell family, Charlie and Gail and their four children, Mary Lynn, 15, Carol, 14, Kelly, 12, and Lee, 11.

Until last year, none of them had so much as picked an apple off a tree. But they decided to take a chance and make a change, sold their home in Trenton, and bought a 148-acre farm on the Gallivan Road with an orchard of 200 trees.

Now they know more about apples than they ever dreamed was possible, and they're learning more all the time. In the process, they've turned an orchard that had long lain idle into a growing concern again.

They moved to the farm in July, 1974, and found the autumn yield of Macintosh apples was about 20 bushels — plenty for their first experience picking, they say. This year, however, they got 800 bushels of these apples, and a "couple of hundred bushels of Courtlands," says Mr. Wendell. The orchard also produced plenty of Duchess and Wealthy apples in early summer, plus Spies, and some older varieties such as Tolman Sweets and Baxters later in the season.

The reason, of course, has been careful pruning and spraying, done by Mr. Wendell. A novice on the farm scene — both he and his wife grew up in Ottawa and have no background for the kind of life they now lead — he admits he's had a lot of help, and shows you a cardboard box full of papers.

"The provincial Department of Agriculture is just great," he says. "They've got free pamphlets on everything you need to know. Their soil maps helped me decide to buy this place, once I saw how good it would be for crops. Their booklet on wells helped me hook up our well the 1200 feet to the house, something I'd never done before."

In fact, just about everything he's done in the past few months has been something Charlie Wendell hadn't done before. A meteorologist at the CFB weather office in Trenton, he still calls himself a "hobby farmer", but is becoming more and more involved with his new projects. Armed with his books, he's done re-wiring and re-plumbing in the old farmhouse, has put in 100 new apple trees, 6,000 strawberry plants, three acres of sweet corn and 70 acres of grain that he share-crops with a neighboring farmer.

From another book he got enough information to give him the confidence to start seven hives of bees. "I'd always been afraid of bees and wasps," he says, "but with the right equipment I feel a lot safer, and I like the bees now."

When the Wendell kids come home from school, they're able to dip into the family honey pot for a sweet treat before supper, since their father extracted more than 100 pounds of honey this fall.

Mrs. Wendell is just as busy as her husband, with a garden in the summer to take care of, and a house that is still being renovated. And of course, there's the apples. Baskets and baskets and baskets of apples, to be picked and sorted and sold, new jobs for all the family.

Hail damage to many of the apples this summer prevents them being sold at the Stirling market where grading and eye appeal is important to sales. But the apples, still in good condition, are sold by the Wendells at their farm.

There have been some problems and costs the Wendells didn't foresee but they are thriving in their new environment. Although the children find the adjustment to country life more difficult than their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wendell comment about the helpfulness and friendliness of their neighbors.

"When farm women I meet here say, 'Come and visit me,' they really mean it," says Mrs. Wendell.

Working on the farm means fewer fishing trips and other activities the family used to have time for. And sometimes it seems as if the work will never be finished.

But that's part of the reason Mr. Wendell is so happy about how things have turned out. "There's always something to do," he says.

Gail Wendell and her son Lee sort a bushel of "Macs" for a customer.

NFU Surveys Farm Women

Farm wives may not do more work than city wives, but they certainly do more work without pay.

Hoping to gather supportive statistics on this, and other related matters, the National Farmers' Union is conducting a survey across Ontario. Questionnaires, sent to 2,000 farm wives, will be collected at the end of October.

Heading the survey is Elva Kerr of Campbellford, NFU women's advisory member for the Ontario region.

"We hope, with this survey, to help push legislation through so that women can get paid for working for their husbands," she says. "As it is now, farmers are not allowed to declare their wives as hired hands. Yet, since hired hands are harder to find now, more and more wives are doing this work."

With the help of a $6,800 federal grant from the Secretary of State and a smaller provincial grant, the NFU will publish the survey results and a brochure later this year. Mrs. Kerr, and the other women working with her on the survey, are also preparing an information program based on the survey results.

"We need colored slides of women doing work around the farm," says Mrs. Kerr.

Any kind of work at all, in the garden, fields or barns, is suitable for the slide program. Anyone having suitable slides they could lend Mrs. Kerr, should send them to her at RR 4, Campbellford.

ALPHA DELTA KAPPA

The Lambda Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa, a sorority of women educators, met recently at Helen Calnan's cottage on Consecon Lake.

Grace Anderson presented the various programmes outline for the coming year by the Programme Committee. It was decided that meeting nights be rotated in order to give an opportunity to the members involved in various night courses during the week.

The evening featured a report by Clara Adams who attended the Alpha Delta Kappa conference held at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, Los Angeles, in July. The theme of the Ninth International Conference was "Positive Approach and Continuing Action." Clara Adams bore greetings to her from Ruth Calhoun, Grand President of the International Sorority.

The keynote speaker, Dilloo Neal, past-president of the A.D.K. Association for husbands, elaborating on his theme "Wake up, make up and go" stated that the purpose of education is to educate the mind not stuff the memory. Further points raised were that man must rise above machines and learn how to think, he must lose or use opportunities; that everyone wants to be loved, admired and respected. He stressed the desire of humanity for security, stimulation, opportunity and identity.

Ann Colbourne thanked Clara Adams for her concise presentation and for representing the Lambda Chapter from Belleville in Los Angeles

'Buy - Buy - Buy - Buy' Begins on Sunday

On a recent holiday in a large U.S. city I was awed by the number and variety of two things: restaurants and shopping centers. Within a few miles of main street there were specialty restaurants for every taste: roast beef sandwich restaurants, pancake restaurants, hamburger stands, pie and coffee all night restaurants, chicken, pizza, fish and chips ... ad nauseam. And sandwiched between, so to speak, were shopping centers of remarkable dimensions. One even featured a completely enclosed amusement park complete with rides and side shows. Besides their actual existence, the most shocking things was that they were open seven days a week. Many major supermarkets were open 24-hours a day.

Shopping, it seems, and eating in restaurants, is the major American past-time, replacing most other forms of entertainment. And to judge from shoppers I saw, its mostly on credit.

I can remember standing in the midst of this BUY-BUY-BUY atmosphere and thinking "Wow, I'm glad it's not like this at home."

Now I guess what I came home to find: Right in a battle over whether supermarkets would stay open on Sunday. I suspect that that's the way things started in the United States and after exposure to the end result I must add that my vote is for anyone who asks me - is for Sunday closure.

Why?

Believe it or not, you eat 11 pounds of ketchup every year.

Do at least you do if you're an average Canadian.

Besides that, you eat 12 pounds of fresh tomatoes, 11 pounds of canned tomatoes, 13 pounds of tomato juice and 20 pounds of tomato paste.

You think that's a lot of tomatoes, keep in mind that you also eat 72 pounds of meat, fish and poultry along with 108 pounds of sugar. Not to mention seven pounds of lard, 24 pounds of oils and fats and 10 pounds of margarine.

You drink 274 pounds of milk and use some of it in six pounds of cereal. Twenty dozen eggs, four pounds of mushrooms, more than five pounds of baked beans, 480 cups of tea and 430 cups of coffee and 3.5 pounds of cocoa are consumed by the average person.

How have eating habits changed over the years?

Canadians now consume 186 pounds a year of chicken, beef and pork compared with 140 pounds a year during 1926. We're eating more sugar, more than twice as much fat and oil and much less milk. We're eating twice as much cheese as we did in the 1960s and 20 pounds less per year wheat flour. Vegetable consumption has gone up and so has fresh fruit. And we're eating twice as much rice and even more potatoes then we did 25 years ago.

Women's Wage Control Protest 'Phoney and Far-fetched': Lalonde

OTTAWA (CP) — Phoney and far-fetched were the words Marc Lalonde, minister responsible for the status of women, used Wednesday to describe a protest by a group of women who said wage controls will widen the salary gap between men and women.

"There is an element of truth in the statement," Mr. Lalonde told a conference of management representatives from government, unions and business, organized to ensure that the cause of International Women's Year does not die Dec. 31.

"Even with the catch-up exemptions women will be behind, but I remind you that there is a ceiling to these increases of $1,400 and that these guidelines are not a permanent feature of our society," the minister said.

The group of about 30 women had demonstrated outside the federal conference centre, carrying placards which read "Equal pay for equal value jobs" and handing out leaflets which said, among other things, "Wage and price controls keep women's wages down."

"Wage and price controls calculated on a percentage basis are discriminatory against the lower paid workers. The gap between men's and women's wages will increase over the next few years under this plan," the women said in a statement.

"It is a phoney argument and far-fetched in relation to the guidelines," Mr. Lalonde said in an interview. "If there were no wage and price controls would they say that the gap would disappear?"

The minister said women may win higher increases under the wage guides "which make exceptions for the elimination of sex discrimination in any practices."

Under the legislation an employer can apply for an increase above those recommended by the guides if he or she can demonstrate that the increase was necessary to eliminate any discrimination in pay practices.

The demonstrators also accused the government of backing down on its 1972 endorsement of a convention in the International Labour Organization's code which provides equal pay for work of equal value.

"There should be a good public debate over the description of equal value," between human rights legislation, which deals with equality of women, and pay up in the legislature, Mr. Lalonde said.

Vitamin Laws Stir Protest

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Canadian Health Food Association says about 45,000 letters have been sent to the Ontario government to protest a provincial law which classifies most vitamins as drugs and says they must be sold by pharmacists.

Willie Pelzer, Ontario chairman of the association, said the form letters say pharmacists have a monopoly and that customers should be allowed to buy vitamins in potencies and retail outlets of their choice.

The association is advising its members in Ontario to cut off tissue selling the vitamins and says it will fight the Health Disciplines Act proclaimed last July 14.

Potatoes Are Full of Food Value If They're Not Pared and Drowned

If a potato could talk, it would probably bewail the fact that it is all too often thickly pared and cooked in quantities of water sufficient to drown it.

To get the most food value from potatoes, cook them whole in their jackets in as little boiling water as possible, suggest Food Specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food. If potatoes for boiling have to be peeled, keep the paring thin. Once pared, potatoes should be cooked immediately.

To speed cooking, cut potatoes in pieces and cook in as little boiling water as possible in a tightly-covered pan. Although the largest amount of exposed surface tends to increase the loss of nutrients, this may be offset by the shorter cooking time.

To achieve the best flavor and appearance and to retain vitamins, do not overcook potatoes. Cook only until they can be pierced easily with a fork. Cooking times vary with size, shape and type of potato.

Drain the potatoes as soon as they are cooked so that they won't get water-logged. Further to let steam escape. If necessary, shake the potatoes in the pan over a low heat to dry them.

Food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, are often asked to explain why some potatoes bake well while others are soggy when cooked the same way. They say that the baking quality of a potato depends partly on its "specific gravity".

Tests show that a potato's dry matter content, or specific gravity, has such influence on the cooking quality and best cooking use for a particular potato. Usually, the potato is approximately 20 per cent solids and 80 per cent water. The higher the solids content, the less water there is. A potato with a high solid content should bake well.

A simple test to determine whether a potato is better suited for baking or boiling is to place it in a brine solution (1 cup table salt to 12 cups water). If it sinks, it has a high solid content and is good for baking. If it floats, it has a low solid content and is good for boiling.

Another component of cooking quality is the size of the starch granules. A potato with small granules is never a good baker. For example, if it has high specific gravity, the texture will be pasty or almost "chewy". Conversely, if the specific gravity is low, it will be soggy.

On the other hand, a potato with large granules is very dry and mealy when the specific gravity is high but it is still acceptable when it is low. "Netted Gem" has large granules and is always a good baker, regardless of its specific gravity.

Potatoes can be classed into boilers or bakers depending on starch content, with considerable overlapping from one class to another. If you bake a boiler, it won't be as dry and fluffy as you might expect. If you boil a baker, which is mealy by nature, it will tend to break up when boiled.

Flying Model Planes Is Safe and Exciting

EDMONTON (CP) — The sport of flying model airplanes has come a long way since the planes could fly only in a circle.

"You need co-ordination and dexterity just like other athletes," says Harold Tom of Edmonton, who has flown model planes in three world championships.

The planes, which cost up to $1,000, are operated by remote control, with directions, speed and turns up to the operator.

Merv Stewart, vice-president of the Edmonton Radio Control Society, said the sport has improved as much in the last 15 years as the aviation industry has improved in the last 50.

"We now can fly models, of aircraft, even four-engine jets," he said. "The latest thing is the helicopter."

Some planes have retractable landing gear, with the wheels drawn in after takeoff.

"It's very exciting, knowing you are going across the ground at speeds between 180 and 190 miles an hour," Mr. Tom said, noting the model planers can do everything a real plane can do and more.

A nearby flying field used by the society is often used by Second World War model Mustangs or Spitfires, and annual flying competitions have been held for 16 years.

Entrants are required to do pattern flying, in which planes have prescribed movements they must complete, and typhoon flying, in which as many as six planes go along a course.

When planes crash—sometimes because of the operator's inexperience and sometimes because radio signals get mixed up—they are not a total write-off.

"Normally I'd be able to take all the hardware and reuse it," said Bruce Bender, an Edmonton biologist and model-plane buff.

There's one other consolation, he said.

"If you crash, you don't kill yourself."

'IWY Useful' Says Cooke

SASKATOON (CP) — The chairman of the federal advisory council on the status of women at the International Women's Year has served a useful purpose in Canada.

Dr. Kaile Cooke of Ottawa said in an interview Wednesday the year has provided a platform for women to tell the country that the problems affecting women's rights are real and are felt by women across the country.

Dr. Cooke was in Saskatoon to attend a meeting of the federal and provincial advisory councils on the status of women.

She said that although the problems of women are out in the open, progress in obtaining equality for women has been slow.

Allan Sullivan, attorney-general of Nova Scotia and another delegate to the conference, told interviewers the judiciary needs to get tougher with criminals.

He said he has been advising judges in Nova Scotia that they are being too soft on hardcore criminals.

Ann Landers

If You're Sane and Sober, Ann Says, A Plastic Bag on Your Head Is Okay

Dear Ann Landers: How COULD you, even in the name of humor, print the suggestion that a cook put a plastic bag over his head while peeling onions in order to avoid the fumes? Some unthinking reader is sure to try this suggestion and suffocate! I urge you to warn your readers against the use of plastic bags in such a manner, and especially to keep these things out of the reach of children!—Deeply Disappointed

Dear Disappointed: I was astonished at the number of letters (and phone calls!) I received from readers who were upset by the suggestion that the onion peeler put a plastic bag over his head to avoid teary eyes and a running nose.

There is no way an adult can sanitize if he is in his right mind and sober.

As for keeping plastic bags out of the reach of children—now THAT makes some sense.

Dear Ann Landers: What can be done to protect yourself against a vicious relative? My husband's older brother has tried to dominate our lives as well as the lives of his other brothers and their families from the moment we married into the family.

There were five boys and each of the wives has had to run to save her marriage from this eldest brother's venomous attacks. He writes letters to his younger brothers at work and tells them what their wives have been doing that he thinks is wrong. He then suggests "proper punishment."

It doesn't stop there. He writes lurid reports on what he hears about their children and doesn't hesitate to outline what should be done about their "terrible behavior." In the meantime his own kids have been in trouble with the police and a frightened mouse of a wife is candidate for a mental ward.

Please come out swinging. We need your help.—Beat Down

Dear B.D.: No man or beast could become that powerful unless someone gave him the authority. The Gestapo routine should have been scotched the first time it began to attempt to stick his nose into your business.

It's up to you women to let your husbands know you will no longer tolerate the bully's interference. If you haven't the guts to do it you'll just have to suffer.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I were godparents for our friend's baby a number of years ago. We have always remembered the child on his birthday and at Christmas. We also babysat with her many times and took her to spend the day with us. We really loved that little girl dearly.

Three years ago we had our first baby and asked these same friends to be godparents to our child. We wanted to honor them as they had honored us. That first year they sent the baby a Christmas gift and came to a few times. The second year, not even a card and only one phone call to see how we were. This year we have not heard from them at all.

My husband wants to request that our priest take their names off the baptismal papers so we can ask my older brother and his wife to be godparents to the child.

We have argued this back and forth a dozen times and cannot come to a final conclusion. What would your advice be?—Annette and Joey

Dear A. and J.: Three years later is no time to ask your brother and his wife to be godparents to your firstborn. Obviously you and the other couple grew apart. But life is unpredictable and sometimes that's the way the cookie crumbles. Consider the fact that you made an unfortunate choice and have things as they are.

Armor of God For War of Life

By
Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

For the warfare of life (Ephesians 6:10-17) St. Paul writes that we are to put on "the whole armor of God". The Apostle knew himself and others well enough to have good reason for inserting the adjective "whole". We are apt to put on only that part of the divine armor that offers the least interference with our freedom of choice and action.

Consider, for instance, "the breastplate of righteousness". There are times when we would rather leave this at home or church than to take it into the rough and tumble of everyday life. Without "the breastplate of righteousness" we have more elbow room: it is easier to get ahead.

Similarly, there are times when we find the girdle of "truth" too restrictive. A little elasticity as to what is true seems to be expedient. Who will know the difference when some information is withheld from the consumer? Who will check whether the elected official makes good on everything that he, as a candidate, promised?

When you come right down to it, it could turn out that the only part of the divine armor which we really want is "the shield of faith" and "the helmet of salvation". That is to say, peace of mind in this life and bliss in the life to come.

However, what the inventory of defensive armor makes clear is, first of all, that the forces of evil are so subtle and sinister that we had better be well protected from head to foot.

And an adequate defense it is. Indeed. Protected by truth, righteousness, active goodwill, confidence and trust in God, we need not fear that "the spiritual hosts of wickedness" will be able to defeat us.

MORE

As a matter of fact, when you give the inventory a second look, you begin to see that it is not just protective. It stands us in good stead, too, in attacking the forces of evil.

But, obviously, the most effective weapon of attack is, as St. Paul affirms, "the sword of the Spirit", Jesus underlined his ministry because, as he said, "the Spirit of the Lord is upon me".

The Spirit also gave birth to the Church. Its growth, its periodic renewal, its recurrent expansion in our own generation are all to be ascribed to the energizing power of the Holy Spirit.

It is heartening to know that we can count on resources beyond our own. Our ultimate security is in the Lord. We can stand in the strength of God's might. "Who is the strength of Jesus trusts", declared Charles Wesley in a hymn based on this particular text of scripture, "is more than conqueror".

Middle Ages Portrayed Joseph as Old Bumbler

NEW YORK (AP) — Modern Christians tend to regard Joseph, the husband of Jesus' mother, Mary, as the family's watchful guardian, but a new study indicates believers used to see him in a less-honored role.

"The people of the Middle Ages portrayed Joseph as a bumbling, forgetful old man," says Gail Gibson in a doctoral dissertation at University of Virginia.

Mrs. Gibson, who is to become an assistant professor of English at Princeton University this fall, did her doctoral study on the drama and art of the 14th century.

"Joseph was actually a comic figure in that age," she says. "In the icons, he is pictured dozing or brooding with his head on his hands, and in the dramas he is often the object of ridicule.

"For instance, in a few dramatizations, when Joseph finds out Mary is pregnant, he ponders out loud that he's an old man, so what else can he expect from a young wife. He then contrasts Mary in a courtly way and demands to know who the father is."

Mrs. Gibson says that while this comic portrayal of Joseph may seem sacrilegious, the plays, called mystery plays, were religious dramas, intended to state doubts openly, resolve them and bring people to greater faith.

She says the mystery plays could treat religious doubts in a comic vein because there was no concept of atheism in that age.

"This connotes that it is human to have doubts like Joseph but that God is always there watching, ready to intervene if necessary."

Nevertheless, she says, it was an age of "doubt and questioning," much like today, when cultural changes had made people aware that they couldn't prove beliefs once considered absolute.

The plays were "enormously popular," she says. "By ridiculing and making fun of a character like Joseph who has doubts, the playwright showed human inadequacies and that every man can be caught in circumstances he doesn't understand.

"This makes the belief and redemption greater at the end of the play when the man comes to faith."

Nostalgia Lives

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — The Falls and this city's many tourist attractions will easily be located by travellers if new guide signs are approved. Niagara Resort and Tourist Association has proposed new signs on all surrounding regional roads and correction of large map directories at major city intersections with arrows provided for motorists to pull off and examine them.

Maps to Guide

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — They used to sell new cars in the showroom now called Fantasy Junction. But owner Elmer Fleig[illegible] to go in for slightly-used nostalgia and now has Cadillacs with swooping fins, low-slung T-Birds and even a 1928 Ford Woody on the lot. Mr. Fliegauf says crowds flock to look at the cars. "I don't think there is anything else like it anywhere nearby," he says.

Workers Plan to Picket Dominion Store Sunday Opening

The Dominion store in the Belleville Plaza said today it plans to open for business Sunday. But some employees have indicated they will not work and plan to picket the store.

Carl McMillan, store manager, said in a telephone interview today he received word from the chain's head office in Toronto Friday ordering him to open the store Sunday.

"We don't want to open on Sunday, but we being forced to do so by our competitiors," he said.

A. and P., also located in the plaza, began the Sunday shopping controversy in the city when it opened for business four weeks ago.

A store employee, who wished to remain unidentified, told The Intelligencer the store has about 48 workers and about 95 per cent had been approached by management and requested to work Sunday.

"It's questionable whether anyone will work," the employee said.

"90 per cent" of the employees are against working on Sunday, the worker added.

Details of the protest remained sketchy, but other groups have indicated they may join Dominion workers on the picket line.

Doug Sword, president of the Quinte District Labor Council verified today some members of his organization will participate in the protest

He added, however, the number would be small.

Mr. Sword said he expected employees of other food stores to participate and that a Toronto representative of the Retail Workers and Dominion Store union is also expected to be on hand.

Mr. McMullen said he is aware of the planned protest but refused to comment whether it would affect the the chain's decision to open.

"As it stands now we will be open tomorrow unless I hear differently from Toronto," he said.

He said the store plans to open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Dominion is the third food chain outlet in the Belleville area to open on Sunday.

Food City, beside Towers on Dundas St. West opened Sunday a week after A and P.

Ferry Service Reduced

GLENORA — Capt. Keith Danbney of the Glenora ferries said Friday that the ferry Glenora will be taken out of service at midnight Sunday Oct. 26 for drydock repairs.

Half hour service will be provided by the ferry Quinte Loyalist. The boat will leave the Adolphustown shore on the half hour and the Glenora shore on the quarter hour.

Repairs to a damaged rudder on The Glenora and installation of new engines are expected to take approximately two weeks.

Organist Pays Visit

PICTON — A prominent organist in radio and television Rosa Rio of Westport, Conn. will perform tonight at Picton United Church in a special concert beginning at 8 p.m.

Miss Rio has played for a number of popular daily radio and television shows such as The Shadow, My True Story, Rosa Rio Rhythms and Brighter Day.

In addition to Miss Rio's music, tonight's concert will feature the voices of Raneleana and Robert Reid of Belleville, guest artists for the performance.

Firefighter Unchanged

Capt. George Woodhouse of the Belleville Fire Department, who suffered a heart attack during Friday's early-morning fire at a 90-92 Victoria Ave. apartment block, is still listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital today.

Insp. Paul Stephenson, department investigator, said Friday no cause has been determined for the blaze which extensively damaged the second floor of the two-storey, 100-year-old structure.

Biggest Cheque?

H. W. Lilly, general manager of the subscriber switching division of Northern Electric Co. Ltd., in Belleville hands a $9,000 cheque to J. Robert Burns, United Way campaign chairman. Although it may not be the largest single donation it will probably be the biggest cheque of the year.

Hours Before Council But No Action Expected

Reaction to Sunday decision supermarket openings has gathered impetus for city hall. However, city council also is being officially advised against any action at this legislation.

Letters protesting the Sunday business moves are scheduled for councils' viewing when it meets Monday.

Correspondence has come from several church groups including the Belleville Ministerial Association.

The letters follow council's decision two weeks to have city manager Wilbur Purcell draft a report on the issue before contemplating any decision.

Mr. Purcell now has readied his report which recommends city ordinances on store closings which also include certain exemptions.

A Loyalist College news release this week inadvertently omitted the name of Will Wilkinson from the list of members of the new Quinte Arts Centre Task Force. Mr Wilkinson is chairman of the college board of governors.

In addition, an Intelligencer story Saturday involving the task force left out the name of another member — Herbert Young, college president.

All sessions will be held in Education Hall, commencing at 9 a.m. with registration at 8:30 a.m. If necessary, extra seating will be available in the lecture theatre which will be wired for closed circuit television reception of the programs.

Complimentary coffee will be served during the morning and afternoon sessions. Lunch will be available in the hospital cafeteria at moderate prices and places may be booked at time of registration.

Damage Extensive

BRIGHTON — A two-car accident involving a local man and an Oshawa driver on Highway 2 caused $1,200 total damage but injured no one, Friday afternoon.

Cameron Rundle, 27, Brighton was charged with failure to yield when the vehicle he was driving was in collision with a westbound vehicle, said a spokesman for the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial police.

Wages Only One Issue Claim Postal Workers

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The overwhelming majority of inside postal workers in Belleville, Trenton and Brighton already earn the unions top pay scale for their job categories and national union demands would boost their bourly pay to $7.85.

The existing rate for mail sorters and postal clerks is $4.58.

Postmaster in Belleville, Ray Wainright, guessed Friday, of the 37 men he has in Belleville, 34 have completed at least three years of service and are paid the top rate. "About 95 per cent get the top scale."

He also said that Brighton personnel all receive the maximum wage.

Gord Hannah, postmaster in Trenton, said all 13 of his clerks and sorters are also being paid the maximum allowed.

In a strike vote held earlier this week all area inside workers with the exception of the Trenton office staff voted to give their national union a mandate to walk out if continued negotiations with the federal government failed.

The national union is demanding a 71-per-cent salary increase over one year which would boost the pay scale from $4.50 to $7.85 an hour.

Walter Yateman, president of the Belleville local, of inside workers — the largest local in the area — said wages were just one issue the union is negotiating.

He said part-time or temporary workers and their job conditions is a major area as well in the talks.

"We have many targets in our negotiations and it is hard to say which are the most important.

"We know the federal government's wage and price curbs program is in effect and that we are going to be restrained," he said.

But "there are other issues as important as wages . . . particularly improving the conditions of the part-time workers and guarding against technological change (mechanical mail sorting)," said Mr. Yateman.

"Part-time workers, regardless of seniority, are restricted to the lowest wage scale and have no pension rights," he said. "We are trying to get benefits for other groups within the union who are being badly treated."

Asked if a postal strike is inevitable, Mr. Yateman said he is personally prepared to strike.

"The union is willing to do whatever is necessary to get an acceptable settlement," he said.

Parked Car Hit Twice

TRENTON — Local man had a rougher time than most during the stormy weather, Friday night, as his car parked in front of his house, was hit twice in separate accidents.

Douglas Barry, 72 Division St., had to file two accident reports with police who estimated the total damage to his car at $1,200.

At 6:15 p.m. a car driven by Herbert Perry, of Trenton, sideswiped Mr. Barry's vehicle. Later on at 10:40 p.m. during the heavy rainfall a second vehicle driven by Harold Stevenson, 26, also of Trenton, was in collision with the parked car and caused $1,000, police estimated.

Police have charged Perry with impaired driving while the Stevenson accident is still under investigation.

Man Hit By Own Car

TRENTON — An Oshawa man is in Trenton Memorial Hospital suffering from cuts to his legs when the car he was repairing rolled out of a driveway and over his leg as he attempted to stop it Friday.

Listed in satisfactory condition is Douglas Bowen, 26.

Pc said the vehicle slipped off the blocks and at Mr. Doherty tried to stop the car he slipped and his left leg was run over by one of the front wheels.

Washer Sells Fast

A Belleville resident discovered recently the market has dried up for washer wringer machines.

Mrs. M. recently advertised one wringer machine in the classified section of The Intelligencer and was overwhelmed with 18 telephone calls. She said if she had a dozen machines, she could have sold them all.

If you have any washing machines or other appliances sitting unused they can be turned into ready cash. Just call The Intelligencer Want Ad department at 962-9171.

Pledge Dusters

Bernard Indewey (left) and Kevin Munro, both 15 and Interact Club members, do weekend cleaning at the Campbell apartment at 404 - 247 East Bridge St. today. It is part of the club's work-a-thon which has members work up to 10 hours apiece free for Belleville's senior citizens. The two boys have about $5 - $6 in pledges per hour between them. Kevin is work-a-thon student chairman.

Most See Need for Wage and Price Controls

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau ordered nation-wide price and wage controls early this week in a major inflation-fighting move to last three years.

He set up a watchdog, a 200-member agency that will monitor company price increases to limit them to true increases in company manufacturing costs. Wages amount about half of the country's workers will be kept to a limit of 10 per cent annually.

The program of restraint, said Mr. Trudeau, is "the heaviest imposed upon Canadians since the Second World War."

Reactions from those to be affected by the inflation-fighting program, either directly or indirectly, was mostly favorable in a random sampling of shoppers at the Quinte Mall.

Several people, however, said the measures should have come far sooner than they did.

GUY BRADSHAW

Stirling resident Guy Bradshaw, 77, criticized Mr. Trudeau for not including measures to restrict credit buying — a practice he said is "ruining the country."

A former car salesman, Mr. Bradshaw said, "People extend the payments far too long. This is why they're bollering that they have no money. They're overspending their income on long-term credit."

HARRY NEILL

Cherney's Furniture World salesman Harry Neill said the prime minister's move is "an excellent idea if they can keep a tight rein on it (inflation).

"It's a very important job and a very difficult job," he said the anti-inflation board has. But he doesn't believe, he said, that it's 200 employees can watch the entire country closely.

DOUG DAINARD

Controls "in some way, may help inflation to stop," said Simpsons-Sears Ltd., salesman Doug Dainard, 21.

But inflation, he said, "has already happened. All he's (Trudeau) doing is slowing it down. To freeze prices is a good idea in one sense, but, in my books people cause inflation. People demand more wages and something has to pay for it."

DOUG DAFOE

Belleville postman Doug Dafoe said it "was about time" the government took steps to curb inflation: "Everything price-wise is going out of sight and it's up to him, Mr. Trudeau, to slow it down."

"He's a smart man and he'll come up with an answer," said Mr. Dafoe.

"We're being smothered by inflation."

ANN STEVENS

A housewife in Belleville, Ann Stevens said she is "very determinable" if the new controls will help, but she still feels pessimistic. "People think (they're (prices) high now, but they haven't reached the limit yet."

"If (high prices) shouldn't have happened, that's for sure, but I don't think it will get any better," she said.

GRACE MCLUSKEY

Grace McCluskey, a Grand Falls, N.B. resident in Trenton to visit her brother, said Mr. Trudeau "should have done it a couple of years ago before prices went sky-high."

"I have it in the family and it takes quite a bit to feed them," she said.

"We need someone in there that knows something about the poor man."

Bobcats Make Bruins Look Like Teddy Bears

When the bit, bad Whitby Young Bruins came to town on Friday night for an encounter with the Belleville Bobcats, Whitby proved to be anything but big and bad. They were humiliated 13-6 by be high flying Cats in Metro Junior B Hockey action.

Whitby had, in previous games with the Belleville squad, earned a reputation of being more concerned with bone league tactics rather than the game of hockey. In Friday's contest however the visitors showed little concern for anything save getting the game over.

"We were expecting a little tougher game than that from them," commented Belleville coach Meehan Bonnar after the Cats second win in as many night. "We played a good first period but after that..." added Bonnar in reference to the listless style of play exhibited by both clubs in the second half of the contest.

The shots on goal told the story as the home club outdid the Bruins by a 45-26 margin and made the contest little more than a shooting drill. Belleville, in the first five games of the season, have amassed a total of 46 goals, or an average of eight a game while allowing the opposition

Heading into the final period of play, with a good number of the 1000 or so fans already making their way towards the exits, Belleville had a 12-1 lead but the visitors capitalized on Belleville's sloppy play and scored five goals out of the eight shots they had on net in last 20 minutes.

The game was a relatively clean one compared to earlier match ups between Belleville and Whitby. Each club picked up only 18 minutes in the box, all minors. Scoring for the Belleville club was divided between eight players with Grant Geegan the only Cat to pick up three markers.

Tony Meagher continued his single handed attack on goalies picking up a pair of goals and adding two assists. Other Belleville players with two goals were Paul Johnston and Bob Chase. For Johnston it was his first goals of the season. Andy Ricketts, Bruce Leedham, Joey Edwards and Eric Powell all added singles to round out the damage for the home team.

Will last night's game have any affect on the Belleville performance in Sunday's match-up with the Pickering Panthers? "I hope not," said Bonnar, "they played a lone game tonight and I think they know what they have to do to beat Pickering. They'll be up for the game."

Game time for Sunday' contest with Pickering is 8:15 at the Memorial. It will be a real test for the team, according to Bonnar. The Belleville coach also feels that the three games with only a day of rest will be to the Cats advantage when they take to the ice against the Panthers.

Scott Sandercock who injured a shoulder in Thursday's game against the Kingston Travelier Voyagers will be back in the lineup by next week with the injury having been diagnosed as a pulled muscle. Rick Langstaffe will be back on the blue line by Sunday's contest after serving his two game suspension. Paul Tilley, the Cats best rushing forward, still has one remaining game left in his suspension.

The Tigers added three more majors to Lewis' and lock a lopsided 36-1 decision.

Whitby Young Bruins were forced to resort to there tactics in the first two periods of Friday night's Metro Junior B encounter at Memorial Arena. Still, balding and hooking, though [illegible] Bruins were [illegible] Pickering Panthers, weren't enough to stop the Belleville Bobcats from scoring 13 goals or winning the game. Here, Belleville's Bubba Thompson is held to the ice by Bruin defenseman Ken Elson and Bruce Leedham is hooked by Andy Hoszar. Nevertheless, Leedham got his backhand a way and beat Jim Buchanan for the first Bobcat goal of the game. That started an unbelievable onslaught as the Cats beat the Whitby netminder seven times before the first period was over. They added five in the second before pulling up and holding back in the final 20 minutes of play. The Cats 13-6 victory Friday night gives them a 5-0 record for the season and 11 consecutive wins since exhibition action began.

Tigers Devour Opposition on Two Fronts

When you're hot you're hot and when you're not you're not. Judging from the results of Fridays Bay of Quinte Secondary School Football League games if you're not hot you might as well forget it.

In the senior contest, Trenton Tigers and Centennial Chargers squared off what promised to be one of the toughest battles of the 1975 season. Both clubs had 2-2 records. Trenton was the number one defensive squad in the league but they'd just come off their worst defeat of the year. The Chargers, after dropping their first two games, had just won two straight.

As in everything else so far in the senior football season the game hardly went according to plan. The Chargers dismally disappointed their home crowd as they were held to just one point. Trenton, on the other hand, scored 36 points, the most they've come up with in any of their games during the '75 campaign.

Unusual results appeared to be contagious Friday. The Trenton Junior Tigers, who defeated all year, were pitted at home against the bullish Moira Trojans. The number two club in the junior standings. The underdog Trojans showed up as the season's classic.

However, the Tigers, retained their undefeated mark and left no questions as to which team was number one. They sent the Trojans home, doing double time in retreat, on the short end of a 44-6 slaughter.

The Chargers just couldn't put it together. Three times during the game their defence picked off Tiger passes, but to no avail. Trenton's gridiron line and linebacker relished in be intimidated by the running prowess of Centennial backs Rob Scully or Paul Hinkin. Both had carried the bulk of the Chargers' offensive drives this season, but neither could mount any sizeable gains against Trenton.

The Tigers' offensive line elawed through the Charger defence leaving holes for halfback Greg Kendrick, who did most of the luzzing in Friday's victory.

Quarterback Dave Lewis put the tabbies on the scoreboard early in the second period with a 41 yard gallop down the right sideline.

That started the black and gold machine rolling. Versatile Bob Thompson, playing corner linebacker Friday, took a punt on his own 46 yard line and broke for the chalk line on the left side of the field. Seeing no opennicts there, he reversed fields and outsprinted the entire Charger squad with virtually no blocking whatsoever for six points.

Kendrick, and his colleague at the other halfback position, Ed Mullins drove into the Charger end zone for the other two majors.

Rob Oliver converted two of the four Tiger touchdowns to round out their 26 point attack.

Centennial quarterback and punter Rob DeJong was a living study in futility as he scrambled, squirmed and belabored watched his club's offence degenerate before the ESS fans. It was Rob DeJong however who drilled a punt deep into the Trenton goal area for his teams only point of the contest.

The efforts of the Trenton squad could only be matched by the results of the titan Tigers over Moira.

They pulverized the Trojans in all aspects of the game. Though the score was not indicative of the calibre of the two clubs it was a very complete indication of how the Trojans played.

Trenton QB Brian Hanson swamped the Moira end zone with seven TD's. Three of those came on his own short range dashes.

Jeff Sainer and Mark Serafin, Hanson's halfbacks, each collected a major and Henry Paterson, his fullback and the workhorse of the Trenton ground game, blasted his way through the Trojan defence for six points as well.

Hanson went to the air for the seventh touchdown and clicked with his prime receiver, John Webb. Scucatto was good on two of seven convert attempts to cap off the Tigers' tale.

Again it was one of those days for the opposition signal caller. Dave Bennett, could get no marginal gains on the ground as his backfield went flat. Each time he went to the air he was cut down by the invulnerable Trenton pass defence.

Corner linebacker Wayne Murphy keyed the cats' defences with three of their five interceptions.

Despite his seemingly wasted attempts to spark the kindling of offence, Bennett refused to accept the humiliation of being shutout. Late in the third quarter he carried the ball into the end zone himself for the Trojans only six points of the day.

Weightlifters Give Canada Big Boost in Standings

MEXICO (CP) — Canada got a needed lift from Russ Prior at the Pan-American Games Friday night.

And by the time he stopped lifting, the 90-pound Hamilton native had turned a day of modest achievement into the most lucrative of the Games to date for the Canadians with a personal contribution of three gold medals in the heavyweight weightlifting division.

In a competition in which the Cubans had been grabbing gold medals in threes in most of the lighter weight classes, the 21-year-old Commonwealth Games champion topped the heavyweights in snatch, clean and jerk and total lift while teammate Bob Santary of Kincardine, Ont., picked up bronze medals in the latter two categories.

That brought the Canadian medal total to eight gold, eight silver and 14 bronze after five days of competition, a distance behind the United States and Cuba, which had 30 golds apiece.

The other Canadian medals of the day were silvers won by Alexander Gaspar Hanna of Toronto and the Canadian trapshooting team of John Primrose and James Plate of Edmonton, Ed Wladichuk of Hamilton and Larry Ivany of Oshawa, Ont.

Competition continues in the first two aquatic events with Sylvie Fortier of Quebec City leading the field after the compulsory program in synchronized swimming and Elizabeth Carruthers of Edmonton, the defending champion, less than four points out of first place after the compulsories in springboard diving.

Miss Carruthers, whose 179.04 points after five dives Friday compared with 182.64 for Jennifer Chandler of the United States, is a strong optional diver but was making no predictions.

"Jenny's optionals have a higher degree of difficulty than mine, so I'll really have to be right on to win the gold this time," she said.

The U.S.-Cuba duel continued Friday as each country won four gold medals.

Alejandro Casanas of Cuba was a comfortable winner in the 110-metre hurdles as the U.S., which had won the event ever since the Games began in 1951, was shut out of the medal list. It was one of the few track events in which Canada was not represented.

Joni Huntley of the U.S. won the high jump with a Games record leap of six feet 2¼ inches. Mrs. Walker's second-place height was 6-1¼ and Debbie Brill of Victoria, who won the event four years ago, was fourth at 5-11¼.

Her record of 6-0¾, set at Cali, Colombia, had already fallen in the high jump phase of the pentathlon competition, in which gold medalist Diane Jones of Saskatoon and Andrea Bruce of Jamaica both made aged 6-1¼.

The Games record also fell in the men's javelin won by Sam Colson of the U.S. with a toss of 275 feet. Phil Olsen of Nanaimo, B.C., and left-handed Andre Jalbot of Laval, Que., were fifth and sixth.

Margarita Rodriguez was Cuba's third gold medal in four fencing events to date, capturing the women's individual foil. and the Cubans finished off with two of the three titles in super-heavyweight weightlifting as Gerardo Fernandez was fourth in snatch and total lift, conceding the clean-and-jerk gold to Bruce Wilhelm of the U.S.

Cuba finished with 18 of the 27 weightlifting gold medals with the U.S. winning six and Canada three.

Canada's trapshooters conceded the gold medal in the event to a world-record performance by the U.S. team, which hit 391 of a possible 400 targets, three better than the previous mark set in 1972 by the same American foursome. The Canadians hit 380.

All four Canadians qualified for today's finals of the men's and women's 400 metres. Marg McCowan of Waterford, Ont., and Joyce Yakubowich of Victoria finished second in their heats behind Brian Saunders and Glen Bogue of Toronto were third and fourth respectively.

Jules Sabrian of Omemee, Ont., bidding for his third Games medal, was tied for the lead at the half-way mark in the rapid-fire pistol competition. He already has a team silver and individual bronze in the free pistol event.

Canada backed into the eight-country soccer final round without winning a game or scoring a goal. The Canadians lost 2-0 to Argentina Friday after playing to a scoreless tie with Jamaica. But Argentina had drubbed the Jamaicans 6-0, giving Canada the second final-round berth in the group.

Canadian teams also suffered defeats in baseball, women's basketball, men's volleyball and waterpolo.

The coxless pair of Sandy Manson of Vancouver and Robert Gibson of Penticton, B.C., finished third in its repechage heat to qualify for the rowing finals.

Russ Prior – Three Gold

Dark Handed Walking Papers

OAKLAND (AP) — Alvin Dark says he neither knows nor cares why he was not rehired as manager of Oakland A's by his owner, Charles O. Finley still "one of my best friends in baseball."

Dark told a news conference Friday night Finley informed him by telephone from Chicago Thursday he would not be hired for a third year as A's manager.

"Apparently Mr. Finley didn't want to work with me any more," said Dark, 52, an infielder in the National League for four years and a major league manager for 12 seasons, with five different clubs. "It's his prerogative. He owns the ball club."

Dark, zealous in espousing his religion since 1971, said he would seek another baseball job because "I think I can serve the Lord better in baseball than out of baseball."

Dark said he couldn't confirm a report the A's managerial job was being offered to his longtime friend and golfing partner, Gene Mauch, who was fired by Montreal Expos after seven seasons. Dark said Mauch would be "great" as his successor.

The Oakland club announced Saturday only a few hours before Dark's news conference that Dark was not to be rehired. But Thursday night the Birmingham Post-Herald reported Finley had reached that decision and offered the job to Mauch.

Finley was unavailable to reporters Friday.

Dark, whose A's were 98-64 in winning the American League West Division a fifth consecutive time, said he was "very proud" of his 1975 club. He said Finley "let me do what I wanted to do" in the playoffs where the A's lost three straight to Boston. "If we lost, it was on my decisions," he said.

"This was the greatest two years of my life in baseball," said Dark, one of three baseball managers to win pennants in both leagues—with San Francisco Giants in 1962 and with the A's last year.

The Birmingham newspaper report said Finley was irritated by a story quoting Dark as saying Finley was "going to hell unless he changed his ways."

Dark, a Baptist, said he received his tape of the talk he gave at a men's meeting in a suburban church two weeks ago and what he said was: "If Charlie Finley doesn't accept Jesus Christ as his saviour, he is going to hell, just like if I hadn't accepted I would go to hell, just like any of you would.

GENE MAUCH

Dark said Finley knew of the church speech but never broached the subject in the Thursday call telling Dark he was out.

"I love Charlie Finley as much now as I did two days ago," said Dark. "As soon as I hung up the telephone, my wife and I prayed for Charlie Finley."

Power Wins Davis Cup Duel

MONTREAL (CP) — Dale Power beamed as he relaxed in a whirlpool bath early today.

"It was a great win for me," Power said. "He's beaten a lot of good players."

Power, 26, of Toronto had just upset Alvero Ratencur in a five-hour, 20-minute tennis match as give Canada a 2-0 lead in the best-of-five first-round 1976 Davis Cup elimination for the North American zone Friday.

Ratencur, Colombia's No. 1 tennis player was thought to be the player that would most likely give Colombia a win in this weekend's tennis series.

Tony Bardsley of Vancouver also won a singles match Friday with pounding serve and accurate shots that overwhelmed Orlando Agudelo in straight sets of 6-0, 6-2, 6-2.

Canada could conclude the series in today's doubles match or by winning either of the final pair of singles Sunday.

Power opened the game with Ratencur with a 6-4 win in the first set. The pair then became entangled in a battle for the second set that ended in a 24-22 win for the Colombian. Ratencur swept the next set 6-2 and appeared on his way to an easy win when Power stopped him in the fourth set 6-3 and took the final set 7-5.

In the first game, the six-foot, four-inch Bardsley proved too much for Agudelo to handle, as the Colombian could not handle the powerful serves or ripping return shots.

Bardsley said that even though @ was his fifth Davis Cup he still felt a lot of pressure.

Reds in Driver's Seat

More Good Fortune Than Good Management

BOSTON (AP) — It was a combination of clutch hitting, sweet pitching and a kiss from Lady Luck that brought Cincinnati Reds back to Fenway Park leading the World Series three games to two.

The National League champions, who were favored to beat Boston Red Sox in baseball's colorful show, were lucky to get out of Boston alive last weekend and fortunate to be alive in the driver's seat this weekend.

The Reds were one out away from losing Game 2 last Sunday but came off the critical hit and rallied for the winning runs on a seeing-eye single by Dave Concepcion and a double by Ken Griffey.

Happy with their great escape from Boston, the Reds took a 3-1 lead with the help of the "collision bunt" play in Game 3.

With the extra-inning game tied at 5-5 in the 10th, the Reds had a man on first with one-out and Ed Armbrister, quite logically, laid down a sacrifice bunt.

What followed, however, was somewhat bizarre.

It turned into baseball's version of the "statute of liberty" play as Armbrister stood stock still while Fisk attempted to field the bouncing ball. Fisk collided with Armbrister and in his haste to nail the lead runner, threw wildly into centre field, allowing both runners safely.

Fisk and Boston manager Darrell Johnson argued vociferously with home plate umpire Larry Barnett that the runner had interfered with the catchers play, but to no avail. Later, the argument was eventually the game when Joe Morgan hit a base-loaded single.

Despite taking a 2-1 lead in the Series, Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson was well aware that the team wasn't up to top form.

"We've played worse," said the Reds manager, "but we've played a whole lot better, too." This was evident in Game 4 Wednesday night, when a courageous performance by Luis Tiant beat the Reds and tied the remarkable series at 2-2.

Tiant was not nearly as effective as his first-game start, when he shut out the Reds, but he had enough to beat them with his second-best stuff.

The real Cincinnati Reds had not stood up yet, said Anderson.

"We haven't played up to our capabilities yet," the manager said. "I just hope that we do before the Series is over, because I'd like the world to see what kind of a baseball team we have."

After the fifth game, however, it was agreed by most everyone that the Reds finally showed the kind of team that won 108 games during the regular season. Pete Rose drove in four runs on two homers and Don Gullett pitched as well as he ever did as the Reds beat the proud American League champions with clinical ease, 6-1.

SPARKY ANDERSON

Connors, Tanner Come Through

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The United States took a commanding 2-0 lead Friday over Venezuela when Jimmy Connors and Roscoe Tanner came through with victories in the opening singles matches of the 1976 Davis Cup.

Connors defeated Humphrey Hose, Venezuela's No. 1 player, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3 in the final match of the day.

Earlier, Tanner disposed of Jorge Andrew, the No. 2 player from Venezuela, 6-4, 6-3, 6-2.

The 23-year-old Connors got off to an erratic start in a match that lasted one hour and 35 minutes as his heavier and taller opponent played beyond expectations.

Connors broke service in the fourth game of the first set while Hose upset Connors in the seventh with meticulous and frustrating drop shots. Connors almost blew the ninth game, one that went to deuce after he led 40-0, but he came back to pull it out.

Connors had little trouble winning the second and third sets.

"Jimmy played well after he got things going," Hose said. "He played a very smart game."

Stingers Don't Waste Time Wearing Out WHA Welcomes

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hard teams, especially expansion franchises, have difficulty winking away from home, but Cincinnati Stingers are doing their best to avoid that flaw.

The Stingers, playing their first season in the World Hockey Association, posted their second victory in as many starts—and their second successive win on the road—Friday night as they downed Calgary Cowboys 6-2.

Gene Sobchuk, older brother of brilliant centre Dennis Sobchuk, broke the game open with two third-period goals against Calgary goaltender Ron McLeod.

RICK DUDLEY

Cincinnati, the only Eastern Division club active Friday, took a narrow two-point lead over Cleveland Crusaders and New England Whalers.

In other games, Denver Spurs posted their first victory by downing Phoenix Roadrunners 5-4 in a clash of Western Division rivals and Edmonton Oilers gained their first point of the season on the road by rallying to tie Toronto Toros 4-4 in a meeting of Canadian Division foes.

Youngsters Claude Larose and Andre Lacroix scored assists as Ron Plumb and Rick Dudley scored a goal each for Cincinnati, which visits Edmonton Sunday night. It was the first WHA goal for Dudley, a star with Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League last season.

Calgary marksmen were George Morrison and Dave Lawson.

At Toronto, Kerry Ketler and Doug Barrie of Edmonton's maligned defensive crew scored a goal each as the Oilers came from behind for the tie. Blair MacDonald and Dan Spring also tallied for the Oilers.

Paul Henderson led Toronto with two goals. Tony Jacques and former Oiler Gallant and Richard Farda replied for the Toros in the wide-open contest marked by the brilliant netminding of Toronto's rookie, Mario Viens, and Edmonton veteran Dave Dryden.

Don Borgonon, a former round-runner, scored three goals to lead the Denver victory. Gary MacGregor and Gary Bredin completed scoring for the winner. Del Hall, Ron Huston, Lauri Mononen and Rob Floyer replied for Phoenix.

In games tonight, Toronto visits New England Whalers, Denver meets Indianapolis Racers, Houston Oilers visit Quebec Nordiques, Edmonton continues its road swing by meeting Minnesota Fighting Saints in St. Paul and Winnipeg Jets, tops in the Canadian Division, visit San Diego Mariners.

Sunday's schedule has Houston at Cleveland, Cincinnati at Edmonton and Winnipeg at Phoenix.

WFC Power Saga Continues Sunday

The Canadian Press

It's an old, familiar story in the Western Football Conference—where Edmonton Eskimos lead and Saskatchewan Roughriders are fighting to finish first.

The next chapter will be completed Sunday in Regina when the injury-riddled Eskimos seek the victory they need to clinch first place and Saskatchewan fights for a win to keep its first-place hopes alive.

Playoff spots also are at stake in two Canadian Football League interlocking games and an Eastern Conference contest.

Calgary Stampeders visit Hamilton Tiger-Cats on Saturday and Winnipeg Blue Bombers face British Columbia Lions on Sunday in the interlocking games. Toronto Argonauts face Montreal Alouettes on Sunday in the EFC test.

The Toronto-Montreal game will be televised at 1:30 p.m. EDT on the CTV eastern network. Edmonton-Saskatchewan will be shown at 3:30 p.m. EDT on the national network.

MORE STRENGTH

Edmonton added defensive end Bill Stevenson in time for the vital weekend contest. Stevenson, a Canadian, was obtained from Memphis Southmen of the World Football League.

Ron Estay, almost certain to make the WFC all-star team at defensive end until he suffered a leg injury at Saskatchewan early in a 21-12 victory over Calgary, has been placed on the 21-day injured list. The Eskimos hope again will, no without regular tight end Tyrone Walls and middle linebacker Sam Britts.

Saskatchewan needs help to overtake Edmonton because the Eskimos lead by one point and have a game in hand. Ron Lancaster, veteran quarterback playing his last season, and George Reed, who sets a record every time he touches the ball, always play well against their biggest healthy opposition.

Calgary is tied with Edmonton and Saskatchewan at 7-5 and Regina when the injury-riddled Eskimos seek the victory they need to clinch first place and Saskatchewan fights for a win to keep its first-place hopes alive.

Hatskin Gives Green Light

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association announced Friday night that it will allow under-age junior hockey players to play for New England Whalers.

Ben Hatskin, WHA chief executive officer, said a 16-year-old defenceman will be allowed to play because Robert Sullivan's signature was forced on a contract signed by Fernand Roberts of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Hatskin made the ruling after receiving an affidavit under oath from Roberts' father that he did not sign the contract. Hatskin said Friday because the Victoria junior contract is not valid, Roberts will be able to play immediately for the Whalers.

The affidavit testifying to the forged signature was shown to officials of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association in Ottawa on Friday.

Roberts, an American citizen, signed a conditional contract with the Whalers before his 18th birthday on Oct. 2. The signing was thought to be in violation of the WHA rule to prevent signing of Toronto's rookie, Mario Viens, and Edmonton veteran Dave Dryden.

Creighton Can't Kindle Spark Let Alone Flames

The Canadian Press

Coach Fred Creighton must be wondering right now where the spark he thought he came from to ignite the Atlanta Flames of fence.

The Flames fire power was doused again Friday night as New York Islanders skated to a 5-0 win, allowing Atlanta just 20 shots on goaltender Billy Smith who recorded his first shutout of the young National Hockey League season. It was the fourth straight loss for the Flames, who have managed just five goals so far, three of them coming in a 4-3 opening night loss to California Seals.

The Seals opened their home schedule with a 3-3 tie against Washington Capitals while in Vancouver, Los Angeles Kings topped the Canucks 5-3.

"I can't look down my lineup and find many guys who played well," said a glum Creighton after the Flames lost. "Maybe some of them were trying too much."

The Islanders exhibited some tight checking in the win as they brought their record to 3-0-1 and moved into a first-place tie with Philadelphia Flyers atop the Patrick Division.

"We're playing fairly disciplined hockey right now and we didn't give them much to go for," Al Arbour, coach of the Islanders said.

Bill MacMillan scored the Islanders first goal in the game. The Islanders had to battle back as Trottier getting his fifth goal of the year in the second period.

"I never thought about having such a long start," Trottier said. "I've got the confidence I need and I'm fortunate to be playing centre with two good wings."

MARCEL DIONNE

Before 7,966 fans in Oakland the Seals had to battle back in the Capes, who picked up their first point of the year after five losses.

Rookie Gary Holt scored on a power play with 1:10 remaining in the game as California brought its record to 2-3-2.

Dave Hrechkosy and Jim Neilson were the other Seals markmen with Greg Joly, Hartland Monahan and Stan Weir-Johnston replying for Washington.

Meanwhile in Vancouver, Marcel Dionne dominated the proceedings by scoring one goal and assisting on three others as the Kings downed the Canucks.

"Everything I do here with the Kings is important," said Dionne, acquired in a trade from Detroit after he became a free agent from the Red Wings.

"There is much more enthusiasm here on this club. I feel like I want to play every game."

The victory was the third straight for the Kings, who dropped their first two starts of the season.

Bob Gerring, Gene Carr, Mike Murphy and Bob Berry scored the other Los Angeles goals.

Vancouver's markmen were Don Setiffert, Bob Dailey and John Gould.

Tonight, the Islanders play host to Boston Bruins. New York Rangers visit Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Canadiens are home to Philadelphia Flyers, Atlanta goes to Kansas City to meet the Scouts, Pittsburgh Penguins are at home to Detroit, Buffalo Sabres visit the Blues in St. Louis, Minnesota North Stars play host to Chicago Black Hawks and the Seals are in Los Angeles.

Sunday, the Rangers are at home to Vancouver, Detroit goes to Philadelphia, Washington visits Buffalo, the Black Hawks entertain the North Stars and the Leafs play the Bruins in Boston.

Morgan 10 Under At Halfway Mark

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Optometrist Gil Morgan treated fans to the spectacle of a 10-under-par half in the Inst Professional Golf Association tournament of the season Friday.

Morgan fired a 68 at the 7,058-yard, par-72 Woodlake Golf Club course for a 134 two-round total and sole possession of the lead at the Texas Open golf tournament.

Ralph Johnston finished a stroke back after a 68 which left him with a two-round total of 135. Bunched at 137 were Lee Trevino, co-leader Miller Barber, Charles Coody, Lon Hinkle and Richard Crawford.

Morgan, 29, claimed five birdies and a bogey Friday under clear skies and a 68 Thursday in a wind-whipped and chilly drizzle. It is the first time in two years on the tour to be the halfway leader in any tournament.

Morgan is one of six or seven players trying to move into the top 50 money winners on the PGA tour which would mean an exemption from qualifying in next year's tournaments.

He has earned $33,897 so far this year and must clear between $7,000 and $8,000 at the Texas Open to make it into the top 60. First prize is $25,000.

Defending champion Terry Diehl shot a 70 Friday after a 72 par on Thursday.

Gar Hamilton of Toronto had a 79 Friday after an opening-round 75 and missed the two-round cut.

In Memoriam

HENDERSON, Mrs. Helen — In loving memory of a dear mother who passed away October 19, 1973.
Things we feel most keenly,
Are the hardest things to say.
Dearest Mom, we miss you,
In your lonely home today.
If we could have one lifetime wish,
One dream that could come true,
We'd pray to God with all our hearts,
For yesterday and you.
—Sadly missed and ever loved by Barb, Don, Randy and Tammy.

WRIGHT — In loving memory of a dear son-in-law, brother-in-law and uncle, Grant C. Wright who passed away Oct. 19, 1972.
Sleep on dear Grant this is picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest.
In memory frame we shall have it,
Because he was one of the best.
—Always remembered by the Radford families.

CORNELL — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Anna who passed away Oct. 19, 1972.
Many a day her name is spoken,
And many an hour she is in our thoughts.
A link in our family chain is broken,
She has gone from our home but not from our hearts.
—Sadly missed by Peter and Nora and grandchildren Peter, Paula and Walter.

CORNELL — In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and sister-in-law Alfie who passed away Oct. 19, 1972.
A light is from our home this day gone,
A place in our heart is silted.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
Some may think you are forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
But your memory we shall cherish,
As you always were before.
—Sadly missed by husband Pat, son Dennis, daughter-in-law Lil.

HENDERSON, Mrs. Helen — In loving memory of a dear wife who passed away October 19, 1973.
Gone are the days we used to share,
But in my heart you are always there.
Gone are the days we used to share,
I miss you more than anyone knows,
With tender love and deep regret,
I who love you will never forget.
—Ever remembered, ever loved by husband Burt.

HENDERSON — In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother Helen Henderson who passed away Oct. 19th, 1973.
God saw you getting tired,
When a cure was not to be found,
So He took you home to rest,
And whispered "Come home to me.
You didn't deserve what you went through,
And so He gave you rest.
God's garden must be beautiful,
For He never takes the best.
—Ever remembered, ever loved by son Jack, daughter-in-law Pat and grandchildren Carl and Kim.

Your Sunday and Monday Horoscopes

By Bernice Bede Osol

For Sunday, Oct. 19

ARIES (March 21 - April 19) Your judgment is good today on things that affect you alone. If you try to extend your thinking to cover others you'll get into a heap of trouble.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You tend to count on a little more than you have coming to day. You'll be disappointed when you don't get all you hoped for.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Don't wear out your welcome if invited to a social gathering today. If you're one of the first to arrive, be sure to be one of the first to leave.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Someone you're going to rely on today won't be there when you need him. Count on the only one you can — yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A person you'll have a discussion with today feels as strongly about the subject as you do, only you'll be on opposite sides of the fence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Pressure will be brought to bear on you by a person who was reluctant to take "no" for an answer yesterday. Give him the same treatment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Although you will solicit advice from others today, their answers won't really register. You'll do things as you first intended.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Pay particular attention to health matters today. Don't overexert yourself. Chri up with a good book or the TV.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 23-Dec. 21) You may have trouble handling the children today, but not nearly as much as you'll have if you let some busybody really pun so the works.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) You and your mate better decide early who's going to be in charge today. Your wigwam isn't large enough for two chiefs and no Indians.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Keep your ideas in perspective today. Though you may think in grandiose terms, you're missing a lot of small, necessary details.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be more protective that usual of your possessions today for you may find someone taking a liking to something you're particularly fond of yourself.

For Monday, Oct. 20

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Some unexpected expenses could suddenly pop up today and catch you off-guard if you're not careful. Manage your money prudently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be smart today about handling matters involving co-operation. Proceed. Get off on the wrong foot and their help will be withdrawn.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Usually you don't mind lending a helping hand. But when you can, Today, you'll see that your interests come first.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be pressured by a friend over something material. Try not to make leans or borrow from pals if you can prevent it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't put too high a price on gratifying your ambitions today. The rewards won't be worth the toes you'll have to step on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You've not completely forgiven someone you may cross swords with again today. It won't pay dividends if you do, either.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Even though you may be inclined, try to honor an old obligation. As a friend, Problems will arise if you renege.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Partnership alliances will get a bit sticky for you today. If your pals are not in harmony, yet to the one to drag his feet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You tend to make chores that face you today far more complicated than they are. Mistakes and frustrations are likely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Don't gamble on the unknown today or take chances where the success of the venture is in someone else's hands.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may have to contend with a few more domestic frustrations today than usual. If you keep your cool, they're manageable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful today or you might get yourself embroiled in a heated discussion with a friend over a serious issue.

HALIFAX (CP) — The outflow of Maritimers to central Canada appears to have been reversed, says Dr. W. A. Jenkins, executive vice-president of the Atlantic Provinces Economic Council. Jenkins said a growing number of job opportunities in the Maritimes have started to draw native sons from Toronto. Prince Edward Island has had a net migrant inflow since 1971, New Brunswick since 1972, and Nova Scotia since 1973.

LUNENBURG, N.S. (CP) — After putting up with 10 automobile accidents on his front lawn during the last two years, Lewis Latif wants the province to fix a 600-foot stretch of highway in front of his home so it does not become slippery when wet.

Financially-crippled New York City Turns to Congress for Help

WASHINGTON (CP) — With President Ford pourning New York City's request for financial aid, the city is turning to Congress for help to stave off financial default.

In the House of Representatives an economic stabilization subcommittee began hearings today into the city's financial woes with Mayor Abraham Beame as its first witness. New York gov. Hugh Carey and Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, are also to testify.

Beame said Sunday that even if New York City defaults and thereby is spared from paying interest on its debts, the city will still be $1 billion short of the cash needed to meet payrolls from December to March.

"We'd have to close up the city," he said on NBC's Meet the Press.

Treasury Secretary William Simon says the needed money could come if New York state imposed a new lower three-per-cent sales tax throughout the state. He also suggests that the state take over the city's share of welfare costs. Carey already has turned down the tax proposal.

Meanwhile, the Senate banking committee starts drafting legislation Tuesday aimed at helping the city.

William Proxmire (Dem, Wis.), chairman of the committee, says he now believes federal help is needed if New York is to regain access to credit through the bond market.

But Proxmire warned that the only chance for survival of such a bill will be if the House makes changes its mind or passes word that such legislation will not be vetoed.

During a meeting of the committee Saturday, Felix Rohatyn, a group of New York City's leading bankers said federal help is needed or the city will default in a few months.

"There can no longer be general assistance, the City of New York will default by the end of the year, triggering national and international consequences that will touch the lives of every American," Beame said.

The mayor said all he wants from Congress is time.

"Through a federal loan guarantee, you can help us maintain a line of credit until we can reenter the money markets," he said.

Some form of federal aid to the city also was urged by David Rockefeller, chairman of the board of the Chase Manhattan Bank and the brother of Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller; Elmore Patterson, chairman of the Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., and Walter Wriston, chairman of the First City National Bank.

They said they have reluctantly come to the conclusion that "a federal role is inescapable if default is to be avoided."

But they said the form of federal help is less important to jlhem than the need to establish a "firewall" against further "undisciplined use of public funds."

Rockefeller said in an interview that some people feel the decline in the U.S. dollar has been caused by the New York situation.

Postal Talks Spur Charges

OTTAWA (CP)—Negotiators for the post office and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) were to resume contract talks today under a continuing series of challenges from Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey.

While union officials say there was general agreement not to discuss the talks publicly, Mr. Mackasey gave at least two interviews Sunday.

Among other things, he said the union negotiators have been stalling the talks because they do not have a mandate for their executive council to negotiate. He also said, replying to a brief charge by union vice-president Jean-Claude Parrot:

"They're liars if they say they're not ready to negotiate."

The union, asking $3.26 an hour in a one-year contract over its current average hourly wage of $4.50, claims the post office has presented it no tentative contract upon which to negotiate.

Mr. Mackasey counters that the conciliation report of Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court is the best offer he can recommend to government.

In that report Judge Moisan recommends an increase of $1.70 an hour over 30 months.

"We cannot, nor could I, offer any more than the recommendations of Judge Moisan — particularly in this period of restraint," M. Mackasey said Sunday night after what had been expected to be a protracted bargaining session ended in less than an hour.

After the union had strawpolled its 22,000 members last week on their feelings toward a possible strike, negotiations were resumed Friday.

There were two sessions Saturday and talks were broken only for meals during negotiations that lasted form 10 a.m. to about 9 p.m. Sunday.

Except for brief statements by Mr. Parrot, including one in which he accused the post office of refusing to initial clauses already agreed upon, union officials have made no statements.

Mr. Mackasey said before the evening session that union president Joe Davidson was not even in Ottawa at this crucial time.

Mr. Davidson returned to Ottawa from meetings with other union officials Sunday evening.

But he didn't bring with him any more clear an indication than the scattered reports received last week of the membership feeling toward a strike.

Reports had been circulating that the membership was 75 per cent in favor of a strike if necessary to back contract demands.

Paul Mitchell, a top spokesman here, said he was unable to confirm that Davidson had been able to say a work-to-rule campaign undertaken by Halifax local workers had not been authorized by the union.

Although the government's receipt of the Moisan report places the union in a legal position to strike, there has been no vote on the report. Mr. Mackasey insists is the best offer the government intends to make.

Rhodes Backs Landlords

TORONTO (CP) — John Rhodes, Ontario housing minister, said Sunday landlords should be allowed to appeal imposed limits on rent increases. He said in an interview he thinks landlords should have the right to appeal curtailment of rent increases by fixed percentage, adding that a provincial tribunal would have to be set up to hear the appeals.

Employees Under Gun

TORONTO (CP) — The government's new selective wage controls will make public employees "front line cannon fodder of what will surely be a phony war on inflation," Stan Little, president of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) said today. In his opening speech to CUPE's biennial convention, Mr. Little said that inflation will not be controlled by the anti-inflation program introduced Oct. 13.

Jet Misses Runway

MEDICINE HAT, Alta. (CP) — A government jet carrying federal Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, his wife and three children missed the runway at the Medicine Hat airport on its first landing attempt Saturday and blew a tire when it finally landed on the second attempt. Nobody was injured and Mr. Whelan related the incident in a speech later in Maple Creek, Sask., about 60 miles east of here.

More Sunday Picketers

ST. THOMAS, Ont. (CP) — Employees of Dominion Stores and Loblaws demonstrated Sunday in front of an A and P store to protest Sunday openings by that food store chain. The protesters paced the sidewalk in front of the store and handed out information sheets to passers by.

Face Second Reading

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald says he hopes his new anti-inflation legislation will pass second reading, the first major hurdle in Commons passage, before his meeting this week with provincial finance and labor ministers.

OSSTF Asks Ontario To Reconsider Restraints

TORONTO (CP) — The executive council of the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation (OSSTF) has urged Premier William Davis to recall the legislature immediately to deal with the effects of federal wage controls on contract negotiations between school boards and teachers.

The 36-member council said in a news release that it recognizes the need for an anti-inflation program but called the federal program impractical and ill-conceived.

James Forster, OSSTF president, said 20,000 secondary school teachers, including 8,500 in Metropolitan Toronto, are without contracts. All teachers need assurance from the province that bargaining guidelines passed as law at the last session of the legislature will be allowed to work despite the federal wage controls, he said.

In a letter to Mr. Davis, Mr. Forster said the legislature, due to open Oct. 28, should meet earlier to discuss the situation and appoint a committee to hear interested groups and individuals.

This would allow the province to consider the matter at the same time Ottawa is discussing the federal proposals.

Mr. Forster said similar letters have been sent to all members of the Ontario legislature. The OSSTF also has written to federal MPs noting that wage and price controls will work only if they are based on equity and good faith, he said.

This implies that there will be effective price control as well as wage control," the letters read. "We will need to be convinced that there will be in fact effective price control."

Sunday Shopping Protest

By noon Sunday about 50 protesters were picketing the Dominion Store at Belleville Plaza. Most of the persons were Dominion employees who chose picketing in favor of working Sunday, the first time the store tried opening on that day. They also picketed the A and P store in the plaza.

50 Protest Sunday Hours, Labor Council Joins Action

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

About 50 persons protesting Sunday opening of chain food stores picketed the Dominion and A & P stores at Belleville Plaza Sunday.

Most of the picketers were employees of the Dominion store. They were joined by concerned citizens and members of the Quinte District Labor Council who had prepared a leaflet for picketers to give shoppers.

Frank Richards, Toronto representative of the employee's local 414 of Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Union also joined the picketers.

"We're trying to tell the public that Sunday shopping is going to cost them more money," said Mr. Richards.

He said it costs twice as much to have the stores open on Sundays than on weekdays.

He asked protesters to picket the nearby A & P store as well.

"We're protesting Sunday shopping. We shouldn't just be picketing Dominion. Our beef is not with Dominion."

They began picketing about 10 a.m. Store manager Carl McMullen refused to comment on the protest.

Quinte District Labor Council leaflet referred to the Sunday store opening as an "unwarranted intrusion into our way of life".

"The Quinte area has not seen these inroads into our way of life erode the family unit to any great extent until this past few weeks when giant chain stores such as A & P, Food City and now Dominion, have been opening Sundays," said the leaflet.

A P began the Sunday store hour controversy in Belleville when they first opened on Sunday in late September. They were followed by Food City on Thanksgiving Sunday.

The leaflet invited Quinte residents to "help the Dominion store and other Ontario workers retain their day of rest" by writing letters of protest to the provincial and municipal governments.

"Your family until now be the next to be broken up by your employer forcing you to work on Sunday," said the message from the labor council.

At least three picketers struck Murray's Food Market at 290 Front St., until about noon.

"I was wishing they'd stayed all day," said owner Murray Atkinson.

He said customers came shopping Sunday to see the picketers: "It was my biggest Sunday yet." The store has been opening Sundays for about three weeks.

Mike Amodeo, owner of Amodeo's Super Save Market on North Front said they were not picketed. The store has been open Sundays for about four year.

Food City, which opened Sundays about three weeks ago, was not visited by picketers.

Unfamiliar Employees Operate Dominion

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

An employee-picketer protesting at Dominion store at Belleville Plaza Sunday, said he recognized few workers in the store.

The employee who refused to be identified said workers had been recruited from stores outside Belleville.

Store manager Carl McMullen refused to comment Sunday.

A store employee who wished to remain anonymous said Saturday that "99 per cent" of the stores 68 employees were against working Sundays.

"I think they're invading my privacy," said a man picketing Sunday. He refused to be identified.

"I don't feel the company is doing it. They're forced into this position. They're doing it to keep an employed," he said.

"I don't blame the pickeeline said: "There's no need for it. If people can't get their shopping done on other days they're lazy."

Mr. McMullen said Saturday he has received word from the chain's head office in Toronto Friday ordering him to open the store Sunday.

"We don't like to open Sunday but are being forced to by our competition."

Cox May Lay Charge Against Food Stores

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

City Alderman Joe Cox says he may personally lay charges against supermarkets operating on Sunday, if city council takes no action today.

The issue of Sunday shopping hours is included in council's agenda for tonight's meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Mayor Ben Corke said the issue should be left in the hands of the provincial government.

"I heard what the major said and I'm going to fight him on it," said Ald. Cox.

"I'm going to press the issue and I'll lay a charge if no one else will," he said during a telephone interview. "If council doesn't act — and if someone has to swear out a charge — I'll do it."

Ald. Cox said there are pieces of legislation on city books and it is the city's responsibility to police the legislation.

Along the same vein, a news release from the Belleville Minute-ist Association states, "after a concerned discussion about the matter of Sunday store openings, we wish to express our common conviction that the keeping of the Lord's Day as a day of rest and worship is essential for the preservation of a desirable quality of family and social life."

Spain Asks UN to Discourage Moroccan March Into Sahara

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Spain today sought action by the United Nations Security Council to discourage Morocco's plan to march 350,000 unarmed Moroccan civilians into the disputed Spanish Sahara.

Sources said Spanish Ambassador Jaime de Pinies would ask the council at a meeting today to send UN observers to the frontier between Morocco and the Spanish colony.

In a submission to Olof Hybeck of Sweden, president of the Security Council, De Pinies wrote that "the announced invasion" endangers international peace and security and ignores the Saharans' right to self-determination.

Moroccan Ambassador Driss Blanni told Hydbeck that to call "the peaceful march an invasion" is "a distortion of facts. He said the marchers will be "civilian citizens, unarmed men and women, who received instructions not to reply to any attack by Spanish military forces."

The official Moroccan news agency said Sunday that King Hassan II's call for volunteers drew 362,000 enlistments within 48 hours. The marchers are to begin their journey Tuesday by rail, bus and truck toward Tarfaya, 15 miles from the border, and the 50-mile march from there across the desert to El Aaiun, the capital of the Spanish Sahara, is to begin about Oct. 24.

Convoys of trucks have started carrying food, water and blankets to Tarfaya.

The 105,000-square-mile territory contains one of the world's largest deposits of phosphate.

Morocco, already the world's largest exporter of phosphate, claims the northern part of the territory and Mauritania claims the southern and eastern portions adjoining it.

Spain and Algeria, which has an 18-mile border with the Spanish Sahara, favor a referendum to determine the wishes of the territory's 80,000 residents, most of them nomadic.

NDP Opposes Hydro's Increase

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, says his party will oppose the decision allowing Ontario Hydro to increase its rates by 27 per cent in 1976.

Mr. Lewis said the decision by the Ontario energy board to allow the increase "cannot be justified, especially—in light of the (federal-selective wage and price) controls announced Monday."

"Whether you agree with the controls package or not, and I emphatically do not, I must be recognized that Ontario can't logically encourage the federal government to enforce wage guidelines of eight to 10 per cent in this province, while Ontario Hydro received a rate increase almost three times as great,' he said at a news conference.

He said Ontario Hydro planned a growth rate of 7.3 per cent a year would require rate increases of "a further 26 per cent in 1977 and at least 26 per cent from 1978 throughout 1982."

Mr. Lewis, who is MPP for the Peterborough riding constituency office of Gill Sandman, newly-elected NDP member of the legislature.

The NDP leader took the provincial government to task for "alienating public employees, and teachers to Ottawa to negotiate wage demands with the federal government under the selective wage and price controls.

He said the federal government had no feel for the nuances of the issue of education and that unfair and unthinking settlements would be disruptive to the education process.

The province should establish its own conciliation tribunal to deal with the teachers and other public-sector employees, he said.

Unused Quarry To Become Park

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

FOXBORO — The Corbyville division of Thurlow Township Volunteer Fire Department hopes to "stock" an unused quarry by next summer.

Fire Capt. Bob Pearce said Saturday Thurlow Township Council has given the division permission to develop a large quarry near here into a park.

The quarry, about three acres, is located on about 15 acres of land just north of here behind the township's equipment buildings. Owned by the township, it is a former gravel pit.

"We're making it into a fire/fisherman's park," said Capt. Pearce, but added, "its going to be a community project."

Once completed the park will be in year-round use, he said.

During the summer, the park will have facilities for c a m p i n g , swimming and picnics. The quarry is springfed and can be maintained at an ideal depth for swimming, Capt. Pearce noted.

And with a surface area similar to that of an ice rink, it is perfect for winter skating, he pointed out.

However, the area is currently littered with garbage, brush and rock which must be moved, burned or covered over before the actual landscaping can begin.

"We're trying to pump the quarry out right now," Capt. Pearce said explaining it is necessary in order to clear the bottom of various items of trash.

Low water level enabled about 20 girl guides and members of the Outers Club, a youth group, to remove s o m e garbage including bicycles and a stove during cold winds Saturday morning. And they have yet to remove a refrigerator they found in the water.

Capt. Pearce said garbage dumping at the quarry is illegal and could result in a $300 fine for anyone caught and convicted.

To prevent such dumping in future, several large stones have been placed at the gateway. "We don't want people coming in with trailers and dumping their garbage in there," Capt. Pearce said.

He said the park will be important for townships residents who now have to go to Belleville or the Bay of Quinte for recreation. "There's nothing in Thurlow like it," he commented.

Capt. Pearce said the firefighters have little money to work with and hope for volunteer labor. "A lot of it will depend on the kids," he said.

The quarry will be utilized as a skating rink for the coming winter. "We hope enough water will come back in so it'll freeze and make a rink for the winter," he said.

Rare Swan Killed

EAST LAKE — Efforts to capture a rare mute swan here to prevent possible injury to unfriendly hunters failed when the large, white bird was found shot recently. Investigation into the illegal shooting is currently being carried out by ministry of natural resources employee, Bruce Stratton. During the summer, the swan had become a pet and area residents had named the bird, Grace.

Mute swans are protected by federal legislation and live trapping the bird was recommended as a result of a similar incident at Consecon Lake some years ago.

Cash Taken From Home

CHERRY VALLEY — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police this week is investigating the theft of $150 in cash from the home of George Kewley of Kewley Milk Delivery, Cherry Valley.

The money was reported missig Sunday and is believed to have been taken between 7:30 p.m. FrFriday and 7 a.m. Saturday when the Kewley's were away from home.

Police said there was no sign of forced entry.

Wasteland to Parkland

Capt. Bob Pearce of Corbyville and members of the Thurlow Township Volunteer Fire Department surveys portion of large quantity of waste retrieved from bottom of quarry near Foxboro Saturday. Firefighters have been given permission by Thurlow Township Council to develop quarry into 15-acre site into a park for township residents. The quarry will be used as a skating rink this winter.

Youth Faces Mixed Attitudes Says Grad

The life of a young person today is "tough and confusing" and most of his early years are spent listening to someone tell him to get lost, Moira Secondary School graduates were told Saturday.

Valedictorian David Joyce, now a commerce student at Queen's University, said in g r a d u a t i o n exercises, students probably remember their first days at the school as Grade 9 students as "bewildering".

"Wandering lost and alone through the maze of hallways is frightening enough..." he said.

When today's youth begins to grow up, he said, everybody puts "pressure" on him to start finding himself.

He told graduates startling changes occurred in the world environment which they were at Moira Secondary School.

The path of a bullet, he said, can result in world destruction and "just in the last few years the United States has been involved in the Watergate scandal, Ireland has reached its worst religious struggle ever."

"But we have had an advantage over other generation in growing up in the '70s. We have seen the maturing of the space age, with the U.S. now sending un-manned rockets to the planet Mars."

Graduates were awarded a total of 19 Ontario scholars who achieved more than 80 per cent in Grade 13 were honored in the exercises.

Unique Tool Speeds Rescue of Victims

CORBYVILLE — The "jaws of life", a high-powered, self-contained, maintenance-free h y d r a u l i c spreading and pulling device which the Quinte Rescue Squad hopes to purchase, can open a jammed-shut car in less than 15 minutes.

Officially titled the Hurst Power Rescue Tool, it is a hand-held, one-man, portable unit. Controls are operated by thumb-pressure from either hand.

With a maximum output of 10,000 lbs. of force at the tip of the jaws, it is manufactured by Hurst Performance, Inc. in Warminster, Pa., and is distributed by Pierre Thibault (Canada) Ltd. in Pierreville, Que.

Distributing company representatives demonstrated the tool for squad members behind the fire hall here recently, snapping off the doors with a shear attachment, snapping off the front of the roof and ripping it back, pulling the steering column up over the dash and pushing the front seat back from the dash.

Squad member Bob Pearce says current torch and saw methods in use would take from 45 minutes to an hour to accomplish the same task. However, the jaws implement operates without flames, grinding sparks or mechanical cutting — thereby reducing time by about two-thirds.

The tool weighs 55 lbs. and the power unit, connected by a 16-foot cord, eight 40 lbs. and can be permanently connected to the power system of a rescue vehicle.

Mr. Pearce says the tool would be an important asset to squad operations.

To get trapped occupants out of vehicles, members currently must use either a saw or a cutting torch. Both methods are slow and the latter can be dangerous in cases where gasoline has leaked.

TV Stolen

SCOHARIA — The Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police are seeking a 20-inch color television taken Saturday from a mobile home owned by Manco Home Systems here.

The trailer was parked on a lot owned by P. and W. Mobile Homes Ltd. Value of the television is estimated at $500.

Boundary Debate Tuesday

The federal Electoral Boundaries Commission for Ontario will hold a meeting to hear presentation on proposed new voting districts Tuesday at the Hastings County administration. A story last week in the Intelligencer incorrectly listed the meeting on Thursday.

The meeting is among a series being heard across the province on the commission's proposals for readjusting constituency boundaries.

Tomorrow's session start at 8.30 a.m.

Youth Pressured

David Joyce, Moira Secondary School valedictorian Saturday said it's paradoxical that today's youth spend their early years being told to "get lost" then everyone pressures them to start finding themselves.

Early Morning Blaze Levels Vacant House

BRIGHTON — A Trenton man has estimated he lost $10,000.00 when the house on his investment property in Murray Township burned to the ground early today, the same day he said he was going to renew his fire insurance.

Edward Lentz, RR 1 Trenton, said he cancelled the fire insurance for the vacant house located on the Smithfield Rd., when his insurance rates more than doubled this summer because the house was empty.

Mr. Lentz said he has owned the property and has been preparing it for tenancy for the last three years and just took out a loan to finance the improvements and to reinsure the premises.

Brighton Fire Fighters were called to the frame house shortly after midnight after a trucker spotted the fire while travelling on the 401 Highway, and had been alerted by the Ontario Provincial Police on his citizens band radio.

Mr. Lentz said he had been working at the house, late Sunday, and was using a wood burning stove to heat the premises. He said he believed this was the cause of the fire.

Dr. Kissinger Speaks of Canada-U.S. 'Consensus of Interdependence'

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

One could be cynical about the final arrival of Secretary of State Dr. Henry Kissinger in Ottawa, that it was planned for three earlier occasions, and was finally made to fit into his schedule of putting out global political fires.

The Latin Americans are still waiting, if that's the correct verb in this case, for a Kissinger visit. Except in their case, he has publicly postponed a hemispheric visit four times.

And that's hardly the way to shore up stroubly bad American relations with the increasingly independently-speaking major states of our hemisphere.

The other view is to share Dr. Kissinger's relief that relations between Canada and the U.S. are in no way as bad as those between most nations with whom he negotiates or in the case of Latin America, with those he won't yet visit.

However Dr. Kissinger accompanied by his wife in Ottawa, reiterated what we have all come to know, that the "special relationship" between the two countries has come to an end.

That "special relationship" had meant Canada was exempted either by decree or following Canadian request, from U.S. federal moves in trade, taxation and other fields affecting U.S. trading partners.

And it meant many other things, agreements in principle over the years between the high-level politicians and bureaucrats of both Ottawa and Washington who had come to know each other well in the long years of King, St. Laurent and Pearson in Ottawa, Roosevelt and Truman, Roosevelt, Kennedy and Johnson in the White House.

Much of the shift from the "special relationship" of the '40s, '50s and part of the '60s was due to the harsh economic moves made by Dr. Kissinger's former boss, retired president Richard Nixon.

In 1971-72 Nixon introduced the 10 per cent surcharge on all imports into the U.S., Canada being hardest hit as the largest exporter by far to the U.S.

Then there was the U.S. protectionist DISC scheme to give tax and investment incentives to far-flung American multi-national companies if they would place new or reconstituted plant facilities in the U.S. instead of abroad.

And finally there were rulings from the U.S. treasury, obviously made without any understanding of Canadian regional incentive programs, to try and prevent imports of Canadian goods from factories receiving Canadian federal and provincial subsidies.

Canada was told by Washington that such companies as Michelin Tire in Nova Scotia, were dumping cheap products on the American market because these were made in plants receiving state subsidies in violation of the terms of the GATT Agreement, and so forth.

Nevertheless in spite of those convoluted and one suspects Germanic-inspired phrases which Dr. Kissinger likes to use even in impromptu remarks, you will be glad to know Canada and the U.S. have a "consensus of interdependence."

But more important, whatever negotiations we carry out and decisions we make, are in no way internal words "truely arrived at".

Considering the kinds of decisions at that levels of transigence and just plain national interest Kissinger must deal with elsewhere, the Canada - American relationship given our common problems is a blessing for both nations and not one in dispute.

Inflation Psychology

Why Inflation?

Most of us are familiar with book definitions, as when the dictionary describes it as "an increase in the amount of currency in circulation, resulting in a relatively sharp and sudden fall in its value and rise in prices" and that it may be caused by an increase in the volume of paper money issued or of gold mined, or a relative increase in expenditures, as when the supply of goods fails to meet the demand."

How many politicians, from the Prime Minister on down, have been heard saying we "cannot take from the economy more than we put into it."

Very sensible, but who, up to this point, has been paying any attention?

Then again, the explanation has been put forth that inflation — rising prices and wage demands without commensurate output and all the rest of it — is motivated by "greed."

But what's the use of being greedy when all that increased money doesn't buy that much more?

And why restraint, for that matter, when everyone else is out for what he can get?

Why indeed?

Well, there's an answer in the controls the Government has introduced. The point had been reached when something had to be done before the monetary and economic system generally collapsed.

Now of course there is the question of how the controls will be applied. And applied fairly and equitably at that, and not through making fish of one group or category and fowl of another.

The main thing is to curb the psychology that impels people, members of the government included, to keep demanding more and more while producing less and less. And thus protect the value of the dollar and maintain the integrity of the economy as a whole.

"And are hereby sentenced to serve five years in Medicine Hat"

Sense of Proportion

In these days of activism and confrontation, issues and situations come and go and the one thing that is conspicuously absent is a sense of proportion.

What is it that is pointed out so eloquently in Desiderata? That no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should. Yet man is not satisfied without an atmosphere of crisis — real or imagined. As anyone with an eye to events knows, it is mostly the latter condition. Or else it is cultivated through the more extravagant claims of media communication in which the public at large participates.

Ontario health minister Frank Miller might have indulged in such nonsense when he said the other day he was tired of people complaining about health hazards facing Indians in northwestern Ontario while the complainers go on killing themselves with what he calls diseases of choice. Like exercising too little and smoking too much, and not wearing seat belts.

The minister's point was well taken. After all, as he told a questioner, the Indians have been eating fish for a thousand years or more.

At the same time, while recognizing a political football when it presents itself, let's not overlook these and other problems of the native people, including the appalling living conditions of some in that same northwestern region. Mr. Miller says the government has been working on the mercury problem for five years . . . how many more years must pass before some solution is found, either by cleaning up the water, or by providing a more varied diet?

Success Story

The story of Loyalist graduate Roger Reid's progress as a land surveyor is on inspiring one.

It says a lot about Reid himself and about the Community College's role in the educational system.

The young man has already travelled widely at home and abroad in the course of his work. At the same time he acknowledges there is still much to learn. At Loyalist though he acquired the basics, together with a lot of practical training. That way he has found himself an interesting career which he can pursue while learning more on the job and from book study.

Reid's observation about the growing significance of a Community College education is interesting. This is not to say the universities do not still have a vital role to play, but it does recognize the unique character of the colleges in upgrading, retraining and teaching in a wide range of disciplines.

An Egyptian fleet of the Ottoman Empire was destroyed at Navarino, off Greece 148 years ago today—in 1827—by a combined fleet from Britain, France and Russia. The action supported the Greek war of independence, which began in 1821, but without the big powers declaring war. A land attack on Turkey by Russia followed and war between Turkey and Egypt allowed modern Greece to come into being, but not without a civil war and hostility against the rule of Otto I.

1865—The seat of government was fixed at Ottawa.

1884—The first issue of La Presse was published in Montreal.

1919—The United Farmers party won the Ontario election.

1923—The Northwest Territories and Yukon radio system was officially opened.

1941 — Josef Stalin proclaimed that Moscow was under siege by the Nazis.

Hydro Projects and The Environment

Editor:
The Intelligencer:

Recently in an editorial on Hydro Power Progress and Environment it seems that they are concerned about the spoiling of our beautiful surrounding countryside. You say how much of our environment will be affected, will only be known when it is completed. Yet they use the terminology of preservation of the environment, aesthetics, natural beauty for their project.

According to a recent news brief from CBC, they have an ugly monster they are doing a good job of hiding, that is, radioactive waste from the nuclear power station at Pickering, Ont. This waste is in the open behind a fence in a devout dump.

It seems that from the erosion of the lake it is spilling into the water. The nuclear scientists tell us that half life or no effect on us. He has a problem, or doesn't know that carbon 14 has a half life of 5,300 years. That means it will be approximately 6000 years before it is half as dangerous as it is today.

We are in the process of building the largest nuclear power station in the world at Bowmanville, Ont. with a high speed reactor which produces many times the radioactive waste. They must realize they can not destroy, contain or live with this pollutant, they have created.

I don't like to be an alarmist but it doesn't matter what terminology the Hydro uses for spoiling mother earth. They should not emphasize and dress up a minor problem to ignore the real danger, the genetic mutations from their radioactivity.

As production increases or continues our need for energy will rise. Eight per cent of electrical power used in the world today is produced by reactors. In 25 years it will be over 50 per cent with a colossal amount of waste.

A change is necessary ... for spacesship earth, we conquer and humanize it, thereby becoming reconciled with it.

Solar Heat

Editor:
The Intelligencer:

Regarding heating, why not build houses of panelled glass (as in Century place) which absorb and reflect sunrays heat and reflect radiation. Those mirrors in the sun can be seen through outside while the other acts like a mirror; thus those inside see outside through the glass while the people on the outside see themselves in the mirror reflection.

It's worth of consideration - green house effect possible as substitute simply for protection from solar over-dose radiation.

Checkered Fortunes Of The NDP

TORONTO — Tuesday Oct. 28 will be a great day for the NDP.

When the first session of the new legislature opens that day the party will be occupying a position it has been desperately aiming at for more than 20 years.

It will be the official opposition.

Not too widely recognized is that this is the third time the NDP-CCF has been the official Opposition in our Ontario house.

Its success in 1943 when it took 34 seats and nearly won power is well known.

But tending to be forgotten is the fact that the party also formed the second largest party in 1948.

And looking back on this record could superficially be no solace for the party.

For each time after its burst of success it went into a sharp dive.

In 1945, the first election after '43 the 34 seats dropped to eight.

In 1951 after coming back with 21 seats in '48, it plunged to just two members.

Cause for thought.

The picture for the party, however, is not as bad as it would appear.

Circumstances were quite different in those earlier occasions close to the throne.

Flatly put, the representation in the '43 houle was atrociously bad.

The only one of the 34 members who had ever been in a parliament before was Agnes MacPhail and the other 33 were to be marvelled at in their inepteess.

Then also the '43 win was pretty much of a fluke. There was the lowest voter turn-out in the province's history, which meant the socialists voted in the first time really counted and the party didn't have a substantial base of support.

Then in 1948 the party's group in the house was dominated by Charlie Millard, Eamon Park and other hard-working people and it registered mainly as a labor party, which the public didn't buy.

But today the party does have a good and substantial base. It won 20 seats in 1967, repeated with 19 in 1971, now has its 28 and in each of those elections was able to win better than 27 per cent of the vote.

It also has some strong members who generally are more presentative of the community (though 17 of the 28 are teachers) and has firm and sometimes brilliant leadership from Stephen Lewis.

For the other parties to look for it fall on its face on the strength of the past record would be whistling Dixie.

Exemptions and Slap at Corporate Output Weak Points of Controls

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

It hasn't taken long for weaknesses to appear in the new controls on incomes and prices that were announced by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau on Thanksgiving.

The most obvious, perhaps, is the decision to exempt 20,000 post office inside workers from the controls.

After all, they are demanding a wage increase of only 71 per cent—what could be fairer than that?

To grant such an exemption, at the extent of the anti-inflationary program, immediately suggests that the Trudeau cabinet will knuckle under to other powerful pressure groups, if they talk tough enough.

A less obvious weakness, but a real one nevertheless, is the deterrent to new capital investment that is implicit in the freeze on business profit margins.

The rule is this: A company's profit at each unit of output is to be fixed in dollar terms—not percentage—at its pre-Thanksgiving average. Any increase is limited to the rise in the company's actual costs.

If you are running a company that had been turning an inadequate profit before, Trudeau slapped on the freeze, you must resign yourself to three more years of low return.

Faced with that prospect, you are likely to declare a freeze of your own—no more investment in new production facilities as long as Ottawa keeps the lid on your profit-taking.

The new production that you might otherwise have put on the market is therefore non-existent.

If that happens on a broad scale, then industrial growth will be at a standstill and the job market will no longer be able to absorb new entrants as it has been doing.

Thus the unemployment rate is likely to rise from the past six months' plateau of about 7.2 per cent of the labor force.

The other probable long-term result of a freeze in business capital spending is a worse shortage of the products of industry. This leads not only to greater inflation but also to black markets and a general Yorkshiremen-on-the-market system.

Granted, it would be politically dangerous to give even partial exemptions to business in order to ensure a continuation of normal investment and expansion—even though the politicians lost no time in giving an exemption to post office workers.

Let it also be granted that some firms have been earning an excessive rate of return on their investment, and must be reined in if inflation is to be curbed.

The controls prog.am must have public credibility—and the Trudeau government seems to be saying that there is room for flexibility.

Yet the prime minister, at the very beginning, exempted the bureaucracy from the freeze (the widespread belief that government should clamp down on itself is wrong—it has never went on to exempt a big union that is making big waves.

A way must be found, within the framework of a generally laudable program of restraint, to ensure that Canadian business can earn enough to keep capital investment alive in the meantime and period of reduced consumer spending power.

A Beer Anyone ?

Windsor Star

Let's Beer it for the American Medical Association.

Doctors addressing the AMA convention told what a large number of us have openly suspected and covertly known for years: there is no bad beer produced anywhere in the world.

Beer, the AMA was told, is universally safe substitute for water and other liquids that can cause the travellers' malady, diarrhea. Apparently, W.C. Fields had a point when he made his rather disparaging remark about water.

The AMA also learned that beer is one of the best things to prevent dehydration because you get salt from it.

Also, they were told still further, it works in your favor by keeping the kidneys open.

Cyclists Raise $4,000 For ARC

TRENTON — A Belleville gorilla, some Trenton rats and two Quinte political animals helped raise almost $4,000 for the local chapter of the Association for the Mentally Retarded, Saturday.

The Trenton and Brighton District Association for the Mentally retarded's first annual bike-a-thon was held under threatening skies but 56 of the 60 participants who began the muscle for money effort finished the 16-mile trip to Frankford and Back.

Hugh O'Neil, Quinte MPP and George Hees, Prince Edward-Hastings MP, and the oldest participant at 60, kicked off the trip but withdrew after five miles.

A Belleville woman, Marie Haizer, was later identified as the gorilla girl who travelled the entire route inside the anthropoid costume earning more than $425 in sponsored mileage money for the campaign to finance and expand the ARC workshop and support the associations pre-school program.

The radio association if Trenton (RAT), a new organization for the town, had nine radi-equiped cars on the road to monitor the bikers activities and to help anyone who needed assistance.

John Seawright, a former marathon racer ran the route in under two hours. Bud Leveridge, 60, was the participant with the highest pledges-per-mile at $38.21 and earned $611.36 for the expansion fund.

Robert Haker, organizer of the bike-a-thon and a-participant, said there are 24 workers at the centre but it is too small and there are more prospective members who could and would be accomodated when the planned expansion takes places.

Popular Organist Draws Standing Ovation for Concert

By TERRY SPRAGUE
Staff Correspondent

PICTON — A standing ovation was given well - known pipe organist, Rosa Rio Saturday night when she played before a capacity crowd of 1,200 at the United Church here. The special concert was in recognition of the 50th anniversary of the United Church of Canada.

Among those responsible for the talented musician's appearance in Picton was Cleaman Blakely of Picton, a member of the American Theatre Organ Society. The Blakely's are friends of Rosa Rio and say that they attend "every one of her concerts within driving distance of Picton." It was after a recent concert at the Thomaston Opera House in Connecticut, that the Blakely's invited the organist to perform in Picton.

Rosa Rio's husband, William Yeoman, is an integral part of the concerts, acting as master of ceremonies. Together they have performed throughout the world as well as giving a command performance before the United Nations.

Also appearing on the program Saturday night were Hazelanne and Robert Reid, soprano soloist and choir director respectively, of the Bridge Street United Church, Belleville. Winners of numerous scholorships, they have performed throughout Canada and the United States in concerts, as well as with the Toronto Symphony. For many years they were guest soloists on the CBC in radio and television.

The two-hour concert featured a number of selections including hymns, a medley of themes from radio and television shows and several compositions of Jesse Crawford, Victor Herbert and Sigmund Romberg.

Quinte Cuisine

Apple butter is just one of the many kinds of preserves Pemela MacWhirter has enjoyed making this fall. Mrs. MacWhirter, who is a teacher, husband Chuck, also a teacher, and children Sarah and Katie live on Foster Avenue. Her advice on apple butter: just keep stirring.

Apple Butter

eight quarts apple
two pounds white sugar one pound brown sugar
one quart apple cider ½ oz. cinnamon
one tsp. ground cloves

Peel and core apples, cut in small pieces. Place about one quarter of the apples in a large heavy bottom kettle with apple cider. Place over medium heat and begin stirring. Cook and stir at a simmer, gradually adding remaining apples and sugar. Cook until very very thick, about four to five hours. Taste for sweetness (the mixture tastes sweeter when warm) and add spices. Ladle into hot sterilized jars and seal. Makes about four pints.

Sweet Adelines Welcome Many New Members

Ten new members were recently welcomed into the prospective Bay of Quinte Chapter of Sweet Adelines. The chorus now has 52 members from Belleville, Trenton, Picton, Brighton and surrounding areas.

President Mary Lou Leiersky welcomed the women and the Chorus Director Aileen Speed, presented each one with a corsage. Marianne Bunt, vice-president, read the Sweet Adeline code of ethics and also, "What is a Member?" pointing out that what a person contributes to any group governs the enjoyment one receives in return. The chorus welcomed them with "You're as Welcome as the Flowers in May."

The new members are: Ruth Bate, Doreen Chenet, Jean Cox, Marcia Giles, Sybil Hennebury, Lorraine Lawson, Marilyn Martin, Muriel McNeil, Gale Nobes and Marilyn Sager.

The rest of the evening was spent rehearsing for the Chapter's part in the United Appeal show to be held at Centennial Secondary School on October 24, and the evening with the Concert Brass at Tabernacle United Church on October 26.

New Woman Manager Heads City's First 'All Women' Bank

The Royal Bank has added a new dimension to its newest Belleville branch. It'll be a bank staffed entirely by women.

On October 22 the Royal Bank will officially open its branch on Dundas St. East and Luella MacKinnon will be Belleville's first female bank manager.

"It's news that a woman manager is a novelty in Belleville but it is not news that women have this sort of capability," says Mrs. MacKinnon. She was one of 16 women recently selected by the bank to participate in an accelerated management development program

Being a bank manager wasn't always her ambition, she says. Neither has women's liberation had a thing to do with Mrs. MacKinnon career choice and speedy ascent of the banking ladder.

"I was a librarian in Kingston when I was offered a job in the bank," she said. At first I declined the offer, but that Monday I reported for work as a posting clerk."

Having no intentions of becoming a manager, Mr. MacKinnon progressed through a variety of jobs in the bank. "now I have an appreciation of the problems that can arise for various departments," she said.

Are there special problems attached to being a woman bank manager?

"The only problem was in Sydenham as a senior accountant," said Mrs. MacKinnon.

"Historically, the bank's senior accountant doubled as the treasurer for the local men's chapter of the Jaycees . . . one job that I couldn't do."

Apart from that it's a matter of knowing what to do with customers, she said.

"The door is wide open with opportunities for women. "You just have to be prepared to give some things up .. particularly time."

"The rise from banking jobs that traditionally have been done by women to a manager's position hasn't change me much other than that my experience has given me more confidence," she said.

Asked whether her position would put any constraints on her, she said, "I dont have to become masculine in function in my job."

This week Mrs. MacKinnon and her accounant and second-in-command Nancy Carr are developing last minute preparations for their branch that will be completely staffed by women.

"We hope customers come to see us not because we are women but because we're competent," said Mrs. MacKinnon.

Daniel Rodier. Scholarship student. Dedicated to becoming a marine biologist.

Will he make it?

Yes, he will.

Danny's a brilliant student. There's no end to what he wants to learn. Yet Danny's no hermit. He really enjoys a good time.

One of the things Danny's learned at university is how to keep those good times good. When he drinks, whether it's beer, wine or spirits, he knows his limit and he respects it.

Another year or so, and Danny will be working in a field that's fascinated him all his life. He wouldn't risk spoiling the opportunity for anything.

Yes, Danny is going to make it.

No, he won't.

Danny's a brilliant student. There's no end to what he wants to learn. Yet Danny's no hermit. He really enjoys a good time.

That's the problem. It's not that he sets out to drink too much, but once Danny starts he often forgets he has a limit, and then it's too late.

Danny would be wise to see a doctor, except he says it's just a phase he's going through. His work hasn't suffered yet. But if Danny doesn't change, it soon will.

And, no, Danny won't make it.

Wife's Two Letters Tell Sad Story of Marriage Breaking

Dear Ann Landers: Will you do me a special favor and print two letters from me in your column? The first I wrote to my husband 15 years ago and kept a copy of. The second I mailed to him last night. Thank you for your special consideration. — B.L.

Dear B.L.: Aug. 1, 1960

Dear Jack: For what seems like the millionth time I walked into the house tonight and you are not here. You aren't out fooling around. You are at work on the night shift.

I never wanted you to take that shift and we argued about it. You thought it was well worth the extra money. I told you I didn't care about the money, that I'd rather have a normal family life. But I lost the battle.

Our children are sick of hearing me say, "Shhh—your father is asleep." They can't bring their friends home after school or practice the piano. I can't have a table of bridge or the garden club meetings here. You need your rest.

The years slip away so rapidly. We seem to be growing further apart. Then there's this matter of your health. I look at you and see a tired, middle-aged man who needs regular hours, regular meals and a regular routine.

I realize you are doing what you think is best for me and the children, but you're wrong. Will you please reconsider? I love you. — Your Wife

Here's the second letter which I mailed last night:

Dear Jack: When the judge said, "Divorce granted," you vaguely resembled a man I used to know—but you looked about 40 years older.

There is no point in going into the whys and wherefores, but I wonder now, if you could have gazed into a crystal ball and seen what the future held, would you have done things differently?

Our children view you as a stranger. You missed out on all the fun when they were growing up. The few good friends we had dropped us along the way. We could never seem to get together.

So now our marriage is over and we must both make new lives for ourselves. If it had been another woman I would have felt better. But it was something far more insidious—good luck, dear. — Your Ex-Wife.

Dear Friend: Here are both your letters. I print them for the value they might have to others who may be struggling with the same problem. Thanks for sharing your sad story. Perhaps someone, somewhere, will learn from it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 21, a college junior, and a serious student. The young woman he has been dating since his freshman year is very attractive. She is well-mannered, does well in school and I like her.

The problem: My husband knows they have been having sex for the last year (at least) and he really displises the girl because of it. If she were our daughter, it might be understandable. But why my husband has these hostile feelings toward her is beyond me.

I'm sure they are in love and plan to marry. I hate to think of the trouble ahead for this girl because of my husband's irrational attitude. How can I help? — Trouble a'Brewin'

Dear Brew: Don't argue with your husband about the situation or try to defend the girl. Just keep the lid on.

Irrational people are unreachable. Let's hope Dad's anger subsides. If not, he'll find himself the victims of his own isolation.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I wore a plum-colored outfit to the office. A woman I work with complimented me on the ensemble and said she has a suede bag exactly the same color which she had worn only a few times. "I'd love for you to have it," she said, "I'll bring it tomorrow."

Today she brought the bag and it was a perfect match. When I thanked her she said, "I didn't mean it as a gift. I had in mind selling it to you at cost. The price is $40."

I almost fell through the floor. I told her I couldn't afford it and thanked her anyway. In all my life I have never sold an article of used clothing to a friend. Now I feel our relationship has been hurt. Am I naive? Am I stupid? Was she crass? I need your opinion.—Plum-Faced

Dear P. F.: Selling used clothing to friends, generally speaking, is not a good idea. The woman should have made it clear from the outset that she intended to sell you the bag. Forget the incident and hopefully she will, too.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a woman, 20, unmarried, and I have a six-month-old daughter. I have not seen my child's father since I told him I was pregnant—nor do I care to. He has never seen his little girl. If I can help it, he never will.

When strangers stop me on the street to admire the child and ask, "Where is her father?" what should I say?

In this day and age, why do people assume that every child has a father? How can I let them know, without going into my life's story, that I have no husband and I wish they wouldn't be so nosy?

With the increasing number of out-of-wedlock children being born, something should be done to help those like myself.—Just A Little Different

Dear Just: Every child has a father, whether he is married to Mommy or not. Rather than give your child on the defensive, I suggest you tell her, when she begins to ask questions, that she does, indeed, have a father but you didn't marry him. You should also add that you love her enough to make up for her father's love, even though he isn't able to live with her.

I sense your enormous hostility toward the father and I hope you'll get over it before you poison the child's mind. Maybe the man is a no-good rat, but turning a child against an absent parent never helps. As for the inquiries from strangers, a simple "Her father is away" will do very nicely.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you've printed several letters already about the 20-year-old boy who slept at his friend's house and wet the bed. Please, find room for one more.

As a child I, too, was a bed-wetter. But by the time I was 11 years old, I overcame the habit. The shame and guilt a bed-wetter feels is indescribable.

I can understand objecting to a guest who brings a dog that is not housebroken, but a bed-wetter is not a dog. It seems to me a person's feelings are more important than a mattress—has feelings, too.

Been In The Same Boat

Dear Been: Sorry, but a 20-year-old is no "boy." He's a man. And he knows whether or not he can trust his bladder.

If he has a problem he should take precautions as a recent writer suggested—rubber pants with padding underneath—and a plastic sheet. I agree a person's feelings are more important than a mattress, but a bedsea[illegible]

Rub Parlors Will Face Fines Before They Submit to Licences

TORONTO (CP) — Operators of some of the city's body rub parlors say they will face prosecution rather than obey a new bylaw requiring them to have licences, which comes into effect next Sunday.

The new regulations demand a licence fee of $3,000, place a ban on advertising, limit hours and require all girl attendants to have health certificates.

Joe Martin, owner of five parlors, says he is willing to be charged and face stiff fines to fight the regulations.

There were an estimated 100 parlors doing business in the city two months ago, but 40 since have closed, a spokesman for the Metropolitan Toronto Licencing Commission said.

So far only five applications for licences have been filed, the spokesman said. The new law will permit only 25 licensed parlors.

Arnold Linetsky—who is taking his challenge of the new regulations to the Supreme Court of Ontario—applied for a licence Wednesday. In a letter accompanying the application, he said his move was not to be taken as an admission of the validity of the new rules.

Jamming TV Signals Considered a Scare

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A lawyer for the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) says a proposal by three television stations in Buffalo, N.Y., to jam signals coming into Canada is an attempt to change Canadian policy by scare tactics.

Speaking to the Ontario Bar Association, Peter Grant, a special counsel for the CRTC, said Saturday that if the Buffalo stations jam signals into Canada, "they will be able to scare us."

Mr. Grant said the attempt to jam signals was an effort to get Canadians to put pressure on the federal government and the CRTC to drop the CRTC ruling (Canadians) into doing anything their broadcasting policy determines."

Operators of the Buffalo stations—WGR, WKBW, and WGR—have asked the U.S. regulatory body, the Federal Communications Commission, for permission to jam signals coming into Canada.

Mr. Grant said the attempt to jam signals was an effort to get Canadians to put pressure on the federal government and the CRTC to drop the CRTC ruling that Canadian operators of cable systems must substitute Canadian commercials for U.S. commercials when picking up programs from the stations.

Mr. Grant said the ruling is being considered by the Supreme Court of Canada but he feels the CRTC has the superior moral position.

He said the Buffalo stations draw $8 million in advertising revenue from Canadian companies because of the proximity of the Canadian television audience.

"The $8 million is a small part of the revenue made by the Buffalo stations, but it represents 10 per cent of all the television revenue in Canada," he said.

Lang Says Ottawa May Nationalize Dredging If High Bids Continue

TORONTO (CP) — Otto Lang, federal transport minister, said Sunday the federal government may have to consider nationalizing the dredging industry or may have to open bidding internationally if excessive bids continue.

In an interview on CTV's WS television program, Mr. Lang said the government "cannot ignore the danger of excessive bids, and we will therefore have to look at such extreme measures for our own safety."

Mr. Lang said that nationalization of the dredging industry would mean moving dredging out of the commercial sector where the government ordinarily would like to have it.

WS said that bids entered on two dredging jobs in the St. Lawrence River, for which tenders were called last August, were four to five times greater than government estimates.

The bids for the jobs at Ile d'Orleans near Quebec City, and Cap Sante were rejected by officials of the transport department who said the bids were not justified, WS said.

Stan Powell, general manager of McNamara Marine Ltd. of Ontario, told WS that the price quoted by the company was justified and he offered to meet with Mr. Lang to discuss the situation.

Macdonald Predicts Trouble with Unions

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Donald Macdonald says Canada will be in for a "stormy period" if unions defy the government's selectivity wage and price controls.

Speaking in an interview taped for broadcast Sunday on the CTV program Question Period, Mr. Macdonald said he is not deterred by the initially negative response of organized labor because unions are expressing their concern about the effect of the anti-inflation measures on low-income earners.

However, if unions strike to back excessive wage demands "I think that we would be in for a stormy period. Theres no doubt about it."

Labor spokesmen have voiced opposition to the guides and the United Auto Workers union says it will defy them in talks with the auto industry next summer.

Mr. Macdonald said he hopes legislation establishing the program will be approved by Parliament within a couple of weeks. It was introduced in the House on Thursday.

He said the lack of a close relationship between labor and the government in Canada did not allow use of the British system of wage controls, with pay increases limited in dollar terms rather than percentage of the existing wage. He said the British government was able to obtain union agreement for straight dollar limits but did not attempt to control the incomes of highly-paid professionals such as doctors and lawyers.

Bobcats Are Only Undefeated Team in Metro Junior B League

It appeared to a good number of the fans at the game that played out Sunday at the Belleville Memorial Arena that the visiting Pickering Panthers were about to write a timely (as far as Pickering were concerned) end to the Belleville success story. The Cats have ever had other plans and rallied to score five unanswered goals in the third period to edge the visitors 7-6.

With a little better than two minutes left to play in the second period Belleville found themselves on the very short end of a 5-6 score. Up until that time Belleville had been unable to buy a goal at any price including a first period penalty shot.

"They just don't want to lose," said a very happy Belleville coach Meehan Bonnar.

"The turning point had to be the two goals we scored in the last minutes of the second period,' added the coach.

Bonnar was referring to the first goals of the game for Belleville by Mike Crawford and Tony Meagher.

"We were in the dressing room between the second and third period and had a little talk and the guys knew what they had to do and went out and did it," explained Bonnar.

Both clubs came out flying in the opening minutes of the first period and with the game tied 1-1 for the first minutes old, Belleville was awarded a penalty shot. Pickering's goaltender Pat Pickering player had fallen on the puck in the corner.

Grant Goegan was designated by the Bobcats to take the free shot whalch, at that time, would have given the locals a 1-0 lead. Panther goalie Dick Bouchard did exactly as he was supposed to, letting the forward make the first move, and made an easy pad save on the shot.

From then on the Panthers could make no mistakes and their fast, hustling pace was rewarded with three goals by the end of the period. Belleville, had their chances, including a shot that hit the post, but just couldn't put the puck by Bouchard, who was especially good on the close in tries.

Starting goaltender for Belleville, Bob Moore was replaced around the midway mark of the second period after the fourth Panther goal. "I didn't take Bob (Moore) out because he was playing bad, but because I just thought that the team needed a lift," said Bonnar.

Early in the third period, Belleville had found the weak spot on the visitors goalie. Andy Ricketts and Bob Thompson each fired goals high to the goalies glove side before the Pickering coaching staff decided it was time for a change.

Rob Chase was credited with the tying goal for Belleville, after a scramble in front of the Pickering goal, setting the stage for the winner by Goegan.

The ahth Belleville goal, that proved to be the winner came as a measure of revenge for Goegan. His hard shot was blocked by the Pickerers' netminder and deflected high into the air. The puck goalie lost sight of the puck, it dropped straight down behind him, hit hem on the back and bounced into the net. Goegan fired his second goal into an empty net on a pass from Meagher with three seconds left in the game.

The win by the Cats again brought mention of the word spirit which literally bubbles over on the Belleville team. The local squad out shot the visitors by a 30-22 margin and also picked up 32 minutes in penalties as compared to 20 obtained by Pickering.

Lions Win First Game Of Wrigley Elimination

Belleville Lions Midgets lost the toss deciding home game advantage in their two-out-of-three series with Kingston, but it didn't stop them from winning the first game Sunday 4-2 in the Limestone City.

The Lions are playing for the right to represent Ontario in the Wrigley Midget Hockey Tournament in Calgary next spring. The second game of their best series — they need to win five series in all, against Ontario Minor Hockey Association AAA clube — will be played tonight at 7 p.m. at the Memorial Arena.

Randy Hotelkinson scored the winning goal late in the third. Until that time Bruce Hamilton, Belleville netminder, had staved off several Kingston surges. Howie Coons scored the insurance marker into an empty net.

Kingston had fired up with a goal in the late stages of the first period and a goal early in the second period. Belleville again took the lead on a goal by Louie Crawford but Kingston roared back to score three goals in one stage. The final Belleville goal came at the midway mark of the second period as Robert Sou tucked the puck behind th Kingston netminder.

Belleville was unable to contain the high flying Kingston team in the second half of the game as the winners added four unanswered goals to clinch their second victory in two days.

Bill Rose led the Belleville Major Bantams with a three goal performance to a 10-7 rout of the Kingston Township team. Clarence Brookema with singles going to. Mark Crawford, Steve Mellira, Steve Murphy and Kevin Meagher.

A last minute gamble paid off for the Belleville juveniles as they scored a win with 27 seconds remaining in the third period the earn a 4-4 tie with Peterborough in Sunday's contest in Peterborough. Belleville had removed their goaltender in favour of an extra attacker; the move paid off as Ross MacLeod fired the equalizer.

MacLeod's goal was the second of the day for the Belleville winger. Gary Thompson and Roger Chapman rounded out the local scoring with their singles.

The only other game played was an exhibition contest between the Belleville minor Atoms who bowed out to Napanee 2-1. Tod Cook was the only Belleville player to beat the Napanee goaltender.

Comets Earn Tie

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Charlie Gamble scored with less than seven minutes remaining in the game to save Napanee Comets a 5-5 tie with visiting Whitby Mercury Bowmanville Hockey Association Senior A action Sunday.

In Saturday's only game, Cambridge Hornets defeated the Comets 11-4 at Cambridge.

Convery took the park at the Whitby Mercury and shot a six foot unassisted goal past Whitby goalie Brian Wilson at 12:28 of the third period Sunday.

Belleville, Kingston Corner Awards

KINGSTON (Special) — Tommy Moran, top scorer in the Premier Soccer League, turned playmaker here, Sunday, setting up the only goal of the game at Italo-Canadians injured Portuguese 1-0 in an all Kingston Buxey Cup final.

Moran beat three Portuguese defenders before passing off to Goron who fired the ball home.

At the Premier League's annual general meeting, Moran and teammate Jim Kennedy about with two referees of Belleville Olympics, received individual awards.

Moran was honored as the league's top scorer with 18 goals and Kennedy was named best, defender in the six-team loop.

Bob Watson and Zdravko Funder were the Belleville players selected for their solid play over the season.

Watson was named the league's most valuable player and Fundic, most gentlemanly player.

Moved from a defensive position to a role as striker, Watson scored twice to the Olympics' attack and was a driving force in every match. Fundic, noted for his ability to concentrate on soccer in the rough going, was a popular choice as MGP.

Pickering Panthers' goaltender, Richard Bouchard folded another Belleville attempt by Bob Thompson in the first period of Sunday's Metro Junior B hockey game at the Memorial Arena. The Cats rallied to score five goals in the third period to earn a 7-5 win and keep their undefeated record intact. Bouchard consistently held off everything the Belleville club could shove at him right up until the late stages of the second period when the Bobcats' come-back drive got under way.

LeClair Foiled by Faulty Clutch

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Sportswriter

Failure to use timing clutch LeClair does not take lightly. The diminutive Tweed resident looks on his unsuccessful attempt at setting a new water record for snowmobiles as a lost battle, but to no extent the termination of the war.

Next year I'm going to build me a machine and, well, we'll see then," said the fiery little Frenchman.

LeClair's comments came Sunday after he was pulled from the icy waters of Stony Lake for the second time. Originally he has planned on making one run at the 700 foot record. But when failing miserably in his initial trial he bounced right back for a second bout.

His second shot was little better than the first. He surpassed the 100 foot mark, but was still 600 feet short of the record and some 2.00 feet short of his anticipated destination, a small island in the middle of the lake.

"I'm completely dissatisfied with myself," said LeClair as he stood quivering from the chill of the brisk autumn air.

While LeClair looked upon the afternoon as a personal defeat he did earn the satisfaction of success for Tweed's Kinsmen Club. The underdog reason for his daredevil stunt was to raise operating monies for the new organization in the small village.

CLAUDE LeCLAIR tacle. Combined with cutlers circuits and raffle ticket sales, the gate receipts should be enough to give the Kinsmen their objective.

LeClair's first attempt came at 2:25 p.m. Saddled on his 650 modified Alouette, the Flying Frenchman raced into the mouth of Stony only to be swallowed up 91 feet from shore.

He wanted to hit the water at 70 mph. Instead he sputtered in at 30 mph and quickly went under.

"I blew the clutch half way down the runway," said the 35-year-old racer, "this machine doesn't have any brakes so I couldn't stop."

LeClair did the only thing he could. His machine was revved up to full power and off that even with the rapid rate of deceleration it wouldn't stop before hitting the shoreline. He simply rode it into the water.

"I couldn't leave it at that," said LeClair. "If I was going to set a new record it would have been on the Alouette, but I wasn't going to settle for 91 feet."

An hour and a half after his first attempt, he climbed aboard a second machine built on a skidoo frame.

"I knew this snowmobile would not go very far because it had the wrong kind of track. But I had to do something," he explained.

The results of the second run were as dismal as the day itself. Still, Claude LeClair, though twice defeated in one day, will, sometime in the future, make another assault on Lake Stoco aboard some sort of a snowmobile.

A short clip of the days activities will be shown next Sunday on CJOH-TV on the program Regional Contact. If he has missed seeing it in person, take a good look at the bizzare sport of water snowmobiling, on film.

Olympics, Tonys Advance to Final

TRENTON — Cobourg Tony's and Belleville Olympics moved to the final in the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association's Trenton Challenge Cup series here, Sunday.

Tony's blanked Trenton Citizens Finance 2-0 after Olympics had subdued Quinte Italo-Canadians 7-2 as the semi-finals were run off in the rain and mud at Centennial Park.

Olympics had to come from behind to get by Italo.

Applying the pressure early, Italo forged into a 2-0 lead on goals by Nick Del Grosso and Joe Romano.

Olympics fought back and it was 2-2 at the half. Dave Kidd got the comeback started and Bob Watson connected for the equalizer on a header off a corner kick.

In the second half, Watson completed his hat-trick with a pair of Olympic counters and singles were added by Kidd, Chris Huckle and Zdravko Fundic.

Tony's had their hands full in the match with the Trenton side. Citizens once again went to minor soccer ranks for players and came up with 13-year-old Sandy Stephens and David Boers who gave the club a full 11-man lineup.

Only five minutes remained in the first half when Tony's clicked for the only goal they needed. John Howard converted a cross from Peter Bahr for the scoring play.

Late in the second half, Cobourg's Brian Reid broke down the centre, was brought down on a tackle from Dennis Woodstock, but regained his feet in time to regain control of the ball and whip home the insurance goal.

Tony's Cup final is set for Centennial Park, Sunday. Game time is 3 p.m.

Lancers Finish Winless Season

By TOM GAVEY
Staff Writer

Bitter cold and high winds did nothing to enhance the Loyalist Lancers chances of coming up with a big win over Algonquin College on Saturday at Sir James Whitney field.

The Eastern Ontario Junior Soccer league game ended with Algonquin winning 5-0.

The victory gave the team from Ottawa a strangle hold on first place and the league pennant. The loss put Loyalist into cellar, with 0-6 record, and out of next weekend's playoff tournament in Kingston.

The first half Loyalist came out strong, with a number of good scoring chances and so marker for Algonquin. However, when the second half began a quick Algonquin goal seemed to kill the Lancer's enthusiasm.

Rookie goaltender Steve Montgomery could not be faulted for his play as two of the visitors' goals were on penalty shots.

On defence Dennis Woodstock played an aggressive game. During the summer he is a regular with Citizens Finance of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League.

"We have a number of first year players, who will take the brunt of the blame," said coach Peter Crowle.

"The last half of the league has improved immensely over last year" he added.

"The cold weather and high winds definitely did have an effect on the game, and long kicks in the second half went one way; towards the Loyalist goal.

"You've got to give these boys credit, They've worked hard and haven't given up," stated Crowle.

Jorne Reford and Chris Grayson were two of the Loyalist forwards who gave the Algonquin goalie some anxious moments.

The Cats, from Ottawa, were potent and well collected. They seemed capable, especially in the scend half, of passing five and still not a play.

It was the Loyalist teams last game of the season.

"We'll be back next year and we should be grcatly improved," said Crowle.

Approximately 1,000 people faced inclement weather to watch Claude LeClair attempt to snowmobile across the top of Stoco Lake, Tweed, Saturday. LeClair's attempts at skimming over 2.00 feet of open water were disappointing to say the least. Here, in his second attempt at the stunt, he managed to get just over 100 feet from shore before his 400 Rupp Nitro went under. The Tweed father of three claims he'll try again next year.

Big Night for Rangers

No Stopping Flyers

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Philadelphia Flyers didn't let a little thing like the off-season spoil their National Hockey League regular-schedule undefeated streak.

The Flyers won their fifth game of the season, Saturday night, defeating Detroit Red Wings 5-1 in Philadelphia's Spectrum, where Detroit hasn't been able to claim victory in more than four years.

The Flyers have not lost a regular-season game since losing to Pittsburgh Penguins 8-3 last March 8. That's not including the playoffs which ultimately resulted in Philadelphia's second consecutive Stanley Cup.

The victory also extended the Flyers' unbeaten streak at the Spectrum to 18 games.

In other NHL games Sunday, New York Rangers downed Vancouver Canucks 8-1, Buffalo Sabres edged Washington Capitals 5-4, Chicago Black Hawks beat Minnesota North Stars 3-2 and Boston Bruins shut out Toronto Maple Leaf 4-0.

Saturday, Toronto topped the Rangers 4-1, Boston beat New York Islanders 5-2, Philadelphia and Montreal Canadiens played to a 2-2 tie, Atlanta Flames downed Kansas City Scouts 5-3, Pittsburgh Penguins beat Detroit 6-1, Chicago defeated the North Stars 5-1, the Sabres downed St. Louis Blues 5-3 and Los Angeles Kings beat Minnesota Seals 5-2.

The Flyers took a 2-0 lead in the first period with goals by Ross Lonsberry and rookie Mel Bridgman 49 seconds apart. Orest Kindrachuk made it 3-0 mid-way through the second period before Nick Libett spoiled Wayne Stephenson's shutout bid with a Detroit goal at the 13-minute mark.

Bill Barber and Bob Kelly scored the other Philadelphia goals.

The line of Jean Ratelle, Steve Vickers and Rick Martin combined for three goals and six assists to help the Rangers manhandle the Canucks.

The Rangers line of Rick Middleton, Wayne Dillon and Pat Hickey added two goals and four assists. The loss was Vancouver's fourth in six tries.

Alain Daigle, filling in for the injured Stan Mikita, scored two first-period goals to lead the Black Hawks to a sweep of their weekend series with Minnesota.

Rick Martin scored three goals in the first period as the Sabres built up a 4-0 lead, then held on for their win over Washington.

Buffalo's Don Luce was awarded a penalty shot in the second period when he was tripped from behind as he skated in on the net. Washington goalie Ron Low poke-checked the puck away before Luce got away a shot.

Andre Savard and Terry O'Reilly broke a scoreless tie with goals 27 seconds apart in the second period to give the Bruins all they needed in their win over Toronto. Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert kept its saves in recording the shutout.

Clippers Clipped

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Defenceman Joe Zanussi scored one goal and assisted on three others Sunday night as Providence defeated Baltimore Clippers 6-3 in a penalty-filled American Hockey League game.

The Clippers led 2-1 at 15:36 of the second period when Boyd Anderson of the Reds, pushed from behind by a Baltimore defender, pushed the puck between the pads of Dunc Wilson for the tying goal.

Wilson chased referee Terry Pierce to the blue line and received a two-minute penalty and a game misconduct.

His replacement, Dave Hainsworth, gave up three power-play goals in the closing minutes of the second period that sealed the Clippers' fate. The loss was the first in four starts for Baltimore, which leads the Southern Division with six points.

In Sunday's other games, Nova Scotia Voyageurs nipped Springfield Indians 3-2 and Rochester Americans topped New Haven Nighthawks 5-1.

Saturday, the Clippers beat the Reds 6-3 and Richmond Robins downed Hershey Bears 6-2.

Rochester and Nova Scotia share first place in the Northern Division with six points each.

Providence's scorers, in addition to Zanussi and Anderson, were Ed Johnstone, Dave Maloney, Jerry Byers and Mitch Bahin. Steve Richardson, Freddy Speck and Jerry Radisk scored power-play goals for Baltimore.

Pierre Mondou's goal with a little more than two minutes remaining gave the Voyageurs their win in Glace Bay, N.S.

Duguay Leader In Wolves' Romp

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ron Duguay collected six points Sunday to lead Sudbury Wolves to an 8-4 victory over Ottawa 67s in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

In other games, Kingston Canadians tied the Marlboros 4-4 at Toronto, Hamilton Fincups defeated the Generals 8-5 at Oshawa, the Black Hawks downed Kitchener Rangers 7-5 at St. Catharines and the Knights defeated Peterborough Petes 5-1 at London.

On Saturday, the Greyhounds defeated Ottawa 9-4 at Sault Ste. Marie and Kitchener edged the Marlboros 3-2 at Toronto.

Duguay fired three goals Sunday and assisted on three others to increase his series-leading points total for the season to 20.

Randy Pierce, Rod Schutt, Mike Foligno, Dave Farrish and Rick McKendry scored single goals for the Wolves.

Tom McDonnell, Warren Holmes, Bobby Smith and Bruce Baker replied for Ottawa.

The score was tied 2-2 after 20 minutes but Sudbury scored five unanswered goals to lead 7-2 going into the final period.

Five of the Sudbury goals were scored on power-plays.

The Wolves outshot the 67s 56-26 before 2,724 fans.

League play resumes Tuesday with Oshawa at Hamilton, Toronto at Kingston and London at St. Catharines.

Jets Stung by Finn

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Winnipeg Jets started the Scandinavian exodus to the World Hockey Association three years ago by adding a number of top Swedish and Finnish players to their roster.

The presence of the young Europeans strengthened the Jets, and other clubs around the league this season—including the second-year Phoenix Roadrunners—looked across the ocean for more talent.

Sunday night, the trend back fired on the Jets as Finnish import Lauri Mononen scored three goals in 14 minutes to help the Roadrunners defeat Winnipeg 6-5.

Rob Florek scored the winner for the Roadrunners. Veli-Pekka Ketola, Anders Hedberg and Willy Lindstrom—all Scandinavian—scored three of the five Winnipeg goals.

Elsewhere Sunday, Edmonton Oilers edged Cincinnati Stingers 4-2 and Houston Oilers edged Cleveland Crusaders 6-5.

On Saturday, New England Whalers downed Toronto Toros 3-1, Denver Spurs defeated Indianapolis Racers 6-4, Quebec Nordiques edged Houston Aeros 3-2, Edmonton beat Minnesota Fighting Saints 3-1 and San Diego Mariners beat Winnipeg 3-1.

Following the Indianapolis loss Saturday night, coach Gerry Moore was fired and replaced by Jacques Demers, director of player personnel.

Dates Browit, president and general manager of the Racers, said the team's won-lost record was the sole reason for the firing. The Racers have only one win in five games this season. They also lost two exhibition games.

Centre Norm Ullman set up two goals by Ken Baird to lead the Oilers past the Stingers. Ullman in his first WHA season after 20 years in the National Hockey League, also helped kill penalties.

Andre Hinse scored on a power play in the third period to break a tie and give Houston its win over Cleveland.

Canada Takes Gold In Track and Rowing

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canada won gold medals in track and rowing in weekend activity at the Pan-American Games but medals of any color were difficult to come by at the Pan-Am pool.

Joyce Yakubovich of Victoria ran away from the field for a surprise victory in the women's 400 metres Saturday and the Canadian crew overhauled Cuban and United States rivals Sunday to win the coxed fours.

But there were no performances of O Canada at the pool as U.S. swimmers and divers collected six of the first seven gold medals and Ecuador picked up its first of the Games in a 1-lb men's 200-metre freestyle.

There were a couple of close calls Saturday. Defending champion Elizabeth Carruthers of Edmonton was overtaken by Jennifer Chandler of the U.S. on the final dive and settled for a silver in the women's springboard event and Sylvie Fortier of Quebec City was narrowly beaten by Gail Buttonaz of the U.S. in synchronized swimming.

In five swimming finals Sunday, the only Canadian medals were a silver in the 400-metre medley relay and a bronze for Cheryl Gibson of Edmonton in the women's 200-metre individual medley.

Elsewhere, Dr. Jules Sobrian of Omemee, Ont., won his third medal of the Games, a silver in rapid-fire pistol and 18-year-old Scott Neilson of Victoria picked up a bronze in the hammer throw Saturday.

Thenia Wright of Vancouver and Abby Hoffman of Toronto took the silver and bronze behind Janice Merrill of the U.S. in the women's 1,500 metres Sunday and Canadian oarsmen gained a silver medal in the coxless pairs and a bronze in the coxless fours and the equestrians picked up their second silver in team dressage.

Cuba's challenge to the U.S. in the medal standings fizzled as the Americans won 17 of the 28 final events contested during the weekend while the Cubans managed only two, in team jumping and the quadruple scull.

That boosted the American total of gold medals to 47 for seven days' competition to 22 for Cuba and 19 for Canada.

U.S. marksmen carried off the last three shooting golds in individual trapshooting and individual and team rapid-fire pistol.

Americans won four of six track and field events, sticking up the men's 400 metres, hammer throw and decathlon in addition to Miss Merrill's triumph in the women's 400.

Edith Nooding of Peru won the women's 100-metre hurdles to give her country its first Games medal.

Today's best prospect for a Canadian gold medal appears to be in the individual dressage competition, in which defending champion Christilot Boylen of Cedar Valley, Ont., held the lead at the half-way point. Her team-mates, Barbara Stracey and Lorraine Stubbs of Toronto, were in fifth and sixth place.

And the Canadian middle-distance runners, with several medals in individual competition, have a chance in the 1,600-metre relay.

Line Chetrard of Quebec City, who got her chance to swim in the medley relay when Nancy Garapick, the phenomenal 14-year-old from Halifax, stayed home, raised a few eyebrows by shooting to the front in the backstroke leg of the medley relay.

The lead was maintained by 14-year-old Joann Baker of Thunder Bay, Ont., in the breaststroke leg but Wendy Quirk of Montreal was no match for Camille Wright of the U.S. in the butterfly and her sister Jill fell further behind against Kim Peyton in the freestyle.

Both the American girls, timed in four minutes 30.27 seconds, and the Canadians, with 4:33.81, broke the Games record of 4:35.50 set four year ago in the Canadian Olympic of Donna Marie Gurr, Jane Wright, Leslie Cliff and Angela Coughlan.

Ellen Gibson, who is more effective in the 400-metre individual medley, was satisfied with her bronze over the shorter distance. She barely edged out Miss Baker as the first four girls broke the Games record of 2:26.06 set in 1967 by Claudia Kolb of the U.S.

Kathy Heddy of the U.S. was the winner in 2:22.22, followed by team-mate Jenny Franks in 2:23.32. Miss Gibson's time was 2:24.22 and Miss Baker was second in 2:25.54.

Bruce Robertson of Vancouver, whose main event is the butterfly, was fifth behind Jorge Delgado of Ecuador in the 200 freestyle. Mike Scarth of Edmonton placed fifth in the 100 butterfly won by Peter Rocca of the U.S.

The top Canadian placing in the men's 100 breaststroke was a sixth by Camil Chevalier of Quebec City. Rick Colella of the U.S. was the winner.

In team sports, the Canadian field hockey team remained unbeaten with a 5-4 romp over the United States and a 4-0 conquest of Jamaica. In men's basketball Canada defeated Puerto Rico and Venezuela.

The Canadian baseball team's medal chances faded with a 9-1 loss to the U.S. and the soccer team got off to a disastrous start in the semi-final round, suffering an 8-0 trounncing at the hands of Mexico.

Both the men's and women's volleyball teams were defeated by Cuba.

With five of the seven races completed in yachting, the U.S. appeared to be headed for gold medals in the Lightning, Snipe and Flyn classes with Brazil well ahead in the Flying Dutchman category.

Canada and the U.S. were fighting for the silver in the Flying Dutchman and the Canadian Lightning entry had a precarious hold on third place.

ROCKFORD, Ill. (AP) — Janet Lynn, the figure-skating superstar, and Rick Salomon, a psychology graduate from New York, were married Saturday.

TRANSVAAL WINS

BRIVE, France (CP) — Northern Transvaal, South Africa's Currie Cup winners, started its five-match European tour Saturday with an impressive 38-14 defeat of Brive, a French First Division Rugby Union club. Transvaal, now three international players on its roster, proved too strong for the Brive team which put up less-than-spirited resistance.

CHUCK EALEY

Eskimos Whipped

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan Roughriders exploited defensive errors and forced offensive mistakes Sunday to defeat Edmonton Eskimos 30-27 and grab first place in the Western Football Conference.

A crowd of 22,628, a record for Taylor Field, watched western quarterback Ron Lancaster throw for three touchdowns as the Roughriders prevented Edmonton from clinching the western title.

Saskatchewan, with one game remaining, leads by one point but second-place Edmonton has a game in hand. If the two rivals finish with the same number of points, the Roughriders will gain the bye into the WFC final because they have beaten Edmonton in two out of their three games.

Lancaster's touchdown tosses covered 73 and 31 yards to Steve Mazurak and 27 yards to Rhett Dawson. He completed 16 of 31 attempts for 294 yards and helped set up rushing scores of one yard by George Reed and 11 yards by Dave Molnar.

All five touchdowns were convert by Jack Abendschan. The other point was a 54-yard single by Terry Bulych.

Argos Top Als; Riders Tie Bombers

By SCOTT ABBOTT
The Canadian Press

A busy slate of weekend action with a bizarre twist gave Ottawa Rough Riders slight breathing room atop the Eastern Football Conference standings and threw a pall over the battle between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Toronto Argonauts for the third and final playoff berth.

Quarterback Tom Clements threw a six-yard touchdown strike to Tony Gabriel with four seconds remaining Sunday and then hit Moody Jackson with a two-point conversion pass for a 25-22 tie with the Blue Bombers in a Canadian Football League interlocking game at Winnipeg. The tie gave Ottawa a three-point EFC margin over second-place Montreal Alouette.

The tie also prevented Winnipeg from clinching a playoff berth in the Western Conference and left alive the possibility of a three-way tie among the Bombers, Calgary and British Columbia Lions. Winnipeg, in third place in the WFC, has a four-point edge on the Stampeders and Lions. All three have two games left.

In Montreal, Toronto Argonauts knocked off the Alouettes 18-11 in another Sunday game, while Saskatchewan Roughriders moved into first place in the WFC, one point ahead of Edmonton, by defeating the Eskimos 30-27 at Regina.

Toronto's win pulled it even with Hamilton in third place in the EFC with a 4-9-1 won-lost-tied record, but the Tiger-Cats' 25-23 win over the Stampeders at Calgary on Saturday night was costly to the club.

The Tiger-Cats lost linebacker Tom Pate in the fourth quarter when Calgary fullback Rick Gahoe delivered a jarring block. Pate was taken to hospital unconscious and was listed in "very serious" condition Sunday night.

Two big plays—a 25-yard completion to second-string quarterback Condredge Holloway and a 69-yarder to Jackson—brought Clements and the Rough Riders to Winnipeg's nine-yard line and set up the tying score. A penalty moved the ball to the four and, on third down and goal at the five, Clements spotted Gabriel in the corner of the end zone, where he hauled in his second touchdown pass of the game. Then Jackson grabbed the two-point conversion throw that tied the score.

Art Green who rushed for 104 yards, went in from one yard out for an earlier touchdown and Gerry Organ kicked two converts and a 44-yard field goal to account for Ottawa's other points.

Tom Walker took a 47-yard pass from quarterback Ralph Brock, Tom Scott ran three yards and Jim Daniels dashed 81 yards with an interception for Winnipeg touchdowns. Bernie Ruoff kicked three converts, a 45-yard field goal and a 25-yard single on a missed field goal attempt.

The Argonauts, who acquired quarterback Chuck Ealey from the Bombers last week, found the quarterback to their liking at Montreal as he completed 15 of 34 pass attempts for 200 yards and one touchdown—a three-yard throw to Dave Madden in the third quarter for the eventual winning points.

Zenon Andrusyshyn booted three field goals and a single on a wide attempt and improvised a two-point conversion pass to Tom Pullen after the Toronto touchdown when the snap from centre went astray.

Johnny Rodgers, hauled down on the two-yard line on the last play of the game, took a pass from quarterback Sonny Wade 63 yards for Montreal's lone other major, while Don Sweet kicked a first-quarter field goal. Wade threw to Peter Dalla Riva for a two-point convert.

Ian Sugier's 30-yard field goal with less than two minutes left gave the Tiger-Cats their costly win. Terry Evanshen, a former Stampeder, caught nine passes for 199 yards, two touchdowns and a two-point conversion pass for Calgary's other points.

Jim Corrigall from quarterback Jerry Keeling, another former Stampeder. Keeling also fired 14 yards to Sonny Thomas for Hamilton's other major. Sunter kicked a convert and Ken Clark produced a single point on a punt for Hamilton's other scoring.

Willie Burden scored two touchdowns for Calgary. Quarterback Karl Douglas hit Tom Forzani with a 37-yard scoring throw, Cyril McFall kicked three converts and Gerald Kunyk a pair of 51-yard singles for Calgary's other points.

Four semi-tough questions for Honda Civic buyers:

1. Do you want the standard model or the hatchback?

2. Which colour do you prefer?

3. Do you want standard or Hondamatic transmission?

4. Would you pay one reasonable price to get all this:

Front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, MacPherson strut suspension independent on all four wheels, front disc brakes, constant-flow ventilation, full interior carpeting, rear window defroster, opening rear windows, high output heater/defroster, tinted glass all around, fully adjustable front bucket seats, a rear seat, re-settable trip odometer, tool kit, etc.

If you found the above questions easy to answer, go directly to a Honda Civic dealer. You've made up your mind.

Boston, Cincinnati Will Try Again Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON (AP) — Johnny Bench dislikes playing the World Series at night, but at this stage of the game, he'll take the World Series any time.

The fall baseball championship was postponed for the second day in a row Monday, the prospect for another rainout clouded the air as Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox prepared for the sixth game tonight.

"I don't think any World Series game should be played at night," said Bench, Cincinnati's all-star catcher. "I don't think you'll see the best performances from the players. Baseball should be played in the daytime, in sunshine preferably.

"This hasn't been the set for the 'Sunshine Boys' around here for some time. Last weekend, it rained during the second game of the Series, but they managed somehow to play between the raindrops.

After the Reds took a 3-2 lead in Cincinnati, the teams came back to Boston for Game No. 6 and were stopped cold by a "Nor'easter"—a long-winded storm that often bells the New England area.

That troublesome storm was expected to linger through today, perhaps causing another postponement. Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who rescheduled the sixth game for 8:30 p.m. EDT tonight, said he wasn't optimistic about playing it.

Bench—and everyone else—was sorry to hear that.

"I'm anxious to start playing," Bench said, echoing the sentiments of everyone but the ducks.

While everyone talked about the weather Sunday, the Reds did something about it. They took their road show indoors and worked out at a cage on the campus of Tufts University, just outside Boston.

There, manager Sparky Anderson announced that he was changing his starting pitcher for Game No. 6.

"It will be Gary Nolan, instead of Jack Billingham," Anderson said. "Nolan hasn't pitched all year and he's rested. Billingham has some experience as a relief pitcher. I'll have him and Fred Norman up in the bullpen and I'll use them depending on the situation."

Anderson is saving his best for last. In other words, Don Gullett will pitch the seventh game, if another game is needed.

"In no way, shape or form will Gullett pitch tonight," the Cincinnati manager insisted. "He'll go in the seventh game."

The rain not only served to change Anderson's pitching plans—had also those of Boston manager Darrell Johnson. He was going to use Bill Lee on Sunday, but the extra day's rest made Luis Tiant the logical choice to save the Red Sox from extinction.

Lee, usually philosophical, was pulled off the prestigious starting assignment for Boston's "must-win" game.

"I disagree with the manager's decision," said the outspoken left-hander. "I think it would be better to save Luis for the seventh game and let him go against their left-hander Don Gullett. However, Luis is ready with the extra day of rest, so there's no sense in complaining."

Aroused Oilers Turn on Redskins

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston Oilers are surprising a lot of National Football League teams this year—with a little help from their fans.

The surprising Oilers, once the laughing stock of the NFL but now the owners of a 4-1 record in five games, erupted in anger Sunday after Robert Brazile, their star rookie linebacker, was kicked out of a game with Washington Redskins.

With the Redskins leading 7-0 in the third quarter, Billy Kilmer was directing Washington deep into Houston territory. And with Kilmer scrambling, Brazile rammed him out of bounds at the Houston 21—and applied what officials said was a forearm chop to Kilmer's neck.

Out of the game went Brazile—and out of the stands came a furious, thundering chorus of boos from the 51,911 fans in the Astrodome.

And out came the fury of the Houston defense. It stiffened and held the Redskins to Mark Moseley's 23-yard field goal.

And back came the equally aroused Houston offence, marching 65 yards with the ensuing kickoff. The final play in the opening minutes of the fourth quarter was Don Hardeman's second one-yard touchdown plunge of the game, the one that carried Houston to a 13-10 upset victory.

In the rest of the NFL, Green Bay knocked Dallas from the unbeaten ranks with a 19-17 surprise victory; Cincinnati stayed perfect by whipping Oakland 16-10; Minnesota did the same by holding off Detroit 25-19; Miami mangled New York Jets 43-0; St. Louis beat Philadelphia 31-20; New England scored its first victory by topping Baltimore 21-10; Pittsburgh crushed Chicago 34-3; Los Angeles whipped Atlanta 23-7; Kansas City nosed out winless San Diego 13-10; San Francisco outlasted New Orleans 35-31, and Denver squeezed past winless Cleveland 16-15.

Unbeaten Buffalo is host to New York Giants tonight.

Thallassemia Heredity Disease

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: It was recently discovered that my daughter, who is 28, has thalassemia. I had never heard of this blood disease. She has been told that it is a Mediterranean disease. She happens to be our adopted daughter and she has a little Italian background.

She is constantly tired, seems pale, and always to be "suffering." As a teenager she was treated for anemia. We learned that the reason all the iron pills were not doing any good was because she has this problem.

Can you please tell us a little more about this? How serious is it and is there any medication to help her?—Mrs. T.R.

Your daughter has probably been well informed about her anemia and there is little more to add. It is a hereditary disorder in which the red blood cells are fragile. Pallor and fatigue are the main symptoms. Persons of southern European extraction are most prone to the problem.

Your daughter apparently has what is called "thallassemia minor." In this the symptoms are present but the victim manages to keep going. The "major" form is much more serious and is featured by episodes in which transfusions are needed.

It is true that there are no specific treatment and the blood-builders and tonics are of no help. The system is making sufficient red blood cells; it's just that they are of poor quality.

Your daughter will have to adjust to her condition and avoid activity that tires. She should most certainly inform other doctors who might treat her in the future that she has the condition.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I had my blood pressure checked at a health clinic and the nurse said when she took it in my left arm it was okay, but that it was lower when she took it in my right arm. She said to tell my doctor.

I told him and he said it is all right. What causes this, and is it all right? I have been tempted to change doctors over this matter.—C.E.

No need to change doctors. This phenomenon is not unusual. A difference of 20 points or can be obtained in each arm under normal circumstances. It can be due to variations in the size of blood vessels or minor pressures exerted on an artery.

More extreme difference in blood pressure would require a search for the cause. You haven't heard about this before because a pressure is usually normal in one arm. You might ask your doctor just how much of a variation was found in the right-vs.-left-arm pressure. He apparently doesn't consider it large enough to warrant such a search.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Blow from apple juice would subtle nutritionally for one apple?—Mrs. A.F.

One cup of apple sauce or juice (canned) provides approximately 120 calories. One apple provides about 70 calories.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Question: Is there any way possible for a woman to become pregnant if her both tubes and one ovary have been removed, but the one ovary is functioning normally?—T.E.

No.

Jim: "We have had quite a few questions about the so-called short club. You were one of the inventors weren't you?"

Oswald: "Probably the inventor. Way back in 1933 or 1934 I suggested that a hand such as North be opened one club rather than one spade.

That club bid was a general utility bid. It guaranteed at least three clubs to an honor and partner was supposed to assume we had four. It was in no sense a forcing bid and just enough strength to get us into trouble."

Jim: "I see you have picked a hand which shows the bid at its best. The club opening enables North and South to get to a nice comfortable two hearts. Careful play brings the contract home with an overtrick."

Oswald: "If North opens one spade South responds one heart rump. The hand plays there and South will probably make one notrump.

Jim: "There is a lot of difference between two hearts and one notrump in a match point game and that 50 points is worth something in rubber bridge. Incidentally, if West tries to compete with a three-diamond bid he is likely to be set three tricks doubled."

An Ohio reader wants to know what we respond to partner's one-heart opening bid with:

This is a clearest hand for an immediate raise up to two hearts, a playing standard American, Jacoby modern or other popular systems. I partner only holds four hearts he knows it.

India's Malaria Response Inadequate

NEW DELHI (AP) — Private health authorities here claim that malaria has become epidemic again in India and the government's response has been dangerously inadequate.

These authorities also charged that the government is trying to suppress the full dimensions of what they describe as a malaria crisis.

But Dr. S. Pattanayak, director of India's malaria program, disputes the charges. He said in an interview that at least three million cases will be reported this year from India's population of 580 million—an increase of 25 per cent. But he maintained that "this is not yet epidemic proportions and the situation is not out of control."

Dr. Pattanayak also said that the malaria death rate this year is on a par with the death rate over the 10 years.

Private doctors challenge his figures, however, saying that many poor people die of malaria with their illnesses never detected and the cause of death never examined.

"The government does not want to admit the malaria program has failed and private doctors who speak out are for fear of reprisals under the national emergency," said one leading physician who asked not to be named.

"But the fact is that a very serious situation is under way here and the government's response has been total apathy. If they were really interested in dealing with the problem they would advertise the need for prevention. But there is nothing. If this goes on many, many people are going to die."

These doctors claim that government statistics of three million cases expected this year do not give a full view of the number of people affected because they represent only those cases reported to hospitals and not those cases seen by doctors or those that go untreated.

Furthermore, they say, coverage of the malaria problem in the censored Indian press has not been extensive enough to alert the public to the potential dangers and what preventive measures might be taken.

Dr. Pattanayak denied that the government was trying to suppress the extent of the malaria outbreak. But he acknowledged that has some constraints he hasn't the resources for use of preventive drugs or for an effective short-range counterattack on the mosquito-transmitted disease which causes high fever, dehydration, anemia and sometimes death.

"I need 450 million rupees (about $50 million) to handle malaria now but I have only half that," the doctor said.

"We are seeking emergency money but at this stage malaria eradication is not possible. Though control remains a priority."

This season's heavy monsoon flooding has depleted most of the national funds reserved for such emergencies, he said, otherwise they would have been furthcoming from the national budget.

He said a special committee, working with doctors from the World Health Organization, has just mapped out a three-year strategy and that if the emergency money comes through the situation will improve.

LOW COST HOUSING AND APPROVED BUILDING LOTS AVAILABLE FOR QUINTE AREA BUYERS.

Many potential home buyers have been discouraged by high costs, prohibitive down payments and the inability to secure land on which to build. In the meantime they have been forced to pay rent for their accommodation. Now there is an alternative which can open the door for people who want to own a home of their own.

Rollins Lumber in Foxboro have devised a plan by which the home buyer can reduce the cost by several thousand dollars. Quite simply, they provide the opportunity to substitute labor for cash. By working on your home's interior, you can avoid high labor costs and reduce the total cost substantially. The Self-Help Home Plan can make it possible for you to own the home you want.

Rollins Lumber has a limited number of approved building lots available now on which they will frame in your home and ready it for interior finishing before winter weather. Right now the $1500. Provincial Grant could go a long way to helping you get started. There's nothing to stop you now.

No Down Payment
- Mortgage Applications Arranged
- Lowest Possible Prices

Mail at post offices in Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Brighton is trapped today, the victim of a nationwide strike by inside mail sorter and postal clerks that began at 6 a.m. this morning.

The strike call was "a bit of a surprise" said Walter Yateman, Belleville president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers which represents 51 people in Belleville and Brighton.

"I thought it would be a few more days before a strike was called," he said.

Pickets were thrown up around the Pinnacle St. post office this morning. In Trenton, where 12 inside workers voted to accept a conciliation board report pay package of $1.70 over a 30-month contract, picketers were Belleville workers.

Belleville postmaster Roy Wainwright said the strike today didn't catch him by surprise. "we were expecting it anytime. It was just a question of when."

All mail arriving is caught up, and the 40 letter carriers are delivering mail sorted overnight.

He said he has "no idea" whether the inside letter carriers will be laid off once mail is delivered. In Trenton, enough work exists for outside workers for one day, and post office officials are waiting for more mail to arrive before any lay-offs occur.

In Picton, says assistant postmaster Wayne Suddard, "no one is on duty" and no mail was sorted.

Belleville president Mr. Yateman said the sudden strike-catching many city residents walking away from post office mail slots with mail in their hands-was brought on by the "strong arm tactics" of Post Master-General Bryce Mackasey.

The Union "met with intransigence" said Mr. Yateman. "Mr. Mackasey forced the issue by saying that unless we accept the $1.70 over 30 months, he will refuse to bargain."

The postmaster-general said he would not go back to bargaining until the union made up its mind to accept or reject the government's final wage offer.

Mr. Yateman said today the post office will be closed down until management recognizes received from Ottawa negotiators. "I was rather surprised they called a nation-wide strike. I'd stating of thought it would be a rotating strike."

Mr. Munro's speech, executives of CUPE, the country's largest union with 210,000 members, plans to announce a position paper urging "all other Canadians" to help defeat the federal government's bill that would authorize the selective controls, with guides. The bill now is before Parliament.

The selective controls limit 2.3 million public servants and two million employees of private industry to a basic wage increase of 10 per cent in the first year of a contract. An anti-inflation review board is empowered to allow employees an additional two-percent increase, for a ceiling of 12 per cent, if they prove they have fallen behind.

Companies affected by the selective controls are not supposed to increase their prices beyond the amount needed to cover increased production costs. Companies and employees not covered by compulsory controls, proposed by Prime Minister Trudeau on Oct. 13, have been asked by the government to comply voluntarily.

CUPE's paper says the anti-inflation programme is "unfair, unworkable and undemocratic."

It says that "all Canadian workers and their families have experienced a generation-long struggle to stretch their wage dollars to meet annual price increases now rising at the rate of 11 per cent."

"This unenviable situation can be directly traced to the extraordinary profits the federal government permitted corporations to take between 1972 and 1974 when annual increases averaged 75 per cent," the paper says.

"The extra income working people need now is so that they can pay the high prices that created these profits and . . . corporations make the decisions to increase prices, not workers."

Olympic Workers Remain Off Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Workers at the 1976 Olympic site remained off the job today in a dispute over a controversial blacklist barring "troublesome" workers from the site.

A union spokesman said more than 2,000 workers would not return unless negotiations which began Monday produce a satisfactory agreement.

Several hundred workers were reported milling around the entrance to the east-end Olympic site today, but security guards were not letting any workers enter.

"Work isn't likely to resume until the police and the construction firms drop the blacklist," Fernand Daoust, secretary-general of the Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL), said Monday night.

Construction at the east-end Games site stopped Monday when about 3,000 workers walked out to protest existence of the list believed to contain about 300 names.

Munro Faces Opposition To Selective Controls

TORONTO (CP) — Federal Labor Minister John Munro, at his own request, faces a wall of opposition today to the selective wage and price controls announced last week by the government.

When Mr. Munro's planned attendance at the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) convention was announced to more than 800 delegates Monday, there were scattered boos and jeers.

Retiring CUPE President Stan Little told delegates that Mr. Munro had asked for an opportunity to explain the government's anti-inflation program. About 50 delegates challenged the authority of the CUPE executive to allow Mr. Munro to speak.

Mr. Little said that after "a great deal of agonizing" the CUPE executive decided "that we should quietly and courteously receive the minister of labor and let him say his piece."

However, immediately after Mr. Munro's speech, executives of CUPE, the country's largest union with 210,000 members, plans to announce a position paper urging "all other Canadians" to help defeat the federal government's bill that would authorize the selective controls, with guides. The bill now is before Parliament.

The selective controls limit 2.3 million public servants and two million employees of private industry to a basic wage increase of 10 per cent in the first year of a contract. An anti-inflation review board is empowered to allow employees an additional two-percent increase, for a ceiling of 12 per cent, if they prove they have fallen behind.

Companies affected by the selective controls are not supposed to increase their prices beyond the amount needed to cover increased production costs. Companies and employees not covered by compulsory controls, proposed by Prime Minister Trudeau on Oct. 13, have been asked by the government to comply voluntarily.

CUPE's paper says the anti-inflation programme is "unfair, unworkable and undemocratic."

It says that "all Canadian workers and their families have experienced a generation-long struggle to stretch their wage dollars to meet annual price increases now rising at the rate of 11 per cent."

"This unenviable situation can be directly traced to the extraordinary profits the federal government permitted corporations to take between 1972 and 1974 when annual increases averaged 75 per cent," the paper says.

"The extra income working people need now is so that they can pay the high prices that created these profits and . . . corporations make the decisions to increase prices, not workers."

Beirut Now Unsafe Amid More Killing

BEIRUT (Reuter) — Three people were killed and 10 wounded today when a mortar bomb hit a building in the Christian district of Ashrafieh, police said.

Sporadic shooting and explosions continued in many areas of Beirut until well after dawn, but police could not give precise casualty figures.

At least 20 people were killed in fighting Monday.

Armored cars rumbled through the city during the night moving from one trouble spot to another.

Radio Beirut said the roads in the eastern parts of the city were unsafe and issued a warning about a roadblock on a northern side of the capital.

Syrian and Israeli forces clashed Monday on the Golan Heights, said a military spokesman in Damascus. Israeli residents said Israeli artillery bombarded a Lebanese village near the heights.

All these trouble spots reflected Syrian and Palestinian unease over the new Sinai agreement between Egypt and Israel.

Beirut radio said that many parts of the capital were unsafe because of snipers.

Rival factions had set up roadblocks, it said, and were kidnapping people on the basis of identity cards which show the holder's religion.

Right-and left-wing gunmen were roaming streets in several central and suburban areas.

For the present, there is no serious sign of agreement toward any political settlement of Lebanon's internal problems which centre on Moslem demands for political reform and right-wing fears that the Palestinians seek to take over yet more power in Lebanon.

Beirut radio appealed for calm today for the election of a new speaker to parliament.

The parliament building is in the centre of town where leftist and right-wing gunmen have often exchanged fire during the past month.

City postal workers hoist CUPW strike banner

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Inside postal workers in Toronto and most Ontario communities as well as Montreal and major cities in Western Canada went on strike early today following a breakdown in contract talks in Ottawa on Monday.

Workers were also on strike in Halifax and some communities in the Maritimes.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said in an interview early today that government negotiators will not return to the bargaining table until the union says whether it will accept the government's final wage offer of a 31-per-cent increase over 30 months.

In the Halifax region, members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) went on strike early today but it is not yet known how many workers in nearby communities joined them.

In Ontario, workers in Ottawa, Windsor and the Owen Sound area went on strike shortly after midnight Monday night and were joined by workers in Toronto, Hamilton, London and some other Ontario communities later in the morning.

"We told them we'd be glad to resume negotiations when they were prepared to accept the principle basically, the monetary package recommended by Judge Moisan which we accepted as well," Mr. Mackasey said.

"We told them we'd wait until they call us whether it's today, next week or next month."

The wage offer, contained in a conciliation report prepared by Quebec Superior Court Judge Jean Moisan, amounts to a 37-per-cent wage increase over 30 months. The union entered negotiations Friday morning with a demand for a 71-per-cent increase over one year. Mr. Mackasey said Monday night the CUPW had reduced their demand to a 51-per-cent increase over one year but Jean-Claude Parrot, the union's chief negotiator, refused all weekend to comment on the wage question.

Mr. Mackasey said once the wage offer was accepted he would be prepared to be "as flexible as possible on other issues" such as the monetary plight of the part-time workers which Judge Moisan was ambiguous about, shift differentials, weekend premiums and the hiring of casual labor."

A post office spokesman in Toronto said the strike apparently was a national one over-heard by the executive of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) in Ottawa.

The CUPW executive in Ottawa had not commented on the scope of the strike—whether it affected all communities across the country.

Spokesmen for letter carriers across the country said that carriers would continue delivering as long as the supply of sorted mail held out—perhaps just a day.

As the morning wore on, reports of similar walkouts came in from Stratford, Timmins, Brampton, Brockville, Simcoe and Guelph.

Letter carriers were picking up their morning delivery loads and there were no reports of carriers refusing to cross picket lines set up by inside workers.

Supervisors were keeping some postal stations open for business.

Clement Morel, Quebec regional director for the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), said the strike decision was reached after Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey said the talks could not continue unless the union accepted the government's latest wage offer.

Doctors Say Health Service Declining

LONDON (CP) — Britain's National Health Service (NHS), long lauded by labor idealists as "the envy of the world," now is in a critical condition and sinking fast, say 2,000 doctors who have carved their protest strike action to hospitals in the London area.

Doctors say the service needs funds, but money is not available as the government tests to cut public spending in its fight against inflation.

The strike, in which about 3-00 doctors in 40 hospitals have refused to treat all but emergency cases, affected six London-area institutions Monday, including Middlesex, a major teaching hospital.

The problem involves more than salaries. It involves an ideological conflict between Social Services minister Barbara Castle and many in the medical profession.

The Labor government backed down last week on its earlier refusal to appoint a royal commission to study the NHS. Prime Minister Harold Wilson said Monday in the Commons that the NHS is "under great strain" but it will not collapse.

Mrs. Castle recently angered many doctors by re-emphasizing that all private beds and private patients should be removed from the NHS—"to make private medicine stand on its own feet."

This has long been orthodox Labor philosophy but the recent Labor party conference went even further,

Police Find Herrema, Release Talks Continue

DUBLIN (Reuter) — Police tracked down kidnapped Dutch industrialist Tiede Herrema today and started negotiations with his captors, who are holding him at gunpoint, Dublin radio reported.

Dr. Herrema, managing-director of the Ferenka Steel Co., was kidnapped 10 days ago near his Limerick home by Irish guerrilla who demanded the release of three of their comrades in Irish government prisons to make any concessions.

The radio said police located Herrema in the town of Monasterevin in Kildare.

Police and troops immediately surrounded the house. Herrema was understood to be held at gunpoint on the upper floor by two men.

The police took over the ground floor of the house and opened negotiations with the kidnappers.

The head of the Irish special branch, Chief Superintendent John Fleming, went to the scene to take charge of the attempt to rescue Herrema.

Police and troops threw a security net around the town, which is about 30 miles southwest of here.

Police picked up the trail early today after finding a car which was thought to have been used in the kidnap of Herrema Oct. 3. At the same time, they arrested two brothers who were driving the car at Tullamore, not far from Monasterevin.

The car was thought to have been used by Eddie Gallagher, an Irish guerrilla believed to have engineered the abduction. Gallagher is a close friend of Dr Rose Dugdale, an English heiress-turned revolutionary who was one of two persons whose release was demanded by the kidnappers.

Council Approves 2 City Crosswalks

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

City council, brought the long debated issue of crosswalks to a conclusion Monday night by officially endorsing two pedestrian walkways on Pinnacle St.

The end of the debate that has cropped up consistently around city hall for the past year came with reasonable swiftness.

And good reasons for it were talked over in detail once again in recent weeks by council and its traffic committee.

Last week the committee closed the covers on the most recent, bulky documentation going back five years. It called on council to "stand firm for pedestrian crossovers on Pinnacle St. at Campbell and Market Streets.

Ald. Jack Ireland, traffic committee chairman, told council his group had discussed "just about all the points that could be discussed" piling up over the years" on the issue.

There was one question from a city councillor: Ald. Stu Mirek wanted to know if there'll be a crackdown on jaywalking.

No Centennial Project $300,000 Civic Fund May Sit Idle in City Coffers

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A multi-thousand-dollar city fund is gathering an official civic project hailing Belleville's 125th birthday in 1981 unless it awaits a concrete objective.

Mayor Ben Corke dropped a bombshell Monday about the situation in city council Monday night—a situation he said he fears may never find an outlet.

The group is left with $300,000 — for which city council last year planned an annual levy of $100,000 in its capital budget.

But, said Mayor Corke, there is "no project yet lined up for that . . . nobody has yet come up with a project on this."

In fact, said Mayor Corke after the meeting, Mayor Corke said he thought it might be spent at all" or "might be spent on something we haven't yet given consideration to."

At present-day costs $300,000 "isn't enough to build a major August structure," added the mayor.

His comments in council came as the city government once again was asked to give a seat to application of Belleville Centennial '81 Inc. for incorporation . . . a request deferred by councillors two weeks ago.

The group is the successor of the original committee charged with laying organizational groundwork for the centennial.

Its membership includes a community cross-section . . . along with civic officials, businessmen and community-group spokesmen; and the group is involved with co-ordinating various aspects of the city's centennial. Incorporation would protect any slogans or designs it would use on centennial souvenirs.

But before council consented to the incorporation, councillors wanted to know more about Belleville Centennial '81 Incorporated.

Ald. Wally Dever wanted to know who the membership had been chosen, since it seemed to include "a lot of businessmen and businessmen. But "where are the people in the city?"

Ald. George Zegouras queried who was liable for the debts the group, if any.

Mayor Corke told council the organization had no funds available other than those approved by council.

But councillors Jean Smith and Stu Meeks urged a quick decision since the centennial continued to draw closer.

"I feel that time is running short," said Ald. Smith.

Ald. Meeks said any centennial items should be manufactured wherever possible in Belleville to provide local employment.

Criticizes McKeough

TORONTO (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada (Ontario) has criticized Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough's defence of Ontario Hydro's proposed 22 per cent rate increase. South Vietnam Releases 2 Canadians

OTTAWA (CP) — The South Vietnamese government says it will release two Canadian missionaries who were caught up in the final weeks of the war there earlier this year, an external affairs spokesman said today.

The spokesman said the South Vietnamese embassy in Peking has informed the Canadian embassy there that Rev. and Mrs. Norman Johnson of Hamilton should be released near the end of this month or early in November.

Arrangements for the release would be made through the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees.

The Johnsons were living in the northern part of South Vietnam when Provisional Revolutionary Government forces swept southward. They had no chance to leave.

Since the end of the Vietnam war Canadian officials have made repeated attempts to get them out of the Johnsons.

OPP Issue Tips For Safe Hunting

Most hunting deaths are caused by criminal negligence — offences provided for by stiff penalties under the Criminal Code, says Chief Insp. Fred R. Blucher, director of the community services branch of the Ontario Provincial Police.

In a news release issued Monday, Insp. Blucher advised that hunters should keep crime prevention in mind and reminded that there are several basic gun-handling rules.

"Hunting accidents claim about 125 lives each year, usually because the most simple rules have been broken," he commented.

Insp. Blucher said there are eight rules which, if followed, should eliminate hunting accidents.

— "Never consume alcohol before or during a hunt.

— "Know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.

— "Never shoot in the direction of building or livestock.

— "Always handle a gun as if it were loaded.

— "Never climb a tree or fence with a loaded firearm.

— "Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle.

— "Unattended firearms should always be unloaded.

— "You cannot depend on the common sense of the hunter beside you — wear bright orange."

PICTON — There is "new blood" in St. John Ambulance Division 147, Picton and divisional superintendent Guy Sarault says members must resist the tendency to live in the past.

He observed that the recently re-utilized brigade will not reject the old system but rules will be "bent a bit."

Mr. Sarault told St. John volunteers at a meeting here Monday that members should work for needed funds instead of waiting for the money to come to them. He suggested Bake-a-thons and odd jobs as a way of raising funds for needed equipment.

He commented that membership in the local division had dwindled to about seven persons until a recent drive for volunteers. About 24 persons now are involved in St. John Ambulance work here and training courses in first aid are available for all newcomers.

"We are always looking for new volunteers, especially males," said Mr. Sarault.

The St. John Ambulance Division 147 Picton sponsored special public meeting Monday with guest speaker Master Corporal Chuck Clements, a para-rescue specialist.

Director Named

PICTON — An Activities Director for the H.J. McFarland Memorial Home for the aged has been hired by Prince Edward County council at a salary of $19,000 per annum. Vivian Swain was hired after 17 applicants were screened and several interviewed.

Village Reeve Doug Lynch said Monday "the news of radiation readings found in some slag at the abandoned mine site is felt to be an isolated problem. Although this involved problem has unknowingly existed for several years, there is no immediate danger to residents of the village. I feel that this isolated problem will be resolved and will be properly dealt with in the near future."

Natural background radiation-resulting in part from cosmic rays and from radio active elements in the soil-measured 0.012 millirems an hour on the main street of the town, about the average level of background radiation in North America.

But over one of the piles of slag, the measurement is 1.6 millirems an hour, "which is a factor of 133 higher than the background rate ...," the board said.

Air samples taken in a house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Galloway adjacent one pile gave concentrations of radon gas "that were as much as 15 times higher than recommended for continuous exposure for 24 hours per day all year," the board said.

"When we first heard about it we felt we should move right out but we realize now we have to wait until authorities complete all their tests and advise us what to do," said Mrs. Sylvia Galloway.

More tests are expected at the Galloway home later this week.

The board said an average North American receives about 100 millirems — a measure of radiation dose — a year from natural sources. Dose limits for the general public are 100 millirems a year for the whole body and 1,500 millirems for some other organs, such as lungs.

Discussing the dose from the slag piles of 1.6 millirems an hour, the board said "another way of looking at this is that if a person spent 13 days and nights continuously, or a little one less week and 40 minutes every day on the slag pile, he would accumulate the annual regulatory dose limit of 100 millirems."

Pollution A Concern

BRIGHTON — A list of objections to a proposed commercial gravel pit operation in the northwest corner in the village was presented to council and sent to the district office of the ministry of natural resources in Napanee Monday.

The new quarry, to be operated by Louis Reddom Ltd., has met with strict opposition from local residents who say it is not only environmentally detrimental but dangerous to property and people along the proposed access route.

The current road, gravel-topped 20-foot-wide Concession St. is not wide enough for the heavy traffic necessary to remove the aggregate, residents contend. Among the environmental problems residents claim a possibility exists much water following the natural drainage pattern of the area will pollute the nearby creek and dust pollution affect the apple orchards

Rescue Specialist Outlines Technique

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Para-rescue specialist Master Cpl. Chuck Clements, CFB Trenton, Monday outlined his job to members of the local St. John Ambulance Brigade at a public meeting at Queen Elizabeth School here.

Cpl. Clements is one of 47 rescue specialists in Canada and for the past five years has been with the 424 Squadron. Prior to that he served with several other rescue squads across Canada.

He has participated in air rescue operations involving missing aircraft and assisted with other defence and civil emergencies in the Central Canada Region.

Cpl. Clements, who started a rescue course with 287 others was one of 13 to graduate in 1976. Of these 13 graduates two are now dead, two were forced to leave their jobs with serious injuries and one left rescue work.

Only 14 courses have been offered since 1943 and a total of 327 persons have graduated. In order to become a rescue specialist it is necessary to join the Canadian Armed Forces.

2½ year period was required to qualify in his work and another 2½ years to obtain complete qualifications.

"We are trained as instructors in rescue, search, survival and medical," he said.

"We aren't doctors. If I can get away without doing extreme medical procedures I do," he added.

He told St. John workers that para-rescue specialists parachute carrying a 28 pound medical kit and their bush gear. The kit was designed by rescue specialists.

The rescue specialist said that he participates in about 150 searches each year.

To explain how downed aircraft are spotted he showed a film titled The Spotter that described proper scanning techniques and methods of search.

It was noted that approximately five per cent of all wrecks are never located while about 50 per cent are found with survivors. The remaining 45 per cent are found with all passengers dead, he said.

That's My Bag

Master Cpl. Chuck Clements of CFB Trenton is one of 47 rescue specialists in Canada. His work requires expert knowledge of first aid and he explained his medical kit to members of the St. John Ambulance Brigade in Picton Monday night. When the parachutes to a crash scene this 28 pound medical bag goes with him.

Gravel Pit Prompts Angry Council Debate

By JERRY BROWN

BRIGHTON — Controversy continues to surround Brighton's decision to allow a local gravel pit to be opened for commercial use as 75 people crowded into the municipal office Monday to hear the village leaders reaffirm their earlier resolution.

The meeting degenerated into catcalls and arguing, several times in the three-hour session as the principal in the pit operation, Louis Reddom and his supporters, and landowners along the proposed truck route, to the pit continually interrupted the proceedings.

Village council held a closed meeting October 20, to reconsider Mr. Reddom's plan to open the pit on land owned by Ralph Simpson, in the northwest portion of the village.

Council had approved the pit plan on two points, it told the audience, with the body split in a three-to-two vote. Bill Pettingill and Dr. R.J. Julian voted to rescind the earlier resolution saying they had been misled by Mr. Reddom and Mr. Simpson. Glen Clack, Bill Dunk and Reeve Dorothy Brittnell supported the resolution in the Oct. 20 meeting the decision stood.

The pro-pit group on the council told the audience they had been advised by a lawyer not to overturn their original decision but this point was also a bone of contention.

In order for the operation to be approved by zoning conforming land uses, the village plan makes no provision for a gravel pit within the municipality's limits. It would have to have been in use as a pit before, during and after the by-law was passed in 1968.

The two opposing council members claimed they had been misled by the principals who, they said, have offered no supporting evidence, other than mere words, that the pit was operational during that period.

Mr. Reddom has applied for permission to remove 40,000 tons of material from the pit annually and opponents to the plan said the operation will not be detrimental to property values, but would also create dust on roads and a traffic hazard on the gravel street.

Opponents questioned who would bear the cost of the necessary improvements to the road to upgrade it for heavy vehicular traffic and to repair the old dehydrated bridge, which has already collapsed in the past and is currently supported by external beams.

The council told the group that D.L. Jamieson, town foreman had estimated upgrading of the road would cost about $2,500 but when he was questioned about the accuracy of his figures during the meeting he said he had not completed the calculations and would have them ready for council soon.

Final decision on the gravel pit will rest with the ministry of natural resources who will hold a hearing and review the issue. Date for the hearing has not been announced to date.

Council has been requested to present a brief to the ministry stating its opinion on possible environmental problems in allowing the plan to proceed and will hold a meeting Wednesday, Oct. 25, at 8 p.m. for the public to draft the letter.

All Pits Checked

FRANKFORD — In a decision unrelated to the current gravel pit controversy in Brighton Village, the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority (LTRCA) has decided to inspect all the gravel pits and quarries within its jurisdiction to see if they are conforming to the rules laid down by the government.

Pepin Zeroes in on Economy Dominated by Activists and Bureaucrats

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

As if there weren't enough special-interest groups opposing anti-inflation measures, Jean-Luc Pepin had to challenge the marketing boards.

In his first public utterance in his new role as chairman of the Anti-Inflation Board, (AIB) Mr. Pepin spoke of his "hunch" that there's something wrong with such marketing agencies.

Plenty of consumers would agree. Since the establishment in 1972 of the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency, for example, egg prices have risen sharply, millions of eggs have been allowed to rot, and other millions have been dumped on the U.S. market at bargain prices.

(For the first four months of this year, Canadian eggs exported to the U.S. brought an average price of 36 cents a dozen, while the smaller volume of U.S. eggs imported into Canada averaged 54 cents a dozen).

Other protected monopolies, sanctioned by the federal government, include the Canadian Wheat Board, the Agricultural Stabilization Board, and the Grains and Oilseeds Agency.

Now a national tobacco marketing plan is to be discussed by tobacco producers and members of the Canadian Products Marketing Council in Ottawa Oct. 20.

Such marketing boards are not interested in "marketing" in the accepted commercial meaning of promoting sales.

Rather their usual objective is an "orderly" market, rigged in favor of the producer at the expense of the ultimate consumer.

That's why, as AIB vice-chai man Beryl Plumptre has pointed out in the past, they have become an important contributing factor in the inflationary rise of food prices.

But the marketing boards' defenders—the producers, the politicians and the bureaucrats—prefer to focus on the need for "a fair return" on food products. No matter how high that return may go, it never seems to be adequate or fair.

Leaving aside such never-ending controversies as that, however, one can see the problem of marketing boards as a manifestation of a basic trend in Canadian life—the trend away from laissez-faire capitalism and a free market, and toward an economy dominated increasingly by political activists and bureaucratic administrators.

What may be shaping up, therefore, is a High-Noon Confrontation.

On the one hand is gun-slinger Pepin (formerly occupying a place near the peak of the government establishment, more recently toiling in the ranks of private business) and his faithful deputy, Mrs. Plumptre, fresh from her forays as chairman of the Food Prices Review Board.

On the other hand are the big guns of the bureaucracy, implicitly supported by established government policy and by the fiction that theirs is an idea whose time has come.

If Mr. Pepin and Mrs. Plumptre can make their anti-inflation objectives stick, where the marketing boards and regulatory agencies are concerned, then there might be some genuine hope of curtailing the growth of special interest throughout the governmental bureaucracy.

Only then, when there is real evidence of a countervailing restraint in the apparatus of government, can the people of Canada be expected to give their unqualified support to the prime minister's program to halt the erosion of the dollar.

Accommodation Tight

The results of the accommodation survey relative to Belleville being host to the Ontario summer or winter games should be a valuable guide for this as well as other potential events in the city.

Belleville's downtown and peripheral development inevitably will make the community of increasing interest to tourists. At the same time this necessitates additional motel and hotel space.

The time to be doing something about this is now. The Centennial Year celebrations alone should make for some urgency. As things stand, a lot of hotel trade, according to a Belleville realtor, is being diverted to Kingston. One reason is that a considerable proportion of the room space in two of Belleville's leading hotels is reserved by business interests.

The realtor points out also that because of the escalating cost of construction and land, it is only the "big people" who can afford to go into hotel construction.

Where motel accommodation is concerned, he says people prefer modern establishments of which there is a shortage in Belleville. When the Queen's motel and restaurant was converted from the self-care convalescent home it is today, Belleville lost one of its most popular tourist and dining establishments. This was four years ago and aside from the Four Seasons, which opened in 1971, there has been no new motel or hotel construction since.

Even without the kind of commercial development that is taking place, the lack of new motel accommodation would be a drawback. But with the pace of construction in so many other spheres, the coming Centennial and talk of the Ontario games, additional tourist accommodation is essential.

Boys and Girls at Play

A five-year-old who attends school in a pleasant rural setting across the bay came home recently after a day that included a walk across country and into some woods now in the last stages of autumn.

These are the kind of extra-curricular activities that the youngsters remember all their lives and look back upon nostalgically as the years pass by.

Could it be though that some youngsters are missing such opportunities — and because of a modern bugaboo?

Is "racial discrimination" raising its ugly head and preventing the girls from enjoying their fair share?

A letter from a Grade 8 student on this page makes mention of the problem. It does appear though that the school is making amends this year and the girls will be able to get out too.

Meanwhile, a teenage girl in California has struck another blow for female participation in traditionally male sports. She was on television recently when it was pointed out the courts had upheld her right to play soccer with the boys.

There's a women's group in Montreal, incidentally, which plays rugby British style . . . but meanwhile is there anyone for soccer among the girls out there?

The late President Kennedy in his inauguration speech urged Americans to determine what they could do for their country. It was advice that struck a chord everywhere.

Today there seems to be a move back to individual initiative, or by small groups.

Conservation and the fight against pollution are areas which leave plenty of room for this.

There's a fine example from Illinois. Students of Eureka College, a church-based establishment in Woodford county, are practising the traditional discipline of "gleaning," as it applies in its original meaning of gathering up the grain left by the reaper.

In this way the students have gathered a sizeable amount of corn left by the harvesting equipment, and it is being earmarked for the needy overseas as well as at home.

"Gleaners' International" (as the students call themselves), also organized groups in five other states.

In these days of food shortages abroad and food waste in affluent lands, this is an admirable counter trend. It's a reminder of the fact our resources are not inexhaustible, and of the need to save in a variety of spheres.

Sri Lanka's Uneasy Route to Socialist 'Independence'

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

If we think of Ceylon at all we think of a large and exotic island off Asia and of its mystien plantations.

We think no more of Ceylon by that name. In the lexicon of developing countries published by the United Nations there is a nation now called Sri Lanka, the words in the native language of Sinhalese for an island re-named Ceylon by Dutch, Portuguese and British explorers and settlers.

Last month Sri Lanka went through a paroxysm of homage to a dead leader, not unlike the traditional annual Indian one for the late and assassinated Mahatma Gandhi. It was to remember the late prime minister S. W. R. D. Bandaranaike, killed in office Sept. 26, 1959.

Not only was Bandaranaike a prominent Asian and developing world figure in the struggle for liberation from a colonial power, in Sri Lanka's case it was against Britain; but his widow has continued as a very tough-minded prime minister of her country.

Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike is much less known in the West than her counterpart in the no th, India's Prime Minister Mrs. Indira Gandhi or Israel's former prime minister Mrs. Golda Meir, about who knows well.

But she has moved Sri Lanka along the controversial road to state-socialism which in spite of whatever merits it might have in making a small nation economically independent, has produced more problems than benefits.

The most serious move of all is nationalization of Sri Lanka's tea plantations, one of the world's efficiently and profitably operated foreign-owned industries in all of Asia.

They are still mainly British-owned, and the nationalization by Mrs. Bandaranaike to take them over are not only resented from her party but from a Trotskyite party which forms an uneasy ruling coalition with her.

She has had trouble with the Trotskyites and in an effort recently fired one of them in her cabinet, the minister in charge of plantations. He had helped to formulate the original nationalization laws for taking over most foreign or locally-owned private industry in the island country.

In 1961, Mrs. Bandaranaike's earlier nationalization policies resulted in the termination of U.S. aid to her country and forbritain the end of naval base facilities at Trincomalee which the Royal Navy had used almost since the days of Nelson.

The Russians have made motions they now would like to use the island-nation's naval base. It is a situation not unlike that in the island nation of Malta in the central Mediterranean where the Russians also have had a major naval build-up and would like to use a famous dockyard once the preserve of the Royal Navy.

The U.S. Navy is in the process of building an alternate and interpreted naval base on the distant Indian Ocean island of Diego Garcia.

As far Canada, our interests in this Asian nation as with all other nations are in those related to the renewed cold war but to our aid and assistance capabilities.

Colombo the Sri Lanka capital, is both the name of the place who e the Colombo Plan for Commonwealth nations was first launched in 1950, as well as for the plan itself which has involved the industrial nations of the Commonwealth like Canada with the emerging ones like Sri Lanka.

Reaction to Anti-Inflation Moves

By DON O'TEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — First reaction to the prices and wage controls here was that they would get the government all the book in some very touchy situations.

Sharing up ahead were some very tricky bargaining situations with doctors, civil servants and teachers.

And the new federal limits look the best off there, at least at first glance.

It may turn out to be not quite as simple as it first looked.

The initial attitude of these groups was well as big labor was one of rebellion.

Quite understandably they were shocked and defiant. For the allowable 10 per cent increase was much less than all were looking for. This was practically money being taken out of their pockets.

And at this time of writing everybody is still upset, and with it so is the situation regarding the future earnings of these groups unrefined.

With time and reflection however, the attitude of the doctors and the civil servants should change to at least a grudgingly acceptance of the new limits.

Teachers, presuming they can get allowance for their increased costs, will have at least the solace that everybody else in their income bracket is in the same boat.

And the civil servants, who really aren't badly off at all, should recognize that along with a great many other Canadians they have to live with fate.

Helping both groups to make up their minds should be the knowledge that if they put up a spirited opposition they might be handing the government six badly needed election issues.

And neither wants to do this.

As for the teachers, Lord only knows what will happen with them. They are unpredictable.

Incidentally, an explanation is needed on behalf of the doctors. It has been widely reported (and I used the figure here) that they have been seeking increases from 23 per cent to 50 per cent.

Actually they have made no such demand.

At a meeting last year it was proposed from the floor that they should seek this scale.

But this was not adopted. And there has been no official demand in this range from the Ontario Medical Association.

Hearst Trial Publicity

Brantford Expositor

The trial by news media which has developed in the case of Patricia Hearst gives rise to considerable concern as to whether she can find an impartial jury for the trial.

Perhaps it is smug to consider the situation in which she would find herself if she were facing trial in Canada, but certainly, the Canadian law on reporting court proceedings is far more concerned with the protection of the innocent, and far less with the public's right to know.

In many ways, this right to know has been expanded south of the border to a right to air any and all rumors and innuendos into print and on the airwaves.

At a preliminary hearing in Canada, for example, even the fact that the accused person has or has not made a statement to the police may not be published unless and until that statement is allowed into evidence, under a set of strict rules, at the jury trial which follows (unless the accused is discharged by the judge at the preliminary hearing).

Failure to obey this ban on publication can result in fines and - or imprisoned for all involved in the publication.

That such protection as this exists for the accused does not seem to have resulted in any severe hardships. On the contrary, it has prevented just such garishness as has been seen in the coverage of the Hearst case.

In Canada, for example, police-leaks stories are very carefully written to ensure that the accused person is not identified as the person who has committed the crime reported. The crime is reported as an occurrence; the laying of the charge is reported as something entirely separate.

In the Hearst case, defence lawyers are already talking of changing their tactics because the publicity in the case has made their original positions untenable.

No one would suggest that newspapers here or in the United States should be deprived of the right to access to all news sources. Given such deprivation, Richard Nixon might still be the U.S. president. However, the right to knowledge also implies the responsibility for exercising it that knowledge is not abused.

Home and School Issues

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Thank you for Education Beat observations. However, I do want to clarify a few of Mr. Carson's statements.

It is unfortunate he starts off maligning an organization of 60 years. Nowhere in the constitution of Home and School do I read "raise money for team sweaters." On the contrary it advises "in its by-laws: one fund-raising per year to be spent on educational projects."

That same Queen Victoria Home and School has held many parents' seminars on parent education for human development. They also did surveys and started the first "Community School." They worked with Home and School council and the rest of Ontario to get the schools open so the Child and Art Liddle can come in to work with Mr. Rupnow and its teachers.

There never has been any hostility by school officials to Home and School Associations — its president and Mrs. Queen Alexandra closed there was about four years ago, warning. There was about two years for Albemarle. Unfortunately some associations have not been strong enough to have their charter die just when needed most.

There will be no "fees" — therefore taxes will be used and Mr. Wells will have to give more than the $25,000 to parents to help in other parts of the province to keep up to you at Queen Victoria. BUT where were you Art and Cherie when Hastings Home and School Council brought out the paper on elimination of Home and School Fees? Your children will be paid by taxes as you wish it. We had to vote through apathy.

Many associations in Ontario have been training and using parent volunteers for years. Some schools they are splendid. In others they have reduced or modified teachers. Which is better? I'll be interested in the results at Sager.

Some Home and Schools have been fighting for over 60 years for some type of common education. If you are going to have "Individual Learning Development" for your kids you have a common evaluation?

Teachers, parents, students and community people like Joy Nichol are individuals which produce individual evaluation.

Home and School has tried to be a catalyst in communication but obviously, I, as the representative who met and was interviewed by Ron Carson have failed. Ron seems to be a fine reporter, a fine individual with an excellent command of the English language. I think I owed, but he did not understand that Home and School involves all forces that mold children — and just parents. We are very interested in promoting education.

In that same Intelligencer issue Glenn Hinchey and Dr. Paul ask for ways of getting Family Planning information to the public. Joy Nichol, I think has suggested every year that we make Sex Education mandatory for every child in our school system. So far it has not become law due to apathy. I, through Home and School have already quit Gale and gleaned Dr. Spock's book.

Last but not least — a splendid letter in that same edition. The letter from Joy Nichol explains "Some Lost Principles". Joy is an elderly grey-haired lady like myself but she is responsible for many Belleville people who "love to read" and who encourage all children and adults to read. Joy and I are part of the "Community". We are much welcomed by Home and School Associations because we are interested in Education of Youth.

School Outing

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I ask why public schools have sex discrimination?

I am in elementary school, Grade 8, and it seems that the girls aren't allowed to do certain things. For instance, last year our school formed an "Outdoor Club", but it seemed that it was for seven and eight grade boys only. And then we went on a week long canoe trip somewhere.

This year, I think, that I agree, but I only wish that the girls could have joined. Last year however, we are allowed to join the club and there will be such activities as cross-country skiing.

'Y' Offers Something for All

Belleville's Family YMCA is more than just a centre of activities. In many families, as executive director Diamandis Diamantides boasts, the Y is a tradition.

"We take little people and make big people out of them," he explained.

The Y offers a variety of programs for all ages and besides its regular exercise courses there are special programs offered throughout the year such as yoga and oriental dancing. The nursery school is another separate program and summer camps operate every year for Belleville children.

Even at the low point in the year for the Y there are some 2,500 people using its facilities — exercise room, swimming pool, saunas and auditorium. At the busy time during the winter months - you'll find more than 4,000 flexing muscles and getting into shape.

Mr. Diamantides also stresses the facilities are for everyone's use. For people in low income bracket rates can be adjusted. This is possible because of its financial arrangement.

The Y is almost self-sufficient raising 70 per cent of its income through membership fees and special programs.

As a participating member of the United Community Services, an approximate 20 per cent of its expenses are paid through the United Way campaign while the City of Belleville pays 10 per cent.

"That way we can keep the membership fees low so everybody can afford to join."

The Y moved to its modern building on Victoria St. for expansion after years of residence in the now Police Station. A large open field on the Y's premises often used by the local schools and recreation department will provide the room for expansion when it is necessary.

Also common with many of the United Community Service organizations is the large number of volunteers used to operate this service.

Belleville families will get an opportunity to see how the Y operates first-hand this Sunday. An open house, for families only, is scheduled from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. when families, as guests of the Y, can try all the facilities for themselves.

Seminars Will Match Consumer Needs

Committee for Consumer Education (CCE) publicity director Rick Williams said Monday his group aims to make its five seminars directly applicable to the every-day shopping habits of consumers.

Instead of talking about the laws of supply and demand in the housing industry, said Mr. Williams the group will strive to outline the actual process of buying a house.

Housing, the director's example, is one subject of five that will be dealt with in a series of seminars the CCE ad hoc committee plans over the coming months.

Others include food purchasing, money management, credit and consumer rights before the law, the latter being the first subject to be dealt with next week.

During a meeting Monday, committee members ironed out final details to the Consumer Right seminar at Thursday, Oct. 30 (7:30 p.m.) The CCE is composed of representatives of local business, labor, legal and education bodies.

Mr. William said the group hopes "a better consumer" will be turned out once the seminars end: "The topics chosen are relevant," he said.

Mr. Williams said the subject matter will be slanted to be personally applicable to the consumer.

Next week's seminar will deal within the consumer's rights, as well as responsibilities, under seven provincial and federal government acts.

Hastings Law Association Lawyer Wilfrid Mennings of Belleville plans to outline, in part, provisions of the consumer protection, the bankruptcy and small loans, and landlord and tenant acts.

Plans next week call for a lecture format plus a question and answer period.

Chemical Transportation Under Review

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Federal legislation might be enacted within the coming year which would regulate interprovincial trucking of chemicals, says Jim Head of Canadian Industries Ltd. at Toronto.

Mr. Head told a meeting of the Carbyville division of the Thurlow Township Volunteer Fire Department and the Quinte Rescue Squad Monday that the federal government might bring such trucking under the same regulations as govern railway transport of such dangerous quantities.

"You won't have fly-by-night carriers hauling anything and everything," he commented.

Mr. Head said it is expected truck drivers transporting chemicals will soon be forced to carry printed information sheets in their cabs which will contain data on the type of chemicals they carry and hazard information including first aid requirements.

Such information sheets are already mandatory on trains where conductors must have an information sheet on each tanker in each train containing chemicals, he said.

Mr. Head pointed out that in case of a traffic accident where the driver is killed and the truck destroyed, units such as the fire department and the rescue squad can contact the truck dispatcher about the kind of chemical being transported.

Until such identification is made, the surrounding area should be evacuated and cordoned off and rescuers should stay well away from the scene, he noted.

Mr. Head said the US. will soon introduce a standard system of labelling for chemicals transported by either sea, land or air. "What they really want is a label which says to a guy, 'do this, first'," he demarked.

He said about two billion tons of dangerous quantities of chemical enter the North American transportation system per year and that the Canadian Transport Commission has published a book which lists, by name, about 1,500 dangerous chemical commodities.

CP News Roundup

Horner Joins PC Race

TORONTO (CP) — Jack Horner, member of Parliament for Crowfoot, announced Monday he will seek the leadership of the Federal Progressive Conservative party.

He said he announced his candidacy in Toronto to indicate he has support throughout the country.

The 43-year-old rancher from Bolkoville, Alta., is the fourth person to officially enter the leadership race. Others are: John Fraser, MP for Vancouver South; Flora MacDonald, MP for Kingston and The Islands and Howard Graffety, MP for Brome-Missisquoi.

Mr. Horner said he has more supporters in the Progressive Conservative caucus than any other leadership candidate. He would not name his supporters because "I am afraid my enemies will start to attack them."

He said re-vitalizing the Progressive Conservative caucus was a top priority in his leadership bid. Caucus attendance has dropped to 90 per cent, he said, and members need to feel their views are respected.

Mr. Horner said Prime Minister Trudeau's selective wage and price controls will not work because the government cannot control all costs, such as the price of housing, food and energy.

Program Outlined

OTTAWA (CP) — The public can obtain pamphlets outlining the federal anti-inflation program at taxation offices in 30 major cities and at banks. The pamphlets are a condensation of the policy paper tabled last week in the Commons.

Set Free

GENEVA (Reuter) — The Provisional Revolutionary Government (PRG) of South Vietnam has agreed to allow a group of about 20 foreigners, mostly missionaries trapped by the fighting earlier this year, to return home, the United Nations announced here Monday.

Prince Sadruddin Aga Khan, UN high commissioner for refugees, said the UN is trying to find out more details about the group, which included mostly Americans, but also Canadians and Australians.

Good Recovery

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Figures released today by the commerce department indicate that economic recovery in the United States accelerated sharply in the third quarter.

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and Alberta governments announced Monday the signing of an agreement that will increase natural gas prices to consumers in eastern provinces by about 25 per cent, effective Nov. 1.

Cabinet Will Decide Fate of 3 Killers

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet is to decide this week on the fate of three killers, all on the loose as a result of weaknesses in the criminal justice system they shot policemen to death.

John Francis Connearney, scheduled to be hanged in Montreal's Bordeaux Jail Friday, was an escapee from a Rhode Island prison when he killed Lasalle policeman Richard Lafrente during a shoot-out in 1972.

Rene Vaillancourt was out on bail for other alleged offences when he shot Toronto constable Leslie Maitland after a bank robbery.

Real Chartrand was out on a "temporary leave" from Quebec's Pinel Institute, where he was serving a penitentiary sentence, when he shot Constable Gabriel Labelle during a bank robbery in Ste. Therese, Que., in 1972.

Vaillancourt is scheduled to be hanged at Toronto's Don Jail and Chartrand is scheduled to go to the gallows at Bordeaux Jail. The date for both is Oct. 31.

However, cabinet likely will not allow these three hangings to take place until it announces its policy on capital punishment, probably in mid-November.

Olympic Construction Halted on Monday

MONTREAL (CP) — Most construction at the east-end 1976 Summer Olympic Games site was halted Monday when less than 300 of the 2,500 workers showed up for work, a City of Montreal official said.

A meeting between Desourdy-Dancereau, the general contractor in charge of construction of the main installations, and Quebec Federation of Labor (QFL) representatives was held late in the day to attempt to resolve the main problem of a blacklist, said Andre Leclerc, a QFL official.

The workers were protesting the existence of a blacklist drafted by several companies in co-operation with Montreal Urban Community police to keep out alleged troublemakers. Mr. Leclerc said. Police officials were not available for comment.

Mr. Leclerc said the QFL had requested the blacklist be immediately abolished and cases dealt with on an individual basis.

"Otherwise," he said, "they can refuse a man a job because he is a known militant or because they don't like his face. It's completely unjust and against all traditions of labor relations in North America."

Lewis Criticizes Crowded Hospitals

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, said Monday the situation at General and Marine hospital is ludicrous, with surgical and medical equipment in the halls.

"I find it hard to believe that a district hospital could be in such poor condition," he said during a news conference prior to a joint meeting of the Owen Sound Rotary and Kiwanis clubs.

However, as leader of the opposition, Mr. Lewis said he was not prepared to barter with the government for a hospital in Owen Sound.

"The hospital is deserved on its own merits," he said.

Earlier in the day, Mr. Lewis toured hospital facilities and met with hospital and government officials. The meeting was closed to news media but five reports dating to 1971, which were presented to Mr. Lewis, later were released.

Average Industrial Wage Jumps 13 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — The average weekly industrial wage was $202.60 in August, a 13-per-cent jump from the average $181.73 earned in August, 1974, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

The cost of living, as measured by the consumer price index, increased 11.1 during the same period.

The average August earning was up three-tenths of one per cent from the average $200.07 per week in July. The cost of living rose one pc. cent during the one-month period.

There were decreases in some provinces. The largest drop was recorded in British Columbia, where the weekly av.nings declined to $230.44 from $232.13 in July, due primarily to industrial disputes.

B.C. continued to have the highest average weekly earnings with the lowest in Prince Edward Island at $152.45.

The average August weekly earnings in other provinces: Newfoundland, $198.96; Nova Scotia, $173.86; New Brunswick, $182.74; Quebec, $201.67; Ontario, $200.38; Saskatchewan, $191.01; Alberta, $211.81.

By industry, the weekly earnings ranged from a high of $258.22 in construction to a low of $145.33 in the service industries.

The survey covers about 4.5 million workers but does not include those in agriculture, government service, fishing or the military.

WAS FIRST SETTLEMENT

On May 13, 1607, Jamestown, Va., became the first permanent English settlement in the United States.

Seeks Legal Action Against Reporters Who Tapped Kissinger

OTTAWA (CP) — The government was urged Monday by Conservative Justice critic Eldon Woollams to prosecute those who reported U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger's banquet-table remarks about former president Richard Nixon in Ottawa last week.

Justice Minister Ron Basford, replying to the Commons, didn't rule out charges. Mr. Basford said he would await completion of an investigation by External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen, who is trying to find out how the remarks were picked up by press tape recorders.

He would then consider "the legal consequences that flow from that."

Mr. Woollams referred to article 178 (2) of the Criminal Code, a privacy provision that makes it a crime punishable by up to two years in prison to eavesdrop electronically upon a conversation.

Even if Mr. Kissinger's description of Mr. Nixon as an "unpleasant man" had been taped accidentally, this was no excuse under the privacy provisions, which say such remarks can only be reported with the permission of those whose voices were recorded, Mr. Woollams said in an interview outside the Commons.

The prosecution's main task would be to prove the conversation had been private.

Mr. Woollams noted his Calgary law partner had defended radio station CFCN earlier this year after charges of violating the privacy provisions were placed.

Local Governments Must Change Ways to Survive

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — T. J. Plunkett, director of the institute of local government at Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., said Monday local governments must change their ways if municipal government is to survive.

Mr. Plunkett made the remarks at the 18th convention of the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario (ACRO).

He said local governments originally were set up to administer local amenities such as streets and waterworks in an efficient and low-cost manner to present a minimum burden on home-owning ratepayers.

But urbanisation has presented a long list of new issues such as planning, housing and transportation, he said. Yet in many ways local governments have abdicated decision-making powers and are telling the province make the decisions.

If local governments are to survive, Mr. Plunkett said, they must become more political by dealing with fundamental issues which directly affect the quality of life.

They must accept controversy and be willing to accept structural and other changes to provide a more representative, responsive and accountable system of local government, he said.

The 18th conference is the largest ACRO meeting so far, with 218 delegates from across the province attending. The convention continues today and Wednesday.

Broadbent Says Restraints Do Not Have Public Support

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's new anti-inflation program does not have enough public support to work, New Democratic Leader Ed Broadbent said Monday.

"I do not find any widespread acceptance of this program," he said as the Commons began its second day of debate on legislation to put the plan into effect.

"If anything, I would judge that more people oppose the program than favor it."

The NDP leader said he made his judgment on the basis of opinions gathered during a recent countrywide speaking tour.

Prime Minister Trudeau is "in for a lot of trouble" making the program work, he predicted.

Immigration Report May Recommend Yearly Quotas

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says a draft report of the parliamentary committee on immigration policy suggests yearly quotas on immigration and penalties to steer prospective immigrants away from large cities.

The committee suggests that sanctions be imposed to enticing immigrants go to the part of the country they say they will go and that more financial aid be given to immigrants willing to go to areas of Canada where manpower is scarce, the newspaper says.

It says it has received a copy of the committee's first draft of a report containing the recommendations.

Also recommended is an end to the category of nominated immigrants and to the exclusion of most prohibited categories such as homosexuals, epileptics, tuberculosis sufferers, idiots and imbeciles and others suffering from mental illness, The Globe and Mail says.

The newspaper says the committee, established last spring, says Canada has become a multi-racial and multi-cultural society and that legislative action should be taken to protect Canadians and immigrants from racial and ethnic discrimination.

Abortion Committees Decline

OTTAWA (C) — The number of hospitals with therapeutic abortion committees declined by three in 1974 to 238.

The decline was greatest in Quebec, where the number of hospitals able to perform a legal abortion fell to 37 from 51. The number fell by one in Newfoundland, where six hospitals have abortion committees.

British Columbia, with one-third of Quebec's population, had nearly double the number of hospitals at which an abortion could be performed—53, a gain of one from 1973. Alberta also gained one for a total of 34.

The information was given Wednesday in Commons replies to questions by Kenneth Robinson (L—Toronto Lakeshore), who also had asked about the number of women who have had more than one therapeutic abortion since they became legal in 1969.

How Ontario Pork brings down the budget with four incomparable dinners from two inexpensive roasts.

Ontario Pork would like to make a modest contribution to your shopping budget for the week. All you have to do is purchase either a sweet pickled cottage roll (illustrated on the right, top), or a smoked picnic shoulder (on the right, below). Then cook either of the roasts using one of the delectable recipes below. Now where the real economy comes in is a day or two later when you can prepare the leftovers for another delicious dinner, like cottage roll casserole or a ham 'n bean soup that's a meal in itself. So with either cut you can make two different and delicious meals. Simply because Ontario Pork has a subtle, rich taste that can be combined in so many different dishes. The results, of course, will always be very rewarding, both at the dinner table and at the cash register.

Peach-Glazed Smoked Picnic

6–8 pound uncooked smoked picnic pork shoulder
1 (14 oz.) can peaches
2 teaspoons cornstarch
Whole cloves

Place smoked picnic shoulder skin side up on rack in shallow roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer into centre of meat so it does not touch fat or bone. Cook in 325° F oven about 35 minutes per pound until meat thermometer registers 170° F internal temperature. About 1 hour before the picnic shoulder is cooked remove it from the oven. Remove rind from the meat; slash the fat ½-inch deep in a diamond pattern; stud with cloves. Reserve a few peach pieces for garnish then mash remaining peaches in the juice in small saucepan. Stir in cornstarch; beat and stir until glaze cooks and thickens. Remove from heat. Brush on smoked picnic. Continue to bake in the same 325° F oven for another hour. Garnish with peach halves and parsley. Serve with succotash, mashed potatoes, crisp green salad. Makes 12–14 servings.

Chunky Ham'n Bean Soup

1 (16 oz.) package dry white beans
6 cups water
1 cooked picnic shoulder bone (meat removed)
3 bay leaves
6 cloves
1 medium onion, chopped
8 carrots, sliced
2 cups cubed, cooked smoked picnic shoulder
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Combine beans and water in saucepan; boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat and let stand 1 hour. Meanwhile simmer picnic shoulder bone, bay leaves and cloves in water to cover for 2 hours. Remove bone, bay leaves and the cloves. Add beans and remaining ingredients. Simmer 1½–2 hours longer adding more water if necessary. To add zest stir a dash of prepared horseradish or mustard into soup just before serving. Serve with crusty rolls and crisp celery sticks. Makes 10–12 servings.

Deviled Cottage Roll

4–6 pound cottage roll
1 cup dry bread crumbs
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
2 teaspoons horseradish

Place cottage roll in a deep saucepan, with water to cover. Cover and simmer over low heat until fork tender, allow about 35–40 minutes per pound, until internal temperature is 170° F. Meanwhile rub breadcrumbs, brown sugar, butter, mustard and horseradish together to form a crumb topping. Remove cottage roll; drain; place on a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Coat heavily with crumb topping. Bake at 325° F for about 30 minutes until crumb topping is golden. Tasty with glazed sweet potatoes, buttered green beans. Makes 10–12 servings.

Cottage Roll Casserole

2 cups cubed, cooked cottage roll
1½ pounds broccoli
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups milk
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups (6 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
20 soda crackers, crushed
1 tablespoon butter
Parmesan cheese

Cook broccoli spears in lightly salted water for 5 minutes; drain. Place in lightly greased 2 quart casserole. Spread cottage roll cubes on top. Prepare cheese sauce: Melt butter in a saucepan; stir in flour until smooth. Add the milk a little at a time. Stir until sauce thickens. Stir in salt, mustard and shredded cheese, continue to stir until cheese melts. Pour cheese sauce over cubes. Cover with cracker crumbs; dot with butter; sprinkle with parmesan cheese. Bake at 325° F for 30 minutes until crumbs turn golden. Great with tomato slices and crusty rolls. Makes 5–6 servings.

Plans were made to hold a quilting on October 29.

The Hastings Deanery Meeting will be held at Christ Church, in Belleville on October 22.

Bessie Sills was leader for the program and gave two readings, "Year by Year" and "A Boy's Thanksgiving".

Margaret Geen gave a reading, "The Master Painter".

Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social time was enjoyed.

QUINTE WI

A tour of the Hastings County Board of Education administration centre was the highlight of the recent meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute. Leslie Reid, deputy director of education, welcomed the women, who divided into groups to tour the centre.

The tour was arranged by convener Evelyn Wood.

The business portion of the meeting was conducted in the Institute Hall following the tour, during which Eileen Darling was chosen as representative to the area convention in Campbellford.

Bessie Mitchell, who has held offices in local, district, area and provincial WI executive during the past 40 year, was honored by a life membership pin and certificate at this meeting. Mrs. Mitchell and her husband Arnold have just finished celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary, and the life membership was the Institute's anniversary gift to her.

Alec Gordon, at one of the two organs in his home.

Alec Gordon, 50 Years an Organist

Alec Gordon has been a familiar figure to church goers and music lovers for over 50 years in Belleville. For the last 38, he's been organist at Bridge Street United Church, and before that played at Holloway Street and John Street churches.

Celebrating his 90th birthday this year, Mr. Gordon is giving an organ recital called "Three Score and Ten," on Sunday Oct. 26 at 4 p.m., in Bridge Street United Church. Proceeds from the concert will go to the St. Thomas building fund.

During his years as an organist, Mr. Gordon has made a tradition of playing his music to raise money for charity. He has assisted the Red Cross, Save the Children Fund, war relief funds, hospital, camp and organ funds as well as helping out the church men's club with his concerts.

Mr. Gordon's career began when he was a teen-ager with a paper route to pay for lessons from the organist at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, whose playing he admired.

By this age Alec Gordon already had a good background in piano, an "absolutely necessary" requisite for an organist. He later studied in both Toronto and New York.

"I wanted to be an organist, but I didn't ever want to be a music teacher," he says. "I've taken very few pupils never more than two at any time."

However, Mr. Gordon did become a teacher of other subjects at the St. James Whitney School, then known as the Ontario School for the Deaf. He taught there for 38 years, during which he began innovative "rhythm work" for deaf children. He also produced several successful operettas, with children acting the dramatic roles, and the women's choir from Bridge Street United Church supplying the choral music.

"My week days were at the school, my week-ends at the organ," says Mr. Gordon now, speaking of his "divided life".

Since his retirement in 1964, however, he's had more time to devote to his beloved organ music, and has composed several pieces as well as expanding his repertoire of church and secular music.

Bach still remains his favorite composer, and will be featured in this coming concert along with work from contemporary Canadian, French and German composers. One of Mr. Gordon's own light compositions will be included in the carefully-chosen program.

"Nothing's worse than an organ concert that's too long," says Mr. Gordon cheerfully, "so I've made sure this one has only 37 minutes of music. I've been rehearsing daily for weeks. I know exactly how long it takes!"

BRIAN

The friendly but diffident smile is exactly like Brian. He is eager to be friends but because he hasn't much confidence in himself he isn't sure people will like him.

Brian is slim, attractive looking, with brown hair, blue eyes and a few freckles. He is healthy and active, sometimes hyperactive. Occasionally he has been on medication to slow him down a bit.

Because it's hard for Brian to concentrate he is in a special class with few pupils where the teacher has extra time for each one. He will gradually be integrated into the regular classes and is expected to be an average student.

Brian's great interest is in sports. He played baseball in the summer and his team was runnerup in a final series. Brian is a versatile fellow who can play any position. Hockey is his favorite – he wonders if he might like a career in professional hockey. He is eager to be a good athlete and enthusiastic about improving his skill at games.

A warm, involved, family will be just right for Brian. He would like his adopting father or perhaps an older brother to join in the sports he loves. And he hopes, very much he'll be able to have a pet of his very own. "Could it be a kitten, please?"

To inquire about adopting Brian, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

Give Your Roses Head Start Now

Roses are usually planted in the spring, but in the warmer parts of the province they can be planted successfully in the fall, says D.B.McNeill, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist.

Fall planting techniques are the same as for spring. Good loposil, plenty of water, and proper planting depth are needed for roses to thrive. They do best in fairly rich clay loam soil. The holes should be dug large enough for the roots to spread out in a natural manner, with the bush set in so that the swollen area on the stem above the roots is about an inch below the soil surface. A thorough soaking with water should be given immediately after planting.

"Roses planted in late October or early November should be placed in a well-protected, well-drained area," says the horticulturist. "In addition, they should be mounded with dry soil just as you would hill up your established rose bushes before winter sets in. Fall-planted bushes should not be cut back until spring."

Most garden centres still have a good supply of rose bushes; because they may not want to store them over the winter, you might get a bargain price if you buy and plant your roses now.

You might also consider planting trees and shrubs this fall and give them a head-start on spring, suggests Mr. McNeill.

"Planting of evergreens, trees and shrubs can be as successful in the fall as in spring," he says. "However, it is necessary to avoid planting them in windswept locations."

The prime time to transplant trees and shrubs is late October, just after the leaves have dropped, and before freezeup. After choosing a fairly sheltered location, proceed with the planting just as you would in the spring. Dig a good-sized hole where there is good topsoil and supply the planted tree or shrub with plenty of water.

Some exceptions to fall planting are willows, birches, poplars and silver maples. Check with your local nursery or consult your gardening book for a complete list of trees and shrubs not recommended for fall planting.

"A good supply of plants will likely be available now at your garden centre," says Mr. McNeill. "By buying at this time of year you will avoid the spring rush and benefit from the extra time the nursery people have to advise you about your purchases."

No Matter Where She Goes in Quebec, Fans Want to Talk to Lise Payette

MONTREAL (CP) — Popular entertainer in Quebec previous enjoy an unusual intimate relationship with their audience, perhaps because people become accustomed to seeing them in restaurants and at the street.

With such a personal link between artist and audience, it is all the more unusual for Lise Payette, 44, to need to remind people she is only human.

Lise, is the outgoing star of Lise Lib, a one-hour blend of television variety and talk each Saturday night before the hockey game on Radio-Canada, CBC's French-language network.

"I frequently letters from people asking for help in solving their problems," she said. "But there are things I can do and those I cannot, and I must not let my heart mixed up.

"It would be dangerous to believe I could do everything."

She was interviewed in French in a borrowed office, high in the new Maison Radio-Canada, CBC's Montreal headquarters. She had a different appearance than when she is on television. Without makeup, a comfortable dress and hair slightly bleached from the sun.

"I felt always very timid in interviews, but people understand what they want to understand," she said.

The first show of the season featured a long interview and an interview with Gerard Pelletier just after he resigned as federal communications minister.

Having a weekly show is a change of pace for her, after a gruelling schedule which had reached a peak of three one-hour shows a week for three years, Apples-and-Lise (Call Me Lise), similar in format to Lise Lib, ended last spring by mutual agreement between Lise Lib and Radio-Canada.

Probably the first time most Canadians outside Quebec saw her was at the first drawing of the Olympic Lottery, when she was co-host with Pierre Berton.

But in Quebec, the full-figured Lise cannot find a place to spend her vacation without having people come up to her to talk. She says she does not want to avoid this contact "because it goes along with the type of work I do, but once a year I need to be alone inside my head."

She likes to go to Europe for a month, as she did this past summer, to be able to walk around without being recognized.

Her ability to distinguish between public image and real self comes up to her to her successful interviewing style. Through her questions and directions, she is able to show her audience the human side of the guests on her show.

Her guests on Apples Moi Lise included Yvi Rochon, Jeanne Moreau, Melina Mercouri, Peter Ustinov, Sergio Leone, Catherine Deneuve and Marcello Mastroianni.

When Prime Minister Trudeau appeared on the show in 1973, "he probably thought we would talk about his international policies," she said. "But any politician, when he comes home, is a man like any other. Business School Takes A Different Approach

HALIFAX (CP) — Marie Whittier, a firm believer in traditional methods of teaching business education in high school are astonished that she has set up her own school to prove it.

She mortgaged her house and opened the Halifax Business Academy on downtown Barrington Street in what only last year had been the old Mission to Seamen, a refuge for homeless sailors.

Mrs. Whittier says traditional business teaching fails to meet what the business world expects today because it does not round out the whole person.

"How can a student become a happy employee of some company when he or she has personal money management problems or lacks a sense of self-esteem and confidence in the work?" she asked.

Of course, the school teaches all the traditional business skills such as book-keeping and operating office machines. But it adds a few unusual subjects.

Her business procedures course includes discussions on a wide variety of courses important to the student for obtaining a job and developing a career. Among them are hygiene, medical fitness, general appearance, job interviews, personal budgeting and office deportment.

She places a special emphasis on teaching students to love the English language, both written and oral. One of the most common complaints from employers has been that employees can not spell properly.

To instill a personal appreciation of words, her typing courses also show students not only what words must be used but also from where they were derived, how they are used and how they are supposed to be used.

Her teachers try to create an interest in the words among students. With the right teacher, shorthand and typing can be fun.

Kate Smith

Girl From Virginia Became U.S. Symbol

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — She's Princess Alima Go Wings (which means "Queen of the Morning"). She's a Texas Ranger. She's a colonel in the U.S. Army. These are all honorary titles from grateful fans.

She's the fat girl from Greenville, Va., the girl who captured the heart of an entire nation. Girl girl that God blessed with a magnificent voice and an even more magnificent heart.

She's Kate Smith.

Although she estimates her voice is stronger now than it ever was, the years have carries us backwards—the Second World War, "a North America filled with apple pies, burning fireplaces, family dinners . . . the way it was, so long ago."

Kate Smith is not exactly a girl any more. She is a grandmother. She is a institution personifying the American dream, still is singing.

She's been singing for more than 60 years now, starting as a five-year-old at church suppers; then Broadway, then radio, then sports places, at hockey games. She's the good luck charm for the Philadelphia hockey team.

She's also going to be singing a lot more. If she takes up all the offers that are pouring in now. Anybody with any kind of a promotional brain knows that in a bicentennial program, there is no act that's going to come a close second to Kate Smith's mighty and magnificent rendition of her favorite song, "God Bless America."

"I'm getting letters already from just about everyone," she says. "They all want me to sing 'God Bless America' everything from fairs to scout meetings. I couldn't possibly accept them all."

She hasn't decided yet which of the invitations she will accept. Or she's not saying. "Just like you don't sing a song until it's copyrighted, you don't talk about contracts until everything is pinned down."

Although Miss Smith has no financial interest in the Flyers, she is a devoted fan. It all started by the Flyers playing her recording of "God Bless America" before a game instead of the national anthem. And it and behold, they won. They seemed to win consistently when "God Bless America" was played.

Then Kate herself came to three games to sing the good luck song. Sure enough, the Flyers won the Stanley Cup, hockey's big prize.

"They're all such lovely boys," she says of her beloved Flyers.

Within hockey circles, it should be noted, her "lovely boys" don't quite have that reputation. There they're known as "the meanest bastards on the ice."

Over at least as her voice. At just under 5-foot-10, with shoulders that would do most fullbacks proud, Kate Smith still is a big woman, despite an 85-pound weight loss in the last few years. Doctor's orders, high blood pressure.

Her hair, which appears dark in some photographs, is quite blonde, but only three shades up from its natural color.

Chicken Advice

TORONO (CP) — A peek into the chicken section of a local supermarket will make shoppers aware that if whole chickens are lower in price per pound than thoth already cut up, it is wise to buy these and cut them yourself, says a spokesman for the food advisory services branch of Agriculture Canada. The branch's home economist offers tips on cutting up poultry.

"Start out with a sharp knife," she suggests.

—To remove wing, pull it out from the body and slash the skin between them. Cut around the shoulder joint to separate the wing from the breast, leaving as much white meat on the breast as possible. If desired, cut off the wing tips.

—To remove leg (drumstick and thigh), slash the skin between the body and thigh; then press down and out on the leg until the hip joint pushes out of its socket.

—Cut through the hip joint, separating the thigh from the body of the bird. If desired, cut the drumstick away from the thigh bone at the knee joint.

—To remove the neck and backbone: Starting at the tail, cut through one skin layer down to the right of the backbone all the way to the neck. Repeat on the left side of the backbone, remove the backbone and neck in one piece by cutting the skin around the neck.

—To separate the breast from the back, insert the knife in the wing socket and cut through the rib joints at the back of the bird. This separates the back from the breast, leaving part of the ribs on each.

—To divide breast, spread the bird open and cut the breastbone cartilage on either side of the keel bone in the neck region.

Nova Scotia Collector Believes Dolls Have Special Meaning

BIBLE HILL, N.S. (CP) — The world really has to love dolls.

Dolls were the theme of Mrs. Keys Barrett dress-up theme almost as if they were living.

"After all," she said, "most dolls have a special sentimental meaning for me. They remind me of an old friend, an old teacher, or just someone I met who had an old doll she didn't want to throw away and gave it to me for my collection."

The doll collection holds many memories.

"My mother sewed with the for eyebrows and pierced ears, with seventy-five Italian Princess Jeannie who came from the first free-and-low-cost stores in Paris, and there is one obtained 45 years ago to mark the birthday of a friend who crown prince.

Some are more than 100 years old—dolls with porcelain faces, stuffed dolls, china dolls, wax dolls, mechanical dolls, character dolls, and Eaton beauty dolls.

Some have been found in abandoned buildings, others in open fields where they were lost by children, and one from the bottom of the family water pump.

The collection has become well known in this area because Mrs. Barrett home is opened each year to as many as 700 school children, youth groups, Lodges, women auxiliary groups, and curious out-of-province visitors.

"My job in collecting the dolls is not only for myself but the joy I bring to others," Mrs. Barrett said. "My dream is to have a special museum for them but only if it could be free."

Some of the dolls have been donated to the centennial museum planned for Truro's centennial celebrations this year but most of the collection will remain intact—"I don't like to let them out of my sight."

New MLA Faces Challenge

REGINA (CP) — John Clifford, a 36-year-old rookie Saskatchewan Liberal MLA, is digging her heels in for a tough challenge.

Not only does she feel she has shoes to fill in replacing Cliff McIsaac, former MLA for Wilkie who went on to federal politics, but she has been named the Liberal social service critic.

"It's going to take a lot of studying and a lot of work," Miss Clifford said in an interview.

The impression she already has is that the NDP government, while it has many powerful grants, tends to develop them without considering the consequences.

In the last election, the Liberals criticized the government shoes to fill in replacing Cliff McIsaac, former MLA for Wilkie who went on to federal politics, but she has been named the Liberal social service critic.

She doesn't mind money being spent on anything so long as the people who need it are getting it.

Miss Clifford sees senior citizens and rehabilitation services as two main areas of concern.

In her election campaign she urged better tax breaks for small businessmen and a program in which the government would co-sign loans so young people could get into farming

Miss Clifford, a native of Wilkie, taught for three years in Yorkton Battleford and spent the last year working on a master's degree in education at University of Saskatchewan. Her major is physical education.

She is adamant about not being called a feminist, said she advantage in being a woman is that she can view things in a different light than a man might and offer different solutions.

Ann Landers

'Smoldering' Resents Pregnancy

Dear Ann Landers: I am 30 years of age, have one child, 18 months old, and am expecting another in December. I really do want another baby, but I did not want to have it so close to the first one.

I am smoldering with resentment against my husband because he was not completely nice about my wishes in the matter. He said it's the wrong time, I'm sure my resentment toward my husband will spill over into the new baby. I feel clearly the right he made me pregnant. I argued with him about it for an hour, but he just kept talking about how he felt.

I feel lousy most of the time, much worse than when I was pregnant with the first baby. I'm sure my resentment toward my husband is responsible for having a bad physical effect on me. Also, I'm worried about the baby. I'm sure my resentment will mar carry and deliver the child, wouldn't it be fair to say that I'm being pregnant? The more I think of what happened to me the more furious (and sicker) I get.

I'm sure other women have gone through this same thing. How do they get over their anger? When will it happen? Please help me. — Feeling Bad in S.D. Dewyer

Dear Dewyer: Of course other women have found themselves in the same condition under similar circumstances. Thousands of 'em. Maybe millions.

They get over their anger the moment the new baby is placed in their arms and they have a second child to love.

P.S. Fortunately, Mother Nature designed short memories for feelings to be among the attributes will be about 500,000 dead bundans annually.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17-year-old girl who just read your reply to "Seen Plenty." I agree with you that parents can be too permissive with young, sexy daughters, but why didn't you say something to parents of teen-age boys? I've "Seen Plenty" of them around and they could sure use some talking to.

Some guys in this town walk around with their jeans so low on their hips it's a disgrace—all pubic hair showing, no shorts, also "ex-ed naked." I've seen guys walking the streets in bikinis no bigger than a diaper for a three-month-old baby. They are more like loincloths than bathing trunks.

My mother knows where I am and who I'm with every minute of my life. I also have to honor a curfew or get grounded. But my 16-year-old brother is never asked a single question—like "What were you doing until 2 o'clock this morning?"

I'm not criticizing you for suggesting that girls be kept in line, but I'm plenty bugged because you said nothing about boys. It's a real pleasure to spend an evening with a guy who has been taught to respect a girl and not have to fight him off every 10 minutes or argue with him about keeping what belongs to me in the first place. Please be fair, Ann. — Yes Let Us Down In Riverside

Dear L.D.: Thanks for handing me up short. I had it coming. Nothing I do say could half as effective as your letter. I hope the parents out there give it the thought it deserves.

Backlash to What's With Him?: Never mind HIM. What's with you that you'd want five years with a three time loser who lives with his mother and needs to be kept three evenings a week in a bar because life's problems are alone?

Food Review Board Blasts Chicken Boards

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board, in one of 17 last reports, has blasted broiler chicken marketing boards for encouraging inefficiency in the industry and causing unnecessarily high costs to consumers.

Although most chickens are raised by relatively large producers, the provincial marketing boards set prices at a level needed to maintain an adequate return to smaller, less efficient producers, the board said in a report released Monday.

Therefore, "the return on equity to many (larger) producers of broiler chickens in Canada appears extremely high by normal business standards."

The food board was officially disbanded last week with the creation of the new anti-inflation review board, but is publishing reports which were already being prepared.

Chamber Urges Spending Reduction

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Chamber of Commerce urged the provincial government Monday to move toward a more balanced budget by strict control of government expenditures.

The provinces recently voted to ask the federal government's national farm products marketing council to establish a national broiler marketing agency as a co-ordinating body for the provincial marketing boards.

The food board report recommended a national agency not be established because "it would only aggravate the present high costs and inefficiencies of broiler supply management at the provincial level."

In a brief to Provincial Treasurer Darcy McKeough, the chamber asked that the sales tax, at a retail level only, be restored to seven per cent from the current five per cent.

The brief, submitted in advance of Mr. McKeough's budget which is expected late this winter.

McKeough Criticizes Economic Guidelines

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough says the federal economic guidelines contain loopholes big enough to drive a truck through.

The minister said in an interview Monday there is a long list of questions to which Ontario needs answers such as how the federal wage and price controls will affect provincial civil servants, teachers, municipal workers and doctors.

Hillcrest Ratepayers Fear Further Hike in Sewer Costs

A group of Hillcrest householders have petitioned city council for an explicit breakdown of how planned sanitary sewer installations will affect their tax bills.

The request presented to council Monday night is a sequel to the current controversy over sanitary sewer costs in Hillcrest's north end where sewer services already have been installed.

The petition came from 31 householders in the neighborhood's south end, where the final phase of the two-part installation program now is planned.

It follows fears expressed recently by Ken Brooks, Hillcrest Ratepayers Association president, that inflation will have boosted construction charges.

The first phase cost $17 a foot on property frontages installed as local improvements, Mr. Brooks has said he fears that the cost could jump to $30-$25 a foot for the south end installation in the College-Byron streets zone of Hillcrest.

His letter accompanying the petition—presented by William Hockley of the Quinte Information Assistance Centre—asked that city hall representatives meet with the homeowners to discuss costs before any construction contracts are let.

Mr. Brooks said there was no such contact with Hillcrest residents before the first phase of the sewer program was contracted.

Many of the homeowners now being serviced are "seriously concerned" about the cost of the local improvement levies resulting in apparently high tax bills.

As a result some are considering selling out—a fact known to land speculators watching the situation with the "tenacity" of "vultures," wrote Mr. Brooks.

Now residents involved with the second installation phase are concerned "there be no repetition of what happened before."

If contract prices are equally high and "unaffordable", then the problem "presently existing in the Hillcrest area will be compounded even more," he said.

Meanwhile, in the latest protest move, the ratepayers association now has collected statements from householders on tax increases since the sewers were installed.

This will be typed in affidavit form Tuesday night and notarized Wednesday at the neighborhood's community centre.

The association plans using the statements in court tactic it's keeping in reserve should its appeal for relief on the sewer costs fail through standard channels: An appeal to Ontario Ombudsman Arthur Maloney.

City Urges Queen's Park To Act on Sunday Hours

City council has put its civic seal to protests against Sunday supermarket commerce.

Councillors Monday demanded in a plea to Queen's Park asking the Attorney — General's department to permit prosecutions under the Lord's Day Act and to the provincial government to give priority to legislation prohibiting Sunday opening of supermarkets.

The gesture of protest comes as city hall apparently finds itself hapless to take any initiative against supermarkets — both chains and independents — now conducting seven-day-a-week trade.

Uncertainty about the power of local ordinances and the fact prosecution under the Lord's Day Act needs provincial sanction are root causes of the city hall dilemma.

In fact, a review of the situation ordered from city manager Wilbur Purcell — noting possible pending provincial legislation — advised council take no present action.

A resigned note was struck by Mayor Ben Corke.

Because of the "weakness of the law" the recommendation to Queen's Park was "about as far as we can go at this minute," he said.

— Hopefully we will achieve some speedup in Toronto on this matter."

The resolution was successfully introduced into council by Ald. Joe Cox — who earlier in the day had threatened to go it alone in laying charges if council didn't act.

In council he reminded his colleagues of the petition from community organizations — council's agenda included a number of letters on the issue, mostly from church groups.

Ald. Cox said no one objected to "essential services for small proprietors" being open on Sundays.

But steps are needed to eliminate "wholesale commercialization" on Sunday, he said.

Mayor Corke revealed action had been discussed seven or eight weeks ago when Loblaw's supermarket chain — A & P — announced it would open Sundays.

He said he had checked with police authorities but was "able to find out very little" except measures under the Lord's Day Act.

But the "Crown Attorney to this date has not told the (Police) chief (Douglas Crowder) to go ahead and laying a charge."

The mayor said he was also equally concerned about stores being open to midnight.

"Surely this is a dreadful disruption of family life and so forth," he added.

Ald. Sam Meeks claimed Sunday openings posed another problem to civic government — a possible increase in services, including public works, transportation garbage collection.

Currently, A & P, Food City and Dominion chains are open Sunday.

Free Parking Ends

City council Monday officially wrote off a year-old privilege enjoyed by motorists in downtown Belleville:

It ended free Wednesday afternoon parking at city meters.

The custom likely dates from the days when Wednesday was early-closing day for city commerce — then totally centred downtown.

But Monday a city council approved a request from Belleville Parking Authority to enforce parking meter charges on Wednesday afternoons.

Monday, it gave three readings to the measure amending bylaw formally ending the custom.

Concern Questioned

Supermarkets weren't the only source for criticism from ald. Joe Cox Monday as he won city council support for provincial government action against Sunday openings.

The councillor also indicated he felt some church groups lack of outspoken support against supermarket Sunday business — a barb apparently inspired by letters to council on the topic.

On council's agenda Monday were five letters — mainly from church groups, including the Belleville Ministerial Association.

Ald. Cox indicated he would have preferred the issue had also drawn delegations to city hall.

"I feel very disappointed in our respect," he said.

The concern of groups about the issue "should be written down on a piece of paper.

"But it takes a bit of effort to come down to city council, present you-self — and let people know how you feel."

CUPW on Strike

Hands stuck deep into pockets against the morning chill, a Belleville Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) picketer paces on Church Street behind the city post office early today, the first day of a nationwide strike by inside postal workers. The 45 workers in Bellevile were called out at 6 a.m. today by union negotiators in Ottawa to protest government negotiating tactics.

City Begins Moves To Help Crippled

A plea to enlist local government aid to expand the mobility of disabled persons in Belleville drew no immediate action from city council Monday night.

The problem is multi-faceted — involving public transportation, sidewalk designs and ramp access to schools and buildings.

In a letter to council last month, Irene Sansom, director of the Cheshire Home for handicapped adults, said disabled people are "frustrated" but resigned to being forgotten when public funds are involved in solving their problem.

City manager Wilbur Purcell told council the city the city already had acted in one area. During reconstruction of the southend of Victoria Ave. sidewalk ramps —to facilitate wheel chairs — were included for the first time in city road plant. It's expected such provisions will be continued in future.

Providing ramps in buildings "seems to rest" with the upcoming Ontario Building Code, indicated Mr. Purcell.

However, the first outline of the code does not include any mandatory requirements for the physically handicapped although the draft is not necessarily the final form the regulations will take.

He proposed that requests about transportation and access to schools be referred to the Belleville Transit Commission and local school boards.

Resident Questions Need For Street Widening

Future transportation trends — dictated by energy problems — should cause city hall to rethink plans for broadening Victoria Ave.

It was among suggestions presented for city council's consideration Monday by Victoria resident Dr. Paul Knutson, city dentist.

The avenue already has been widened to cope with four-lane traffic as far north as William St. Plans for extending the reconstruction north to Machin Drive already have been processed — although council also intends having city hall discuss the project with householders along the route before the project is finalized.

But Dr. Knutson said the road widening is planned up to 20 years ahead of the traffic volume that would warrant such reconstruction.

Future energy problems could also see not only smaller cars, but fewer of them in use, he said.

He said he did not agree that "the ubiquitous automobile" should take precedence over the aesthetics and beauty of a street.

Dr Knutson also called reconstruction of Victoria ahead of William — he said the plan for widening includes a 15-foot-wide boulevard from the curb to the sidewalk which in effect he said had become a waste strip.

His appeal came as city council was asked to consider approval in principle for the second phase of reconstruction and call a public meeting to discuss details with Victoria residents.

Railway Signals Promised

City council will consider safety measures at two railroad level-crossings in south Belleville next year.

The crossing — on the Canadian Pacific line at Mary and Sidney streets — have prompted complaints to city hall.

The reason: Since they're unprotected by signals approaching trains must sound warning whistles — and this has led to about the noise.

Council moved toward a solution when it agreed with Mayor Ben Corke that "we plan in 1976 to put proper signals" at both sites.

Hawkins Accepts New Post

The Hastings County Board of Education is losing its 44-year-old director of plant Keith Hawkins to the Greater Victoria School Board in British Columbia.

A key figure in the board's administrative council, Hawkins made his resignation known Monday to become the assistant superintendent of construction and maintenance with the British Columbia school board.

Married with four children, Mr. Hawkins has been with the Hastings board since February, 1971. Prior to this he was with the Frontenac County Board of Education building out of Kingston.

Director of education Eric Masterson said Monday the board regrets losing Mr. Hawkins. He added that if Hawkins has been a great asset to the board's limited and often frustrated building program due to provincial spending curbs which have restricted growth.

Shooting Brings Inquest

BROCKVILLE — An inquest into the shooting death of a 16-year-old La Salle, Que. youth by a Ontario provincial police constable Oct. 10 will be held here by Dr. C.B. Meyer Nov. 15.

A provincial police spokesman from Toronto said today it will look into the death of Salvatore Strazzulo, 16.

The youth was shot while an unidentified OPP constable was investigating a car parked on the shoulder of Highway 401, east of Gananoque.

Land Purchase May End Construction Stalemate

A Belleville developer has moved to solve an apartment project problem on which city council has refused to budge for the past month.

Maurice H. Rollins Construction Ltd. had been seeking approval to continue developing two 41-plex units on Elgin St.—after it was discovered the rear yards were about 10 feet short of the 25-foot space demanded by zoning regulations.

Work already had started when the shortage was discovered and the developer sought permission for a minor variance from council's committee of adjustment.

Council ordered no action by the committee until it heard from Quinte Planning Board (QPB) officials.

The matter was back before council Monday.

But Ald. Joe Cox, chairman of council's subordinate planning advisory committee, told his colleagues the developer now wanted the architection withdrawn. Additional property had been purchased from adjoining owners.

Centre Gets Grant

MELROSE — Tyendinaga Township council has received a provincial government grant of $1,196 toward costs of improvements to the Melrose Community Hall.

The grant represents 25 per cent of the cost of plumbing, kitchen and other improvements.

The cheque was presented by Charles Rollins, MPP Hastings-Peterborough.

Inquest Ordered

A coroner's inquest will be held Wednesday at 10 a.m. in Hastings County Court House into the deaths by electrocution of two electricians working at Constellation Carpet.

The two men were killed in an electrical explosion Feb. 21 while working at the Belleville plant.

Kingston coroner Dr. C. Meyer will conduct the proceedings.

Diversity Often Key to Small Operator's Success

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

To get into small business you have to be able to gamble your savings and obtain the financial and moral blessings of your wife.

Merv Ryder, vice-president of the Ontario Society of Registered Industrial Accountants made this comment Monday while explaining the procedures of opening a small business in Ontario.

"You have to want to get into business because you love it and you have to be able to get your wife to sign the papers before a bank will give a loan," he said.

She has equity in the house and the savings account. Don't [illegible] about your business idea, you won't be able to convince the bank manager," he said.

Quoting federal statistics, Mr. Ryder — an accountant and operator of a building company — said 80 per cent of Canadian businesses employ less than 100 persons or "more than half the Canadian work force is employed by the small businessman."

If you're not prepared to gamble, then don't start a business, said Mr. Ryder. "You have to have a lot of desire to be the one person in charge or you'll lose everything."

He said a major weakness of small business is the operator who plays only one facet of business management.

Speaking at a meeting of local industrial accountants, he advised anyone in the room interested in starting a business to first find himself an accountant.

"So many people try business single handed though their skills are limited to one area," he said. "The lack of diversity will lead to the failure of business."

Versatility Required

Merv Ryder, vice-president of the Ontario chapter of registered industrial accountants, talks with local chapter president Fred Abrams about the complexity of small business. One of the biggest reasons for small business failures is the operator's knowledge is often limited to only one area of management, said Mr. Ryder at a Monday supper meeting.

Council Briefs

Good Nutrition Endorsed

Nutrition is a fundamental of good health.

City council was reminded of the fact Monday as it proclaimed Nov. 2-8 Nutrition Week.

The request came from the Hastings — Prince Edward Counties health unit.

It said one way to "counteract spiralling health care costs is to prevent illness caused by poor eating habits.

A 1973 survey showed that half of Canada's adults are overweight and lack certain nutrients in their diets, said the association.

Services Under Study

Need of a new industry for access in the city's northwest industrial park received first-step approval by city council Monday.

Council agreed to engineering survey for construction of a sanitary sewer, watermain and roadway on the south side south from Bell Blvd. But cost estimates must be submitted to council before there's any further move.

The request came from the Belleville Economic Development Commission which said a new industry, Tru-Glass Ltd., needs access to the cold-storage for goods transportation.

Courts Get Lights

City council Monday approved floodlighting of tennis courts — at Dick Ellis rink after the facilities have closed for the year.

But the timing wasn't as inappropriate as it seemed — enough to raise the question from Mayor Ben Corke as to why lighting was needed in October.

City manager Wilbur Purcell said if the facility had to be reconstructed into next year's finances the 1976 tennis season would be well underway before the approval process was complete.

Sewer Contract Let

City council Monday formally sanctioned a tender which has saved Belleville a final stretch of the East Dundas St. road reconstruction project.

Earlier this year council — faced with prohibitively high bids — decided to split the project into two phases.

Council awarded the sewer contract to Korsan Ltd. of Cobourg, for $48,000.

While the lowest bid was still 15 per cent over engineering estimates, there would be savings on various parts of the project amounting to about $37,000.

Tender Below Estimate

Construction of a road and sanitary service scheme in the city's northwest industrial park will cost $123,000 more than $30,000 below engineering estimates.

That was the total of the tender approved Monday night by city council—a bid entered by Korsan Ltd. of Cobourg.

It was the lowest of seven bids ranging up to $169,900.

Engineering estimate for the work was $153,000—for construction of a gravel road, sewage pumping station and forcemain servicing a recently-acquired industry—Fabricon.

Pay Cheque More Often

City councillors will receive their civic salaries more frequently.

Council Monday went along with a suggestion from Mayor Ben Corke that remuneration be paid monthly — instead of the current three months.

The mayor who four years ago as a councillor had the four-times-a-year payments introduced — said a system of monthly allowances now "seems only realistic!"

Disposal Plan Studied

A provincial government study will consider the possibility of a processing plant in Belleville — Trenton area for disposal of solid wastes.

City council learned of the proposal Monday as its participation was sought in the study — commissioned by the environment ministry's waste resources branch.

The study will examine the most effective means of handling solid wastes in the Quinte — Thousand Islands corridor — extending from Trenton to Gananoque.

Included is the feasibility a wastes recovery plant.

Location of such a facility in Kingston — serving the entire corridor — already has been proposed.

But the study also will examine siting an additional plant in the Belleville/Trenton areas.

Two Quinte - area waste disposal studies already exist and will be incorporated into the provincial scrutiny conducted by consultants.

Driver Charged

STIRLING — A Trenton man has been charged with careless driving following a single-car crash on Ridge Rd., 1.5 miles east of Stirling at 3 a.m. Tuesday.

Charged is Harvey Greavais, 26, of Trenton.

Police say the Greavais car went out of control and crashed into the ditch at the roadside causing an estimated $200 damage to the vehicle. There were no injuries.

Corrigall, Baker Nominated in 3 Categories

MONTREAL (CP) — Defensive ends Jim Corrigall of Toronto Argonauts and Bill Baker of British Columbia Lions monopolize their clubs's nominations for Canadian Schenk-Football Awards, recognizing top performers in the Canadian Football League.

Corrigall is the Argonauts nominee for three awards—most outstanding player, Canadian player of the year and defensive player of the year. Baker was nominated for the same awards from the Lions.

The first-round selections, announced today, were made by 96 sportswriters and broadcasters in the nine CFL cities.

Second-round balloting, to be announced on Nov. 30, will reduce the nominees to one from each of the Eastern and Western Football Conferences in each of the five categories.

Terry Sheridan, as offensive lineman of the year, and wide receiver L. J. Clayton, as top rookie, cracked Corrigalls monopoly on Toronto nominations, while Layne McDowell in the offensive lineman category and linebacker Larry Cameron in the rookie balloting are other Toronto lions in line for awards.

In the outstanding player competition with Corrigall and Baker are two former winners, flanker and defensive back Gerney Henley of Hamilton Tiger-Cats and wide receiver George McGowan of Edmonton Eskimos, along with wide receiver and running back Johnny Rodgers of Montreal Alouettes, last year's rookie-of-the-year.

Henley, who will retire after this season to take up coaching at the college level, won in 1973, while McGowan was the 1974 winner. Rodgers lost out to Edmonton quarterback Tom Wilkinson in last year's final.

Others nominated from their respective clubs as outstanding players are running back Art Green of Ottawa Rough Riders, offensive back Tim Campana of running back Willie Burden of Calgary Stampeders and running back Steve Beaird of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, also a rookie nominee.

Other top Canadian hopefuls are tight end Peter Dalla Riva of Montreal, runner-receiver Jim Foley of Ottawa, wide receiver Terry Evanshen of Hamilton, centre Bob Swift of Winnipeg, defensive back Ted Dushinski of Saskatchewan, wide receiver Tom Forzani of Calgary and John Konihowski of Edmonton, a former track star turned pass catcher.

Offensive lineman candidates include Guy Morriseau of Montreal, Tom Schuette of Ottawa, Ed Chalupka of Hamilton, Bill Frank of Winnipeg, Gary Brandt of Saskatchewan, Max Huber from the Stampeders and Charlie Turner of Edmonton.

Up for defensive player honors with Corrigall and Baker are tackle Glen Weir of the Alouettes, halfback Rod Woodward of Ottawa, tackle Mike Samples of Hamilton, halfback Brian Herosian of Winnipeg, tackles Tim Roth of Saskatchewan and Alan Hamilton of Calgary and end Ron Estay of the Eskimos.

Rookie nominees with Clayton, Cameron and Beaird are wide receiver Joe Poitevin of Montreal, quarterback Tom Clements of Ottawa, running back Angelo Santucci of the Tiger-Cats, defensive end Jesse O'Neal of Saskatchewan, halfback Vernon Roberson of Calgary and defensive back Pete Lavorato of Edmonton.

Record Book Under Attack

TORONTO (CP) — Records were made to be broken, and the Canadian Football League is no exception. League officials, in statistics released Monday, said the record book never has been under the seige it faces this year, particularly during the final two weeks of the season.

For instance:

—Willie Burden, Calgary, needs only 240 yards in the Stampeders final two games to erase Earl Lunsford's one-season rushing mark of 1,594 yards set in 1962. Burden's current general manager was galloping with the Stamps.

—George McGowan, Edmonton Eskimos, needs 12 receptions to pass Terry Evanshen's one-season record of 96 catches. But the Hamilton Ticats receiver's one-season touchdown reception mark of 17—a mark he shares with Hugh Campbell—appears solidified with Evanshen the closest, with 12.

—Dave Cutler, Edmonton kicker, needs four points to pass former Tiger-Cat Tommy Joe Coffey's season record of 148.

—Saskatchewan Roughriders' George Reed, with one game to play, has (1) beaten his one-season record of rushing plays (200 in 1967) with 305; (2) added to his own career total of touchdowns (126) with 127; (3) beaten his own career record of 100-yard rushing games, adding nine for a total of 66.

Other notable achievements in the CFL this year:

—Art Green, Ottawa Rough Riders running back, has 13 touchdowns this year, best in the East since Vic Washington's 14 with Ottawa in 1969, and his 19 TDs by running is the best since George Dixon ran for 11 major scores with Montreal Alouettes in 1962.

—While Montreal's Johnny Rodgers was the only player to pass 1,000 in pass catches in 1974, two Western Conference players already are well into the four-figure mark with four others threatening to break into the area. McGowan (1,228 yards) and Saskatchewan's Rhett Dawson (1,122) are already.

Buffalo Streak Ends On Late Field Goal

BUFFALO (AP) — Steady John Leypoldt missed and unsteady George Hunt didn't.

So New York Giants came away with a 19-14 upset National Football League victory over Buffalo Bills, a two-touchdown favorite going into Monday night's game.

Hunt, a fourth-year New York pro booted a field goal from 37 yards with nine seconds on the clock and the Bills suffered their first loss of the season after four victories.

It was the Giants' second triumph against three losses.

Buffalo Leypoldt, who made good on his three field goal attempts in earlier games, blew a blood effort with 3:16 remaining in the fourth period. The score was tied at 14 at the time.

For Hunt, who went into the game with only one three-point success in three tries and who missed two attempts against the Bills, his game-winner reminded him of his football days at the University of Tennessee.

"I kicked one with 13 seconds left against South Carolina that put us in the Sugar Bowl," Hunt said. "But this was great, coming on a Monday night and in the pros."

Pressure, as he lined up to kick?

No way, said Hunt, explaining that a miss would have sent the game into overtime.

Buffalo shot into a 14-0 lead, getting its first touchdown on O.J. Simpson's one-yard sprint to his right.

Then, after Buffalo's second TD on a 20-yard pass from Joe Ferguson to J. D. Hill in the second period, the Giants began to roll. Their offensive line continually beat the Bills defensive front four and quarterback Craig Morton picked the Buffalo secondary apart.

An eight-play sequence ended with Morton's 20-yard scoring pass to Ray Rhodes in the end zone.

The Giants continued to stymie the Bills and in the fourth quarter they knotted the game when Ron Johnson, who carried 13 times for 77 yards scored on a 15-yard run.

Simpson, who went into the game with 607 yards rushing, carried 34 times for 128 yards, his lowest in any of five games this year.

Condition Critical Ticat Fights to Live

CALGARY (CP) — Professional football player Tom Pate continued his fight to remain alive early today, more than 48 hours after he collapsed during a Canadian Football League game between Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Calgary Stampeders.

A spokesman at Foothills Hospital, which has not yet issued a full medical bulletin giving details of what caused the collapse, would only say that his condition remains very critical and unchanged.

Pate, a 33-year-old import rookie linebacker from University of Nebraska, collapsed after taking a clean block from Calgary back Rick Galton during the Ticats' 25-23 victory Saturday night. The six-foot-three, 230-pounder remained in a coma early today with his parents at his bedside.

There have been no official medical statements linking the block to the collapse. Stampeder general manager Gary Bloom said he had received a medical opinion that Pate suffered from an aneurysm—a weakness in a blood vessel which, if it burst, sudden collapse might not have been caused by the block.

A Ticat team spokesman said Sunday that Pate was not expected to live, but there has been no indication from doctors since of his chances for survival.

Dr. Jim Charters, a Hamilton team doctor, confirmed reports from Pate's team-mates that he had been suffering from severe headaches in recent weeks. He added there is no evidence linking the block with the headaches.

Ashe Falls to Laver

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (AP) — Australian Rod Laver defeated 1975 Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe 6-4, 6-4 in the opening round of the World invitational tennis tournament Monday.

Evonne Goolagong of Australia edged Virginia Wade 3-6, 6-4, 7-6 in the second match of the five-day, $135,000 event.

Laver needed a 5-1 lead in the first set before Ashe could come back to make it 5-4. Ashe had served twice with Laver, finally closed the set at 6-4.

Flyers' Bobby Clarke Gets Best Start Ever

MONTREAL (CP) — Team captain Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers moved into the lead in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race last week, statistics released Monday show.

Clarke now has five goals and nine assists for 14 points, one more than Gilbert Perreault of Buffalo Sabres. Perreault has four goals and nine assists.

Third spot is held down by Guy Lafleur of Montreal Canadiens with six goals and six assists with Bryan Trottier of New York Islanders, Marcel Dionne of Los Angeles Kings and Jean Ratelle of New York Rangers all tied for fourth with 11 points. Trottier, a rookie, and Dionne, acquired in a trade from Detroit Red Wings, each have five goals and six assists while Ratelle has three goals and eight assists.

Clarke, off to the best start in his seven-year NHL career, now has 311 points—111 goals and 200 assists—in the 470 games he has played. He scored his 500th point in the second game of the season and 460th of his career.

Only two players in NHL history have earned 500 points in regular-season play faster than Clarke—Bobby Orr of Boston Bruins and Jean Beliveau of Montreal.

Orr took only 396 games to reach the 500 mark while Beliveau, the former Montreal team captain, gained his 500th point in his 424th game.

Meanwhile, the New York Islanders goaltending duo of Billy Smith and Glenn Resch have the best goals-against average—2.00—on 12 goals against in six games. Each of them has recorded one shutout.

Bryan Watson, the veteran Detroit defenceman, leads the penalty parade with 34 minutes.

Cloutier WHA Leader

TORONTO (CP) — Real Cloutier, a second-year pro with Quebec Nordiques, is the surprise early leader in the World Hockey Association goals-scoring race.

The 19-year-old right winger has picked up six goals as the high-flying Nordiques averaged 5.25 goals a game in four outings.

Three assists give the youngster, selected in the amateur draft as an exceptional junior by the Nordiques two years ago, nine points and a share of the lead in the individual scoring derby with teammate Serge Bernier and Ulf Nilsson of Winnipeg Jets.

Cloutier and Norm Ullman, a 20-year National Hockey League veteran who jumped to the WHA's Edmonton Oilers this season, had the most productive week in league statistics announced Monday.

Canada Gets Kick from Joyce

MEXICO CITY (AP) — When Joyce Yakubovich won her first Pan-American gold medal in the 400 metres, she explained that she has to run fast at the start because she lacks a good finishing kick.

On Monday, running the anchor leg of the 1,600-metre relay, she upset her own form chart by blazing down the stretch to overtake Cathy Weston of the United States and deprive the U.S. of a sweep of the four relay events.

"I just saw the tape and decided if was no time to fool around," the 23-year-old Victoria student said afterwards.

Three other Canadians, two of them defending champions, mounted the victory rostrum during the day as the team accepted a total of 15 medals in six different sports.

Jocelyn Lovell of Toronto broke his own Games record as he cycled to his second consecutive triumph in the 1,000-metre time trial and Christine Boivin of Cedar Valley, Ont., rode to a repeat victory in individual dressage.

Line Chenard of Quebec City interrupted a string of U.S. victories in the Pan-Am pool by winning the women's 100-metre backstroke, erasing the Games record set four years ago by Donna Marie Gurr of Vancouver.

For the third consecutive day, U.S. athletes dominated the Games, winning 12 of the 19 gold medals available and setting for no less than a bronze in the other seven events.

They took six of the eight on the final day of the track and field program and six of seven in swimming and diving, plus silver medals in the water polo tournament, dressage, women's backstroke and 1,600 relay and the marathon.

The Canadian foil team of Peter Hemyer of Toronto, Susan Stewart of Vancouver and Fleurette Campeau and Chantal Gilbert-Payer of Montreal won Canada's first fencing medal, a silver, as Cuba continued its string of successes in the sport.

The only other Cuban gold medal came in the marathon, as Rigberto Mendoza outlasted Charles Smead of the U.S. and Tom Howard of Vancouver in what the 27-year-old Canadian described as the toughest race of his career.

That left the Americans with 39 gold medals to 34 for Cuba and 14 for Canada.

The Canadian pair of Lynra Wilkin and Carol Smart of Calgary won a silver medal in synchronized swimming. Ottawa's pole-vaulter Bruce Simpson finished second behind Earl Bell of the U.S. and the Canadians chased the Americans home in the 400-metre freestyle relay.

Both silver and bronze went to Canada in the women's 200-metre freestyle as Gail Amundsen of Vancouver and Anne Jardin of Pointe Claire, Que., both broke the Games record as they finished behind Kim Peyton of the U.S.

Marion Stuart of Montreal won a battle for a bronze over Joann Baker of Thunder Bay, Ont., who finished fourth, in the women's 100-meter breast-stroke, race.

There were also three Canadian bronzes in track relays. Mrs. Yakubowich, pressed into double duty along with Joanne McFaggart of Saskatoon, was another strong anchor leg in the women's 400 and Don Domansky of Thunder Bay, a 33-year-old veteran of nine years of international competition, ran the closing leg of the men's 1,600.

The U.S. and Cuba were first and second in all three races.

All four relay teams broke Canadian records.

Mrs. Yakubowich, coughing constantly after her second race of the day, said she did not dare take medication for fear of being ruled ineligible to compete, as was Joan Wenzel of Waterloo, Ont., who had to bow out of the 1,600 relay after dosing a severe cold. She was replaced by Miss McFaggart.

"The cough didn't affect my running," said Mrs. Yakubowich.

Canadas best chance for a medal in team sports was in field hockey as the Canadians played to a 2-2 draw with Argentina Monday in what experts described as a great exhibition of the sport.

Both teams are unbeaten with one round remaining in the seven-country tournament with the two four teams playing for the medals when the preliminary schedule ends. The Canadians have two draws in the Argentines' one.

The Canadian team scored its first victory in the final game of the water polo competition, defeating Puerto Rico 16-4 to finish fourth among the five contestants.

The baseball team was beaten 3-2 by Mexico and both basketball teams lost, the men being beaten 84-73 by the United States and the women 78-74 by Mexico.

Both volleyball teams also suffered defeats, the men losing to the U.S. and the women to Mexico.

Seven Top $100,000

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — With three races left on the 1975 Grand National circuit, seven drivers have won more than $100,000 in National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing competition this year.

Cale Yarborough scored his third 1975 victory in the American 500 at Rockingham, N.C., Sunday, running his money winnings to $115,890. Dave Marcis, third in the race, moved into the same rich neighborhood with $101,725.

Five racers previously had reached that plateau. The year's leader, Richard Petty, has won $250,720 so far. Others in six figures are David Pearson, $154,725; Bobby Allison, $116,685; Buddy Baker, $115,665, and Benny Parsons, $115,000.

Hamilton Is Sharp

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Mountain Junior A's won their second game in two nights, defeating Niagara Falls Flyers 4-3 in the only Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League game Monday.

Hamilton edged Owen Sound Greys 6-5 Sunday.

On Monday, Hamilton goals came from Bill Reilly, Mike Richardson, Dave Brazel and Rocki Smith.

Connie Marcotte scored the Niagara Falls goals.

Can Tiant Keep Red Sox Alive?

BOSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds and Boston Red Sox stop fighting the rain tonight and start fighting each other again in a long-awaited sixth game of the World Series.

After three consecutive rainouts, all systems were go for the delayed contest at Fenway Park.

Baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who called off Monday nights scheduled game because of a slippery field, gave the green light for tonight with the optimistic assurance that "the field will be much better."

The weather was expected to be better than it has been in recent days. Fenway Park, under siege by a long-winded storm since last Friday night, reopened under the tender care of a "lawn doctor," groundskeeper Joe Mooney, and was expected to be healthy again.

BOWIE KUHN

They almost played Monday night—and would have except that Kuhn wasn't entirely happy. "The field is not suitable for a World Series game of such importance," Kuhn finally said.

Although Fenway Parks drainage is reputed to be among the best in baseball, the outfield was a carpet of water. The park's ground crew drove in aerator over the watery outfield grass in an attempt to dry it out. Apparently they weren't successful.

The rainout tied an unblemished Series record. In 1962, San Francisco Giants and New York Yankees also had a game postponed three times by rain. Ironically, it was also the sixth game.

For the second day in a row, Anderson took his National League champions to a gymnasium on the Tufts campus.

The continued postponement didn't change Anderson's pitching plans. He stayed with Gary Nolan as his starter in Game No. 6 and Don Gullett for the seventh game, if necessary.

Nolan will face Luis Tiant, the ace of the Boston staff who owns the only two Red Sox victories in this series so far. The Reds, holding a 3-1 edge, can finish off Boston with a victory tonight and carry their first world championship since 1940.

The Red Sox, many of them bothered by bad colds because of the weather, hoped to stave off elimination and prolong the Series until Wednesday.

ABA Looking to NBA After Losing Claws

NEW YORK (AP) — American Basketball Association owners, in a move they said will bolster the sport's weakening financial status, moved Monday to join the National Basketball Association after burying another of the economy's victims—Baltimore Claws.

Owners of the seven other ABA clubs joined New York Nets and Denver Rockets in requesting applications for membership in the NBA beginning in the 1976-77 season. New York and Denver had done so on Sept. 24.

"Merger is the wrong word," said an ABA spokesman. "We're forbidden from merging, legally, without consent of the NBA players association and the courts."

Indeed, the courts appear to hold the key to the sport's future. Separate telegrams sent by each remaining ABA club to NBA commissioner Larry O'Brien said, in part: "If the NBA has interest in considering our application, we would like the NBA to join with us in petitioning Judge (Robert L.) Carter for permission to process an application under such circumstances as he may deem appropriate and consistent with his prior orders."

Those orders include prohibition of any merger between leagues not approved by Judge Carter and the NBA Players Association, which is involved in anti-trust action to prevent such a merger. While not calling it a merger attempt, New York Nets' Owner Roy Boe made clear his feelings on the matter.

"The key to the survival of basketball is to be one league," he said. "Anybody who understands what's happening in basketball realizes the sport is in a serious position and that we need consolidation to survive."

That point probably is clear yet to personnel of Baltimore Claws, who fade into ignominy without having played a regular season game. The club's remains—the players—will be redistributed through a dispersal draft.

Montreal Tops Laval

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Juniors ran up a 3-0 lead after two periods and defeated Laval Nationals 4-1 in the only Quebec Major Junior Hockey League game Monday night.

Kevin Reeves and Richard Sweek gave 3-0 first-period lead and Montreal's Jean Savard scored the only goal of the second session. Richard Jarry replied for Laval at 7:31 of the final period before Mike McDougall fired an insurance marker at 16:06.

Royal York Hot

TORONTO (CP) — Ernie Takeuchi and Phil Swain each scored two goals to lead Royal York Royals to a 9-4 victory over North Bay Trappers in the only Ontario Hockey Association Provincial Junior A game Monday.

The Royals trailed 3-1 at the end of the first period but led 6-4 lead after the second. Royal York scored three unanswered goals in the final period.

The loss was the second in as many nights for the Trappers, who were defeated 6-5 by Weston Dodgers in North Bay on Sunday.

Al McRae Ron Larose, Dan D'Alvise, Dave Blue and Mark Todd scored the other goals for the Royals.

North Bay goals were by Tom Diggles, Ron Fortier, Gerry Rioux and Jim Fox.

World Entertainment Briefs

NEW YORK (Reuter) — Paramount Pictures is suing director Elaine May for $4.3 million, claiming she is trying to do too much with a film they financed for her.

Not only did Miss May write, direct and produce the film Mickey and Nicky, but she now is also planning to release it on her own without Paramount, the company claimed in a suit filed Monday in Manhattan Supreme Court.

Justice Irving Kirschenbaum signed an order prohibiting Miss May from removing the film from its present location or tampering with it in any way pending the outcome of the suit.

The company said Miss May went over cost making the film and demanded $150,000 more to finish it. When the company refused, she accused it of breaching the agreement and abandoning production.

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — The Improvisation Club, a long-established proving ground for theatrical talent in New York, has opened a new club in Los Angeles to provide a showcase for television and movie talent here.

The club invites performers to come up from the audience and try their acts on its bare stage.

Budd Friedman, owner of both clubs, says of the Los Angeles club: "With out of the television shows now shifted from New York to Los Angeles, this town desperately needed a club like this."

Among the performers who first performed at the New York Improvisation were Lizz Minelli, Lily Tomlin, Dustin Hoffman, Dick Cavett and Freddie Prinze.

LONDON (AP) — Model, actress and singer Twiggy, will marry American actor Michael Whitney as soon as his divorce is made final, Whitney announced Monday at a party launching the autobiography of Leslie Hornby, Twiggy's real name.

Whitney, 28, said he has been the 26-year-old British model's "constant companion" for many months.

ROME (AP) — Roberto Rossellini, director of Open City and other Italian films, says dwindling cinema audiences — not more social deviance — is the penalty for the current wave of film violence and pornography.

Rossellini's remarks came Monday in an open letter to the leftist newspaper Paese Sera about the current "eclectic controversy over violence, pornography, eroticism . . . spread by mass media, with the cinema at the head."

Rossellini, 69, currently is working on a film of Jesus Christ, portrayed as a social redeemer rather than as God.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Hugo Zacchini, the original Human Cannonball who was catapulted from circus cannons for nearly four decades died here Monday of a stroke. He was 77.

Zacchini, born in Peru, was travelling with his father's circus, the Zacchini Brothers Circus, when he originated the human Cannonball act on the Island of Malta in 1922.

He was injured many times due to early failures of the special cannon he built, but continued to perfect the act as he travelled around the world. He was awarded the Gold Medal for Bravery in Italy.

The cannon act was carried on by a son, Hugo Zacchini, and a nephew, Hugo Zacchini II. His son has not performed the act since 1968, but now is rebuilding the cannon.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Citing an "artistic dispute" with director Jerrold Friedman, 20th Century-Fox said Sunday it has cancelled shooting in Jackson, Miss., of a $2 million film on the life of the late Buddy Holly, the rock music pioneer.

John Friedkin, a Fox spokesman, said crews have returned to Los Angeles. He said Fox considers the movie, Fade Away to be "a personal project of Friedman," and therefore no consideration had been given to replacing him with another director.

Friedman said there were unconfirmed reports that the director was attempting to sell the film to another movie maker, something Friedmkin said was not unprecedented.

He said the picture was a little less than one-third complete when production was stopped Thursday.

LONDON (Reuter) — In a small room in the shadow of London's famous Tower Bridge, the young Australian who made The Exorcist, is directing another film about a girl having problems with the devil.

But despite the success of sequels to the Godfather and The French Connection, Peter Sykes is adamant that To The Devil — A Daughter is no Exorcist Two.

For his latest movie Sykes has his biggest budget to date — more than $100,000 — and is working with his biggest star, Richard Widmark.

To The Devil . . . A Daughter — by Dennis Wheatley, the master thriller writer of novels on black magic — is about a young girl Natasaja Kinski whose father, a West German actor, signed a pact with the forces of the devil on the day she was christened. Now that she is 18, the other side wants the bargain fulfilled.

"Please, don't think I am making another exorcist," Sykes says. "I am only too aware of the fact that people will see it this way."

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Godfather director Francis Ford Coppola says he has signed Marlon Brando to work with him again in Apocalypse Now, Coppola's latest film.

Coppola made the announcement at the National Association of Theatre Owners award dinner Saturday night, as he was feted for Godfather and The Conversation.

Coppola also told the theatre owners he and screenwriter Robert Towne will collaborate on another production. The Brotherhood of the Grape.

Others at the awards dinner included actors Warren Beatty and George Burns who were honored, respectively, for their film work in Shampoo and the forthcoming The Star of Tomorrow, a screen version of the Neil Simon play The Sunshine Boys.

The movie will be the first screen role for the 79-year-old Burns since 1939.

"It's a good thing you didn't wait too long," Burns said, puffing a cigar, "or I might have been the Star of Yesterday."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A police chase near downtown Los Angeles ended Saturday in a crash at an intersection where an episode of Joe Forrester, the NBC-TV police series starring Lloyd Bridges, was being filmed.

Bridges and actor Richard Basehart had left the set five minutes before the crash.

Police said the vehicle was seen late Friday in a high burglary area and police tried to stop the driver for questioning. They chased the car at speeds up to 100 miles an hour before it crashed into two parked cars and a signal pole.

The camera lights were still on when the car sped into the intersection, and the crew turned the camera onto the crash scene.

Police said the 17-year-old driver of the car was injured and taken to hospital for treatment. He was later booked for investigation of drunken driving.

Bat At Home

PICTON — The United Church here may not exactly have bats in their belfry, but there is one making its home within the sanctuary of the building. A member of fast attending th eSaturday night concert, featuring Rosa Rio at the church organ, spotted the creature flapping its way across the church sanctuary.

According to one church member, the bat has been a long-time resident of the church and never bothers anyone, confining his activities to the ceiling area.

In general when you open a club with 4-3-3-3 distribution and your partner does not bid your suit you should rebid one notrump and conceal your four-card major. Thus, South rebids one notrump, not one spade.

This time it is all rather unimportant. North-South would reach three notrump on any bidding system and make an overtrick.

Ask the Jacobys

A Wisconsin reader asks what you should do holding: ♠—♥ ♦Y7654 ♣K9413 after the bidding has gone four hearts on four diamonds.

Our first suggestion is to give the hand to a bidder. If you can't do that and have a partner who bids hearts, reflect that a four notrump call asks him to bid a minor suit (unless a three cardee) bid four notrump.

Otherwise, just say to yourself, "This is not my hand" and pass.

When you use the short club property there are several lines of play. The first one is that you do not bid it when you distribution is anything except 4-4-3-2 or 4-3-3-3. The second is that you do not bid it when you only hold two clubs. The third is that you do not bid it when you hold four diamonds to an honor.

Another name for the short club is the junior notrump since it would be bid when you have notrump distribution and are too weak to open one notrump.

No Damage From Playpen Use

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a grandson, my son's first child. The other day he came to visit, and I was about to put the child in a playpen. My son told me he would not have it, that it might affect him psychologically.

I thought that was crazy. I had many children, and all of them played in a playpen until they could walk. It did not affect any of them.

We had a fight.

Are there physicians who are advising parents not to put children into playpens? —A.

You can find people (doctors included) who'll object to playpens.

There is nothing at all wrong with playpens. However, once a child has become accustomed to the "open space" of the playpen, rebel. It is wise to start playpen use rather early. When the child begins to walk, he will usually make it clear that he is ready for more adventurous surroundings.

A playpen should be placed in an open area where the child can see the action. The railings will encourage first steps, since they are handy for pulling himself up.

I are no psychological damage. Ask your son what effect his playpen months had on him. No reason to argue about it.

What I don't care for particularly are the harnesses to which some tots are tethered. I understand they are not in widespread use today, and good riddance. They seemed rather demeaning to me.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have had a fungus under the toenails and have had the nails removed. I would like to know what to spray or place in the old shoes that I have been wearing to prevent my toes from getting infected again.—J.H.N.

With the nails removed, the focal point of the infection has been removed. The nails will grow back, so you should concentrate on providing as healthful an environment as you can for them.

Fungus thrives in a warm, moist setting. Develop the habit of changing socks and shoes daily if you perspire greatly. Change your shoes frequently enough to allow one pair to dry out and air. Wash your feet daily and dry carefully between the toes, then dust with an anti-fungal powder. Don't go barefoot in the house.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it safe to drink the water without boiling? With all the pollution we hear about, I have started to collect rain water, and after boiling it, I store it in the fridge for drinking.

I have heard that boiling the water destroys the oxygen. What do you advise me regarding this plan?—Mrs. F.R.

Numbers one, there's just as much oxygen in boiled water as in unboiled water.

Number two, it seems to me you are going to a lot of trouble for nothing. Cities get a lot of bad mouthing these days, some of it justified. However, water in most cities is quite safe. Cities operate some of the most sophisticated water purifying systems around, and, in fact, many smaller towns get their communities far out in the suburbs.

Your mode of collecting rain water is interesting. It could be a source of pollution itself, for while city water is safe, many metropolitan areas get bad marks in air pollution through which that rain must pass.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend who chew gum for hours on end every day. I have told them this will cause their faces to become more wrinkled. They don't believe me, but are anxious to hear your opinion.

A peculiar notion. No, chewing gum won't cause wrinkles. A.B.

Industry Fails Indian Reserve

ST. PAUL, Alta. (CP) — Three years ago, the 300 Cree on the Kehewin Indian Reserve, near this northeastern Alberta community, were preparing to call a halt to five generations of welfare subsistence.

Ninety-eight per cent of employable adults were working in construction projects a sawmill, a manufacturing plant and a broadly-based handicraft industry.

Today, between 50 and 75 per cent of the people have made the return from payroll to welfare. The only vestiges of industry left on the reserve, 140 miles northeast of Edmonton, are scattered housing projects and a weaving factory employing a dozen women.

"Those projects in 1972 were make-work projects, jobcreating projects," Chief Joe Dion said in an interview. "Only profitable businesses will create permanence."

He said the economic development program, funded by federal work-opportunity programs and Local Initiatives Programs (LIP), was wrong in that it raised the hopes of the people.

"But it did employ most of them" said Dion. "Everybody can be said. "It did put them through the experience of earning money and spending it as they wished."

Chief Dion said the band management hasn't given up on development, but has simply changed its direction to more orderly, planned growth.

To make sure another boom-and-bust will be avoided, the band has hired an Edmonton consulting firm to draw up an economic model for the reserve.

Chief Dion said future development will probably centre on a steel-manufacturing operation. The building already exists, erected when the band began making prefabricated goods. That program fell through because the end project was too bulky to transport economically.

The new development program will also capitalize on the weaving business, Kehewin Cree-status Ltd., which is the only survivor of the Kehewin Tribal Handicrafts Association. The association was formed in 1972 with a million LIP grant to train about 40 women in weaving, sewing and tanning hides.

Cree-status has received no Indian affairs department funding in the last year, and should become self-sufficient in another 12 months, manager Jake Jackson said.

While a number of the reserve's Indians worked for a time in the construction of granaries and the steel, weaving and cannery plants further building projects were unlessible because of inadequate planning and skills, Chief Dion said.

However, he said, he is hopeful that more complete planning will make development "very available man and woman."

GOING HUNGRY

LEICESTER England (CP) — Children are going hungry in area schools because they are refused second helpings, a recently published report says. The report says vending lists for school dinners exist at 17 of the city's schools and blames over-crowding for the difficulties.

Centurions Blast Way to Victory

Centre Hastings Junior Centurions made sure they were going to get a piece of the action when playoff time comes around. Monday night, in the only game played in the Bay of Quinte Football League, the Centurions rolled to a devastating 48-0 win over Bayside Red Devils.

The Centurions had been tied with Bayside and Napanee with two wins and four losses. Monday's encounter was the last of the regular season for both teams. Only the top six teams earn a berth in post-season action. There are only three games left in the regular schedule and one of those, Quinte at Napanee, will decide the sixth and final playoff spot. If Napanee wins that game, being played tonight in Napanee, they will make the playoffs. If the District School lines they'll be out by way of their loss to Bayside during the regular season despite the fact that both will have four points.

Kelly Welch was the big difference in Monday's game. The highlying tailback scored the first Maple major and crossed the line three more times in the second half. He also broke for a pair of two point conversions giving him 28 points on the day.

While Welch was keeping the Devils off balance on the scoreboard, cornerback Greg Terrion was keeping a defensive onslaught that was knocking the wind out of the Red Devils offensive skills.

Bayside only counted four first downs in the entire game and Terrion really broke things open when, in the first half, he ran back a Devils' fumble 45 yards for a TD. He was also credited with a single after a punt into the end zone.

Wayne Willemsen galloped up the middle for a 15 yard touchdown and Graham Gough counted the final Kadec major of the contest. Derek Pulford was credited with a single to round out the Centurion's attack.

Huskies Earn Tie

PORT PERRY (Special) — Frankford Huskies settled and closed the scoring here Sunday night as the visitors earned a 7-7 Ontario Hockey Association Junior "C" tie with Port Perry Flamingos.

It took just 54 seconds for Huskies to get on the scoreboard. Rick Matheson was the early gainer, finishing off a play with Rob Arbuckle and Brian Mackintosh.

And Mackintosh shot the goal which earned Huskies the split. In points, Frankford goalie Jim Conley set the scoring play in motion, coming well out to clear the puck to Mackintosh who skated with just over three minutes to play.

John Masterson and Mackintosh were two-goal shooters for Huskies. Matheson, Sandy Waterson and Rick Mosama had the others.

Carlene Cavanzola was the big man for the home team. He looked after three Port Perry goals. Bernie Aldred picked up a pair of counters with one each for Dean Morgan and Bill Newton.

Conley was tested 39 times over the 60 minutes while his counterpart, Wayne Cordingly faced 36 shots. Port Perry drew 28 minutes in penalties, including a misconduct, to 27 minutes for Huskies, including three five-minute sentences.

Showing the effects of lack of practice time while they await ice-making operations in their home arena, Huskies' point was their first of the season after two setbacks.

Trevor Mastard, Brian Coxwell, attempting to get more action for his club, has arranged an exhibition game with Wellington Junior B squad. Friday. The game will be played in Wellington at 8:30 p.m.

Coxwell hopes to get few time in Madoc, Saturday, before Huskies make their next league start, in Bowmanville, Sunday night.

Huskies, missing Pat Fennell who is out with a shoulder injury, now have Jean Doucette on the shelf with a broken toe.

Two Tough Tests

The Loyalist College Lancers men's basketball team played a pair of exhibitior games on the weekend and although they dropped both games the rookie laden team is gaining valuable experience for the upcoming season.

"We're playing very tough teams." noted Loyalist coach Rob Stinson.

The Lancers took on Niagara College of Welland on Friday, coming up with a respectable finish while losing 72-85. Dave Culmer led the charge for the Lancers hooping 21 points. Culmer is one of the few Veteran players on the Loyalist club. Ken Fairbanks was the only other Lancer player to break into double figures, picking up 12 points in the game.

Things did not go so well in the game at Hamilton as Mohawk College, termed by Stinson as "the team to beat" rolled over the Lancers 120-20. Mike Lynch and Jim Belfall did the most damage for the losers, picking up 14 and 11 points respectively.

The Loyalist club still has several pre-season games including a contest this Friday evening at Loyalist, when the Centennial College team from Toronto will supply the opposition.

Boosters Organize

With the Metro Junior B season well-under way and the Belleville Bobcats apparently on their way to one of their more successful seasons, things are also shaping up in the form of a booster club.

The club will hold its organization meeting Wednesday evening at Memorial Arena at 8 p.m. Organizers hope to be able to organize buses for the out of town games as in previous seasons.

Quinte Takes Soccer Title

NEWMARKET (Special) — Bay of Quinte Area high school soccer teams proved their worth on Sunday at the 10th annual All Ontario Invitational Soccer Tournament here.

Quinte Secondary School took the "E" Division Championship while Belleville Collegiate Institute captured the "D" Division Consolation Championship.

All in all the Bay of Quinte teams managed eight wins in 11 games, an impressive showing considering the magnitude of the tournament.

In "D" Division play, Belleville Collegiate faced Frontenac in their first game, losing a tough one 2-1. After that the BCI team took a convincing 3-1 win from Cambridge. In the match for the "D" Consolation Championship BCI came out ahead over Toronto, 2-1. Randy Donovan and Dave Archer posted the goals for the winners. Danny Smith was a stand-out for the Belleville team in goal.

Going to "E" Division competition the Quinte Saints swept all three of their matches. First it was 3-1 then a convincing 3-0 win over the host, Newmarket. In the final, Quinte came up with a big game to defeat London 1-0. Paul D'Anna scored the game winner, with Danny Ying taking the shutout.

In the "F" Division, Bayside Secondary School defeated Orillia 2-0 and Gravenhurst 1-0 before being knocked out of the tournament in a 1-0 loss to Weston.

In the "G" Division Brighton defeated Thornhill by default and then tied Burlington 0-0. Burlington won on penalty shots.

"It was some of the best soccer in high school competition I've ever seen" said BCI coach Dave Handley.

High scorers in the tournament were Dave Archer of BCI with three goals and an assist for four points. Paul D'Anna and Taso Christopher both scored two goals at the tournament. Randy Donovan, Gord Van Vliet and Mark Adair, all of BCI had one goal each. Sterling Wilson and Steve Edwards both contributed goals for Quinte.

The Bayside scorers were Ken Lemoire, John Vanliuren and Jim Brier, all with one marker.

Goalies Danny Ying and Rob Birne each had two shutouts in the competition.

One of the reasons BCI did not go to a championship in the tournament was that in the first game the team was missing a number of regulars. Once the team was at full strength they had little trouble winning the Consolation Prize.

In the cheerleading competition at the tournament, which was won by Thistletown, Bayside scored a strong second while BCI ended up seventh.

Val Hopkins of Bayside came in third in the individual cheerleading contest.

Bob's, Chuckwagon on Top

Bob's Sports moved back into a first place tie with Chuckwagon Foods Monday when they bombed Jim's Pizeria 7-1 in Gas House Hockey League action. Both teams are still undefeated in three starts.

In two other games Monday night, Bed-Con Engineering and Constellation Carpets battled to a 2-2 tie while the Yardmen nipped Rollins Lumber 3-2.

Charlie Rowbotham earned his first hat trick of the season Monday in leading Bob's to their win. Ted Rowland added a pair of goals and Mike Coughlin and Frank Wilels rounded things out with one each. Dave Hiddleton collected three assists.

Ted Bride replied for Jim's.

Rob Foster gave Bed-Con their third point of the young season as he fired both markers to keep them on an even keel with Constellation. Dale Caul and Greg Bellis were the scorers for the Carpetmen. It was Constellation's first point

Playoff Spots Up for Grabs

The Bay of Quinte High School Soccer league is nearing its regular season completion. Playoffs will soon be starting for the better teams in the league, with few playoff spots clinched as yet.

In recent action, Centennial Chargers defeated Albert College by a 7-0 score in senior West Division play. Trenton defeated Bayside by a 3-1 score to secure a playoff spot in the West Center. Hastings moved up a few notches in the standings by defeating Moira "B" 3-2 in their match.

Lock 4 didn't follow the Brighton team into their game against Quinte though, as they lost 6-1 to the Saints. Moira "A" had a field day against Napanee, defeating them 9-0 and dropping Napanee into the East Division cellar. Quinte then played BCI in a battle of the best, coming up short 2-1 in the contest.

Things are still very close in the East Division for the seniors, with BCI on top with 10 points, followed by Quinte with nine and Moira "A" team, with seven.

In the West, Trenton is on top, followed by Bayside and Centennial, Trenton has 19 points and has clinched a playoff spot, as has Bayside.

In Junior play Trenton took a squeaker from Bayside by a 4-3 score to move into second place in the West. BCI defeated Quinte 4-0 to clinch a playoff spot in the Eastern Conference, Moira took a 4-3 win from Napanee to move into second place in the East. Center's Hastings and Quinte tied 5-2 in Western Division junior.

It looks like BCI has it all wrapped in the East, with Moira and Nicholson Catholic College the other two playoff hopefuls.

In the East Prince Edward Collegiate has clinched a spot, Trenton and East Northumberland will be in the running also.

Hlth scorer in senior play is Dave Archer, with nine goals so far for the BCI Wanderers. Tom Britton of Moira has six markers while Dennis Thillault, also a Trojan, has five goals and BCI's Gord Van Vliet has four scores.

Senior goaltending shows George O'Donnell on top with four shutouts for Moira Trojans. Danny Vine of Quinte has three whitewashes while Mark Adair and Dan Smith of BCI share two, Pat Scott and Steve Dolan of Nicholson are next, sharing one shutout.

In junior play Steve Parr has six goals for BCI, as does Dwight Begley of the same team. Kevin Parr and Doug Campbell, two more BCI players, both have three goals. Frank Skerri of Nicholson has two.

Mark Clare and Mike Wright of BCI lead junior goalies with three shutouts shared.

McDonald's Win 5-3

TRENTON (Special) — Scorers for the final three goals of the game, Belleville McDonald's scored a 5-3 win over Trenton in Ontario Minor Hockey Association exhibition minor atom play here, Sunday.

The Trenton skaters held a 3-2 lead halfway through the game but the visitors took command after that.

Todd Gerrard tied two goals for McDonald's. Checking in with singles were Barry Smith, Paul Brannigan and Jamie Wright.

Trenton got a pair of goals from John Finlan and one by Clayton Smith.

Contingency Mail Plans Implemented

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Governments, businesses and banks are putting into effect contingency plans for alternative methods of mail delivery in response to a strike by 22,000 inside postal workers that began Tuesday and has halted regular mail service in many Canadian areas.

A post office spokesman in Ottawa said all federal pension, welfare and unemployment insurance cheques were mailed early this month "so we don't have to worry about October."

If the strike continued into November, the government would use same system for delivery it has used in previous disputes—sending all cheques, including old age pension, to local Unemployment Insurance Commission offices to be picked up by recipients.

The spokesman said normal government mail will be sent by air express or by private courier services.

The situation across Canada:

Ottawa—A spokesman for Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co. Ltd., in Nova Scotia said the company will use a delivery service to send out residential bills in the Halifax-Dartmouth area while bills will be delivered to rural post offices not affected by the strike outside the area. In other communities, the company will advertise that the bills can be paid at certain payment agencies. A spokesman said Nova Scotia Power Corp. has no definite plans for sending out residential power bills. Jack Chubaty, administrative officer for the Bank of Montreal in the Atlantic provinces, said banks plan to use airline services between major centres, buses between communities in each province and couriers within cities. The Halifax Board of Trade is encouraging most businesses to use services such as railways, express bus lines and local courier services.

Businesses Appeal For Mail Strike End

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A strike by Canada's 22,000 inside postal workers continues to slow or halt mail delivery in most parts of Canada today and has prompted appeals by union and post office officials from business and industry leaders who say a lengthy strike will affect the economy.

The workers—counter clerks who sort, load and unload mail—went on strike Tuesday on orders from the executive board of the Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) following a breakdown in contract negotiations in Ottawa Monday night.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday in Winnipeg that inside postal workers will gain nothing by striking because any wage increases beyond the limits of the federal government's anti-inflation wage and price controls will be taxed away.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said earlier Monday that government negotiators will resume talks with the union says whether it will accept the government final wage offer of a 27-per-cent increase over 30 months.

Joe Davidson, CUPW president, said the length of the strike will depend on how soon Mr. Mackasey accedes to the union demands.

In a statement on the union's decision, Mr. Davidson said Mr. Mackasey knew there were important issues besides wages he refused to discuss them.

He said the results of a vote held last week to authorize the strike showed 96 per cent of all CUPW members were in favor of such action.

Mr. Mackasey said later Tuesday in Windsor, Ont., that there is no chance the striking postal workers will get more than the 31.70 pay increase recommended by a conciliation board.

In a speech to the city's Chamber of Commerce, he said the $1.70 increase represents a greater increase than federal selective wage controls allow most workers and is the same amount Canada's letter carriers settled for last April.

The union earlier had lowered its demand for an increase of $2.38 an hour over one year to $1.72 an hour over 27 months and says it can go no lower. The current average hourly wage is $4.39, which works out to a gross annual income of about $9,500.

The Canadian Chamber of Commerce said in a telegram sent Tuesday to Mr. Mackasey that the strike will cause severe damage to the Canadian economy, especially to small businesses.

A chamber official said in an interview that businessmen in St. Catharines, Ont., tabulated the direct cost to them of the strike by letter carriers last April at $185,000.

These costs included courier services, telephone calls and telegrams to replace mail service, loss of non-recoverable business and other charges attributed to late delivery or payment of bills, officials said.

The post office has said it will attempt to offer partial service if enough members of the CUPW deny their union's strike order. But there were only scattered reports of defiance on the first day of the strike.

In the Atlantic provinces, where most workers left their jobs early Tuesday morning, a post office at Rothesay, near Saint John, N.B., said several rural substations in Nova Scotia no small to employ CUPW members were reported in full operation.

In London, Ont., one worker defied the strike order and said he plans legal action against the union to protest a one-year suspension handed him for circulating a petition urging the national union to drop support for militants in CUPW's Montreal local.

A post office spokesman said the country's 18,000 letter carriers, members of the Letter Carriers Union, and mail couriers, who belong to the Canadian Union of Public Employees, were delivering mail sorted before the strike began.

There was a possibility they would be laid off because no mail was being sorted but they are temporarily in a no-layoff position, the spokesman said. As long as they report for work, they will continue to be paid.

In Ottawa, the union's chief negotiator, Jean-Claude Parrot, said the striking workers will have to rely on their own savings or loans from banks until they return to work because the CUPW does not have a strike fund.

Meanwhile, a 24-hour information service for banks has been set up at the CUPW headquarters in Ottawa while the union leadership waits for its next move, he said.

The union wants to settle the issue of the post office's use of casual labor but the matter has not reached the bargaining table. Other items on the union bargaining list are premium pay for weekend work and increased shift differentials for night work.

Mitchell Sharp, acting for Prime Minister Trudeau who is on a tour of Western Canada, said Tuesday he could not say how long the government would let the strike go on.

Police, Kidnappers Deadlocked Over Freedom of Industrialist

MONASTERREIVIN, Ireland (AP) — Heavily-armed troops and police laid siege through the night to a house in which Irish terrorists held Dutch industrialist Tiede Herrema captive on the second floor.

Police marksmen kept their weapons trained Tuesday night on upstairs windows of the house in this rural market town 40 miles from Dublin, but there was no break in the deadlock between police and the kidnappers.

An official spokesman said the kidnappers have made no new demands since police and troops stormed into the house early Tuesday and drove them upstairs, ending a search for Herrema that began with his kidnapping 19 days ago.

"They have simply refused to give up Dr. Herrema and would not," he said. "There have been no further moves."

Meanwhile, police were questioning the married couple who rent the house, and another man was under arrest in connection with the case.

The 36-year-old Dutch executive was kidnapped in Limerick by terrorists demanding that the Irish government release three members of the Irish Republican Army from prison. At one point, the abductors threatened to kill Herrema's wife to prove he was still alive.

From the start, the government ruled out the release of the prisoners.

It was reported at a meeting of the Quinte Sports Council Parade committee Tuesday night that 10,000 candy canes have been purchased for this year's Christmas parade.

This means an increase of 3,000 candy canes over last year.

"We simply expect more youngsters to be watching the parade — not because the parade is going to be bigger and better, than ever," said John Lennarts, chairman of the parade committee.

Candy Cane Inflation?

Inflation has hit the candy cane market.

Stalker dragged Herrema upstairs, keeping a pistol to his head. Police did not return the fire, to avoid hurting Herrema.

Gallagher dragged his victim to an upstairs window and shouted: "Hey, a dead man ... you try anything."

Roof Safety Factors Cause Closure of Brighton Arena

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — More than 2,000 residents of Brighton village and township will be without arena facilities this winter as the building was ordered shut by the Ministry of Labor (MOL) Tuesday, for safety reasons.

Two separate studies this past summer and a year ago one ordered by the combined recreation committee and the other by the village, both revealed the building did not conform to Ontario building code requirements, was unsafe, and was not worth repairing. The reports said the roof could not support a heavy snow load and could collapse.

In an apparent spot check last week, the industrial safety branch of the MOL asked village clerk Shirley Patterson to forward the reports for examination. Mrs. Patterson said the MOL ordered the facility closed immediately.

Brighton village and Brighton township are currently working to get Murray Township's opinion on whether it will cooperate in a three-way effort to build a new arena. The site is to be located in Brighton proper.

The new arena seemed to be certain until it met with opposition from northern residents in Murray, who objected to the proposed location of the facility in Brighton village.

In a surprise move the Murray Township council ordered a survey taken of ratepayers to find out opinion on the arena matter. The poll is now being taken, said Ken Rose, Murray clerk, said the results are not due to be announced until November 3, council meeting.

Officials of the two Brighton bodies replied if Murray backs out of the $600,000 project they will not be able to build a new arena.

More than 700 people are now using the facility in organized hockey such as minor hockey, figure skating and men's leagues. An emergency meeting of the arena committee was held last night to plan how to continue the various programs, said Bill Horabeck, recreation director.

"We are trying to arrange ice time for the minor hockey in Colborne, and anywhere else we can, so the programs can continue until some decision about the new arena is made," he said. Mr. Horabeck said local schools use the facility and this affects another 1,200-2,000 people who have no other place to skate.

A special meeting of the Eastern Ontario Minor Hockey association will be held, Wednesday in Brighton Public School, with all players, coaches and parents invited to try to settle the issue Mr. Horabeck said.

Mr. Munro did not stay to hear CUPE's condemnation of the program.

"I think I had better get out of here," he told an aide after being booed and heckled all the way through his 45-minute prepared speech. "All I did was provoke."

Mr. Little said the CLC, which represents 1.8 million workers through its affiliated unions, has called an emergency meeting to discuss the new measures "and you don't need a clairvoyant to assume that it is certainly not going to endorse this legislation."

Mr. Munro asked CUPE delegates to "seriously contemplate" that it is certainly not going to endorse this legislation.

The CUPE position paper said the government measures are spelled out in detail how it will control profits.

Any serious anti-inflation program should include measures to reduce mortgage rates for housing, a massive home-building program, laws to reduce consumer interest rates and an "end to the corporate tax rip-off so that minimum wages might be raised for the unorganized worker."

CUPE Calls General Strike Against Economic Restraints

TORONTO (CP)—After leaving federal Labor Minister John Munro, some delegates to the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) convention called Tuesday for a general strike by all workers in the country to protest the federal government's new anti-inflation program.

"We have to demonstrate with our feet—not just with our words—by walking out across the country in demonstration," Judy Darcy of Toronto CUPE Local 1230 urged during debate of an emergency resolution condemning the selective wage and price controls.

Jim Newan, a representative of Toronto city employees, said the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) should hold a one-day meeting of the country's labor leaders and "at that meeting they should authorize Canada to walk out."

The CUPE delegates gave Mr. Munro a stormy reception when he defended the anti-inflation program to about 1,000 delegates and asked progressive

Letter Boxes Will Not Be Sealed

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Street letter boxes will not be sealed in Belleville, but mail now inside will not be picked up for the time being, according to city post office officials.

Assistant post master George Burchell said today there will be no city or country mail delivery, and no town to town mail delivery.

In accordance with national post office policy, the lock boxes in the post office will also be unavailable.

Mr. Burchell said the city post office will close the outside doors to the lock box lobby. Government policy calls for such action 48 hours after the start of a strike, now in its second day.

The city's Canadian Union of Postal Workers is continuing to picket the Pinnacle St. post office today.

Apple Sale Starts Saturday

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

This weekend about 700 Belleville and area Beavers, cubs and scouts will be selling apples throughout the city raising funds for next year's program.

A spokesman for the youth organization said about 125 bushels of apples have been purchased for the annual fund drive which will be concentrated during the weekend.

Last year the program netted $1,800.

Two thirds of the funds raised in the apple and tag day go towards the maintenance and operation of Camp Quinte, a scouting park in Vanderwater Conservation area.

The remainder is divided among the participating groups who raise the money.

Stroud's Gift Shop Owner Dead at 71

J. A. BLACKBURN

J.A. (Joe) Blackburn, owner-operator of Stroud's Gift Shop, died Tuesday at the age of 71.

For many years, his father, Albert Blackburn, operated Stroud's for its Montreal owner. In 1952, young Joe Blackburn took over as manager and later purchased the store.

Once a tea merchandising store which offered trading stamps that could be redeemed for fine china, the store's character was altered to cater to the graceful elegance of the world's finest china.

"It's my design. I'd rather sell china and crystal than anything else," he was quoted as saying in a special brochure commemorating the store's 100th anniversary.

China became the centre piece of the downtown store — setting the shop apart from its Quinte area contemporaries.

A resident of 282 Dundas St., he died Oct. 21 in Belleville General Hospital. He was born on Huff's Island and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blackburn.

He had been a lifelong resident of the area and is survived by his wife, the former Elsie Mae Wheeler. He is also survived by his daughter Mrs. H.W. (Eleanor) Johnston, Capt. Joyce Blackburn his granddaughters Kim and Wendy, a brother, Albert Edward and a sister Mrs. H. (Edna) MacBain.

His 14th Wedding Unlucky

BOMBAY (CP)—Dini Jaipoo, a rich landowner and forest contractor of Arunachal Pradesh state in northeast India, had made elaborate plans for his wedding.

More than 500 guests had been invited and he made it known that the wedding feast would be "unforgettable." Twenty top cooks were drafted for the occasion.

But the wedding was cancelled at the last moment. Reason: the bride had changed her mind.

Jaipoo, 36, was to have married a 19-year-old girl. And the young bride would have become his 14th wife.

"This is an insult," Jaipoo said, soon after the wedding was called off. "I'm going to sue the girl's parents for damaging my reputation."

Jaipoo added: "No woman has rejected me in this manner. All the 13 women I have married in the last 27 years considered it an honor to them and their families."

Tribal chiefs are changing even in Arunachal Pradesh, one of India's most backwood areas where until a decade ago men hunted with bows and arrows.

The Arunachal Pradesh Youth League has started a campaign against polygamy, the ancient custom which allows a man to have as many wives as he wishes.

Tasang Hija, a village elder, says, "We have been accustomed to rejected women as you. I know a man who had married 27 times. But there is an awakening among women even in remote areas."

When Indians became free in 1947, there were only four schools and 80 students in Arunachal Pradesh, a lush mountain region adjacent to Communist China. Today, there are more than 600 schools with a total of 40,000 students. Many of them are girls.

Legion Expresses Concern Over Variety Show Method Of Selling Advance Tickets

TRENTON — The local Legion Hall has agreed to sponsor a touring variety show for a $400 charitable donation but did not sanction the promoters to solicit donations for the town's needy children, George Whittle, Legion president, said Tuesday.

"I was very disturbed when I received a telephone call telling me the ticket sellers had requested a donation from the people when they indicated they were not interested in purchasing a ticket for the Nov. 15 show," Mr. Whittle said.

"We had no idea they would do this because we are currently approaching local business and industry for donations to the annual Poppy Fund drive," he said.

Paul Dempsky, director of I.M. Garden Co., of Toronto said in a telephone interview, "we are giving the local people a good variety show, we are creating a money source for local charities and we are in a business to make money."

Mr. Dempsky said his company did not expect to make any money in Trenton because it was not worthwhile only to reduce its daily losses or to break even.

"We have the touring company under contract for a certain amount of shows during a certain period and we try to book them into towns when they have to travel, he said. "We are paying for their overnight accommodations and to perform, whether they do or not, why shouldn't we try to cut our losses," Mr. Dempsky said.

Tickets for the legion variety night at Trenton High School have been advertised at $3.00 for children, $4.00 at the door for adults and $12.00 for a family of six.

If the entire Trenton High School auditorium is filled just with children it will gross $3,450 but Mr Dempsky said he would be lucky if that covered all the expenses for the touring show and local advance ticket work. The auditorium is being rented for $90, he said.

Mr. Dempsky said his firm is in Trenton to sell tickets and not to solicit donations.

An agent for the variety show company came to Trenton, as he does for every place the show visits, two weeks in advance, and hired six local students to canvass the area by telephone.

"There is a prepared form they use and no where does it say they are'to ask for donations," said Mr. Whittle. "They are just supposed to try and sell tickets to families or arrange for local industry to finance needy groups by buying tickets in blocks of tickets," Mr. Whittle said.

"Mr. Dempsky said it was not his company's policy to upset local feelings because the sponsoring agency had to remain in the town after the show left and he stated his group was noted throughout the entertainment field as one of the most respected troupes of this kind. His company also has a tourist division which he said did work for many local service clubs.

Mr. Melchrio, the company's advance agent said he said his workers did not solicit funds but during an interview an elderly gentleman came into the downtown office and said "I talked to a girl on the phone last night and I came here to make my donation."

Mr. Whittle said the company manager, Mr. Dempsky has been asked to come to Trenton on Friday night to explain why the group is dealing with the public the way it has.

Stoplight for Fashion

There's a new Stoplight on Main Street this week but this one is for fashion conscious pedestrians, not motorists.

Owner of the fashion boutique is Evelyn Tripp and manager is Babbs Hards of Picton. Mrs. Hards Tuesday put the finishing touches on some of the clothing displays in the shop.

Picton Downtown Gets Three New Businesses

PICTON — Two new shops have opened at the west end of Main Street here and a third store is under construction.

In August the Fashion Gallery owned by Herman and Betty Zwilling opened to offer a complete line of women's sportswear and dresses for day-time and evening.

Last week The Stoplight, another fashion boutique selling sportswear, handbags, dresses and fashion accessories opened on Main Street near Bowery St. Owner is Evelyn Tripp and manager Babbs Hards.

A Becker's Milk Store to serve Picton customers now is under construction on the corner of Main and Bowery Streets.

Hotel Wants Action On Part of Township

Four Seasons Hotel Ltd. vice-president Fred Eisen offered to give Sidney township council Tuesday $5,000 immediately or improve an access ditch on Marshall Rd. himself to speed construction of a 175-unit town-house development just inside Belleville city limits.

In making the offer Mr. Eisen said a solution to fo-seen drainage problems from the development is all that holds up a start on servicing.

The scheme-also to include 12 single family units-is north of Bridge St. West, at the head of Palmer Rd. It sits just inside the western city limits.

Surface water-estimated at 12 to 15 per cent above current rates-flows westerly into Sidney township and into a road-side ditch along Marshall Rd.

The ditch, said Mr. Eisen, needs improving: "Your decision is holding up the processing of the subdivision," he told councillors.

"I would be prepared to write my own cheque now or have it hand delivered tomorrow," he said.

Otherwise Four Seasons would bring in its own crews to improve, and and install new culverts in the ditch. All work would be under township supervision.

He based his monetary offer on estimated work costs of $8 per lineal foot for the first 400 feet-the section needing most repair-and $4 per lineal foot on the remainder.

"It won't cost the township a cent," said Mr. Eisen, saying that if the drainage problem were solved, his company could begin servicing the subdivision upon draft plan approval by the provincial government.

Sidney council refrained from acting Tuesday preferring to talk to residents along Marshall Rd. before making any decision.

Firefighters Restore Abandoned Bread Truck

Two down - one to go as the 18-man Thurlow Township Point Anne Fire Hall begins work building their third fire truck.

The second, a utility truck equipped with fire fighting and rescue equipment, was presented to Thurlow Township Council Tuesday.

Volunteer firefighters will begin selling tickets this week for a Christmas draw to raise money to pay to change a truck body and chassis purchased from Ontario Hydro into a tank truck equipped with a pump.

"I think the taxpayers should be proud of the fire protection they're getting," councillor George Beer said Tuesday.

"We've got to give the guys a lot of credit. It shows what a little community mindedness does," said Mr. Beer.

The utility truck began as a bread truck abandoned in a field.

"It took a lot of time to re-build the truck," said Chief Vince Maher: "These boys went at it and did it up right."

As well as the newly completed utility truck the hall has a pumper truck and a ladder truck. The men rebuilt the ladder truck which was originally a hydro vehicle.

The men are hoping to raise between $2,000 and $3,000 to help pay for construction of the tanker truck. They are starting with a body and chassis bought from Ontario Hydro.

A new tank truck, with similar equipment the truck will have when completed, said Chief Maher, would cost the township more than $20,000.

MP Takes Strong Exception To Federal Riding Changes

A suggestion to include Bancroft and six surrounding Hastings County townships into a new federal riding was aired in Belleville Tuesday.

It came from William Scott, MP Victoria — Haliburton — whose riding already includes the county's six most northerly townships.

It was part of a proposal outlined to the Electoral Boundaries Commission for Ontario as Mr. Scott moved to secure his riding from abolition under the commission's new proposed voting districts for the province.

The suggested redistribution would include amalgamating Haliburton into a sprawling new territory — Parry Sound — Muskoka — stretching from Georgian Bay close to the Ottawa River and and including Algonquin Park. The remainder of the Scott territory would be incorporated into Victoria Simcoe.

Stan Darling, MP for the present Parry Sound — Muskoka riding, admitted he was "somewhat shocked" when he first saw the map of the proposed big new constituency — a rural landmass he estimated is about 25 per cent of southern Ontario.

But Mr. Scott, backed by municipal spokesmen from Haliburton, warned against the breakup of his riding. He said it appeared the commission had ignored "traditional and historic ties" between various sectors of the constituency which counts Lindsay as its main centre.

Terran, included "a mass" of Crown land, poor roads and communications are negative against joining Haliburton into the sprawling new territory to its north, he said.

"Haliburton has no real link with the area to the north and thus I feel the proposal to join her with Parry Sound — Muskoka is in error," he said.

But the region has "much in common" with the Highlands of Hastings, in forestry, industry and highway systems.

Thus the area can "rightly be seen as largely oriented towards Bancroft" — a similar case that can be made for the 12 northern Hastings townships.

On the other hand some areas of the proposed Victoria-Simcoe riding have little in common with Victoria County, but are oriented elsewhere.

Mr. Scott presented this geographical formula for maintaining Victoria-Haliburton.

Retain the six northern townships of Peterborough and Hastings counties and add Bancroft and its neighboring townships of Faraday, Wollaston, Mayo, Cashel, Limerick and Dungannon.

This he said would remove such communities from another big electoral territory proposed for the region — Prince — Frontenac, reaching from east of Kingston to northwest of Peterborough.

Trustee Power Debated

Angus Yorke, vice-chairman of the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board, has joined the growing ranks of school officials concerned about the eroding power of trustees.

At Tuesday night's meeting Mr. Yorke expressed concern over the influence of Ontario trustees against the mounting of power of the highly-organized teacher federations.

In review of the new Bill 100, legislation designed to guide teacher-board relations, Mr. Yorke said it is apparent that the Ontario Trustees Association Council needs new life. He warned it may mean higher fees.

All Ontario trustees, including English and French boards and bilingual trustees, are loosely connected into a parent group which oversees the interests of trustees in the province.

"Our power is being eroded on a day to day basis," explained Mr. Yorke, who added that the new legislation is "written for teachers and about teachers."

He expressed concern that provincee appointed fact-finders may tend in favor the teacher's position in contract and working negotiations.

Cablevue to Broadcast Santa Claus Parades

Cablevue television will be broadcasting both Trenton and Belleville Santa Claus parades this year, a meeting of the Quinte Santa Claus Parade Committee was told Tuesday.

Lee Jourard, program director for the cable company shown locally on channel four, said a crew of approximately 12 volunteers along with members of professional staff will be working to televise the parades.

Videotaping of the parades is done co-operatively using the resources of the cable company and the media centre located on the campus of Sir James Whitney School.

The Trenton parade Nov. 22 and Belleville's parade Nov. 29, will be aired on television in the evenings of both weekends.

Mr. Jourard said it is also possible both parades will be repeated closer to Christmas.

Purcell Retires

PICTON — Golf pro for 21 years with the Picton Golf and Country Club Fred Purcell, was guest of honor at the annual presentation banquet on the weekend.

Before coming to Prince Edward County, Mr. Purcell worked for several golf and country clubs in England. His career in golf has spanned 52 years.

Members of the Picton Golf and Country Club presented Mr. Purcell with a number of gifts including a Hudson's Bay coat and a ring.

The retiring pro will be replaced by Kenneth Kost, formerly assistant pro with the Kitchener golf club.

UK Seeks Independent Approach on Oil and Raw Material Prices Issue

By JOHN HAY

LONDON (CP) — Canadian officials are really awaiting the outcome of a diplomatic squabble between Britain and her Common Market partners over setting at the planned December international energy conference in Paris.

Originally the European leaders had considered the nine-member Common Market group would sit as one unit in the 27-country meeting which will consider oil and raw material prices and related issues.

But Britain announced it wants a seps ate seat, a move strongly opposed by West Germa n Chancellor Helmut Schmidt. Other Common Market partners are also reported concerned, since this may diminish the negotiating strength of the partne ship.

Critics suggest that if Britain continues to insist on a separate seat fewer places may be available to other countries which may also want to attend.

A Canadian proposal that a group of the 27 attending delegations should include eight industrial oil-consuming countries, eight oil-producing countries and 11 representing the developing nations, was also expected to join the conference, along with one from the Mediterranean. Just after the also reported eager to join.

U.S. officials have stated the final selection will be made by Washington, the Common Market and Japan after consultations with the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD), to which all West e industrial countries belong.

"Although Britain has displeased the Canadian position, there is considerable sympathy among Canadian diplomats for the British position.

Britain, unlike its European partners, enjoys the possibility of becoming self-sufficient in oil by 1980 and expects to export some of its North Sea crude.

While most Eu opean countries would like to see oil prices reduced, both Canada and Britain would prefer that oil prices be sustained, at least at current levels.

A price drop might make the costly development of North Sea reserves unprofitable, wrecking Britain's long-range economic strategy. The same threat hangs over the development of Canada's Arctic and oil-sand reserves.

Since the oil crisis of 1973-74, attempts to bring producers and consumers into negotiations have been riddled with dissension.

In the spring of 1974, the United States formed a group of industrial consumers to match the producers' cartel. The attempt failed, with France especially unwilling to confront the Middle East on which it depends for fuel.

Again last spring, a meeting in Paris of producers and consumers broke down while trying to draft an agenda for the international oil conference. Producers insisted that other commodities be included in the talks. Last May the U.S. bowed to these demands.

Issues of Security

We live in unusual times. True, this thought could be applied to any age, but there perhaps has never been a time of such mobility, with the insecurity that goes with it, an era when the concept of looking after oneself, and those in it, were carried so much significance.

Oh sure there is the welfare state, but there's not much of the personal touch to it, or much of the Good Samaritan ideal in our every day contacts. Rather, it's often a case of "I'm all right Jack."

There is thoughtfulness in that $1,000 union donation to the Quinte Rescue Squad, toward the purchase of the "jaws of life" equipment for quick extrication of people from wrecked vehicles, but the very fact such a facility is required says something about the coldness and insensitivity of our society.

Speeding cars . . . Impairment . . . the implication of self-destruction behind some one-car fatalities. It's all symptomatic of a latter-day malaise.

Similarly, Hastings County board of education's purchase of a $1 million "error and omissions" insurance policy is eloquent of the underlying friction and atmosphere of confrontation that marks so much of our dealings these days.

At the national level, there is the massive and costly security operation being prepared for the Olympics in Montreal next year. Again, it's a situation in which the authorities must be prepared for anything.

It may be nothing so much more than the caution and foresight a man exercises in making a will, save that in these times the same principle is being extended to cover many other situations. Those that have been mentioned are but a few examples.

Air Search Costs

At a time when the average man on the street is a bit apprehensive about Ottawa's plans for wage and price restraints, the last thing in the world he wants to hear about is federal government waste.

One can understand a taxpayer's grief over tales like the one that emerged from a recent interview with an Air Transport Command spokesman from CFB Trenton.

It turns out that more than $1.3 million was expended by the command's Search and Rescue wing between April and June in chasing down false alarms from downed private aircraft.

It seems owners of private aircraft are not adept at operating emergency locator devices which have been mandatory since January. One unit was found transmitting from a motel room, another being toyed with in a canoe.

In fact, a Department of National Defence survey shows only about one per cent of the distress calls responded to by Search and Rescue personnel are legitimate.

When you get that 10 per cent raise the government think limited you to, try not to think of the 50,000 private pilots in Canada flitting around the skies costing taxpayers millions of dollars to keep tabs on their whereabouts.

Maxwell Henderson, where are you?

Kissinger Indiscreet

Some things that are said in private deserve to be made public, if only because they have to do with public persons and are of contemporary and historic significance.

Such is the case in relation to what was said by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in Ottawa last week apropos former President Nixon. Kissinger was heard to say to a dinner companion that Nixon was "odd, artificial, and unpleasant," but suggested this was due to nervousness over personal problems. Kissinger said Nixon would get to the heart of a problem and he was "decisive in his own way."

Nixon is indeed a complex personality, but it should be remembered that for all his inner image, he frequently demonstrated a very practical interest in others, especially a variety of people in trouble of one kind or another.

Meanwhile, there has been wringing of hands in Ottawa over the fact newsmen picked up and recorded the Kissinger conversation, and apologies have been expressed by External Affairs Minister Alan MacEachen.

Certainly, there is a question of morality here. Yet it is inconceivable that observations of this nature, once the media is privy to them, should be kept secret. After all, isn't that what the Watergate Investigation was all about?

Anti-inflation Program's Leisurely Unfolding

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

With each day bringing us a few more details, the government's anti-inflation program seems to be unfolding in the long, leisurely way of a Victorian novel.

First there was the initial announcement of "severe restraints" on Thanksgiving Day prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau. His approach was both tentative and sensational—the look of Id Amin at his first skating lesson, perhaps.

The restraint plan became a little less tentative the next day when Finance Minister Donald Macdonald revealed that it would remain in force for three years. (That, of course, would indicate an abolition of controls just before the next federal election).

And it became a little more menacing a few days later with the tabling of the Anti-Inflation Act, setting out prison terms of up to five years and unlimited fines for anyone violating the controls on prices and incomes.

But the story has barely begun. Mr. Trudeau and his cabinet colleagues must surely have several more chapters to unfold before their anti-inflation story is complete.

Still to come, for example, is a clear exposition of the government's plans for dealing with "exceptional" cases.

Each case, to the party concerned, is exceptional—whether because of genuine hardship for some people or the sheer muscle-power of others.

Another question still to be clarified has to do with indirect income or "fringe benefits." Some groups have been making their biggest demands in this area. This looks like a loophole that would allow the powerful to wrest big inflationary gains over and above the maximum increases permitted under the controls.

Nor has the government spelled out its plans for bringing professional incomes under its restraint program. The incomes of lawyers, especially, may be difficult to control, since legal fees are much more flexible than those of, says, doctors or dentists.

There are countless other questions about the program that must still be resolved, even though the plan is supposed to have been in preparation for many months.

In the end, the success of the anti-inflation program will be measured by how well it eliminates the public's psychological expectation of more and more money every year, regardless of what it expended to earn it.

It's important, therefore, that the government clear up the many anomalies in the program, and thus allow the public to focus its attention on the real goal of containing inflation—as well as the consequences of failing to contain it.

From the time the Trudeau government abandoned its only previous anti-inflation campaign in 1970, hourly compensation of Canadian labor rose an average of 42 per cent (to the end of 1974) or 2.5 times as fast as the 17 per cent increase in output per man-hour.

In the United States, by comparison, compensation rose 22 per cent and output 20 per cent. Controls over U.S. incomes and prices were in effect from 1971 to 1973.

The U.S. anti-inflation approach might not work in Canada. But if the Trudeau approach is to work here, it is essential that Canadians perceive the program as fair, regardless of united wholeheartedly behind a comprehensive, credible plan.

Education Parents And The Teachers

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I would like to shed some light on our new Parent-Teacher group at Queen Victoria School called "C.H.I.L.D." and to clear up a few misconceptions people may have about our relationship with the Home and School Association.

We formed the group because in the past few years interest in Home and School has been steadily declining in spite of the strenuous effort made by devoted executives. Sure you still get some people buying the membership cards every year, but when you try to get their ideas, you run into a closed door. The most important things Home and School represents to many people are skate sales and fun fairs. Everyone wants these things to happen, but they can't when only three or four people are willing to work.

Last year, when in the name of Home and School, we suggested professional people come to the school to discuss with the parents, topics such as drug abuse we got absolutely NO RESPONSE either for or against such an idea.

Therefore, I asked a diversified group of people this summer just what Home and School meant to them. The consensus was that they felt Home and School was an old-fashioned social group that spent too much time and money trying to accomplish a few things.

Home and Schools' goals are admirable but the apathetic attitude of the general school parent population is appalling, lonely and difficult work.

In the United States, by comparison, compensation rose 22 per cent and output 20 per cent. Controls over U.S. incomes and prices were in effect from 1971 to 1973.

The U.S. anti-inflation approach might not work in Canada. But if the Trudeau approach is to work here, it is essential that Canadians perceive the program as fair, regardless of united wholeheartedly behind a comprehensive, credible plan.

I discussed the possibilities of forming such a group at our Home and School executive meeting early this school year, because last year a handful of us banged our heads against the wall trying to get things done with no volunteer help at all, my idea was approved.

I apologize to Home and School Council, if in my enthusiasm I have stepped on a few toes and hurt some feelings. This is inevitable whenever someone tries to bring about change.

Although I am striving for different things than Home and School has in the past, many of our goals are the same. The important difference is that I refuse to wait 20 or 30 years for things to be reached.

Tommy Douglas Has a Party and Recalls a Harold Wilson Remark

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

Ottawa — They threw a great "Hello Tommy" party the other night in Parliament's Centre Block Railway Committee Room for Thomas Clement Douglas, BA, MA, LL.D.

For T.C.D., 17 years Premier of Saskatchewan, 20 other years a federal CCF and NDP Member of Parliament, through 10 of which he was his party's leader, the huge room was packed to overflowing out of the doors and into the corridors.

They were all there. Prime Minister Trudeau, John Diefenbaker, Robert Stanfield, Stanley Knowles, everybody's friendly neighbourhood MP and senator, and the Commons staff from Clerk Alistair Fraser to the state door clerk-doorsmen who tidy up Tommy's overstuffed office.

They were celebrating Tommy's fortieth anniversary of his election to the Commons, back in the Fall of 1935 as CCF MP for Weyburn.

It happens so seldom that it feels strange to become personal in producing a political column out of Ottawa over an extended number of years.

It happens now because with Tommy Douglas it's a special, personal sort of a situation.

Of the 100 or more people in the Railway Committee Room for his big bash the other night, I was one of three who, 31 years ago attended another party for him.

It was a farewell party back in May of 1944, when Tommy, an MP by then for eight years, resigned to return to Saskatchewan, contest a seat in the Legislature, and become premier of his province.

Dief and Stanley Knowles were the other two who were there.

And now to return to a theme that still amuses.

As resident Canadian correspondent for The London Daily Express, a post and pleasure still treasured, I had taken an overseas call from Fleet Street one night when Harold MacMillan was Prime Minister of Britain and Harold Wilson, leader of the Labor opposition, was visiting Ottawa.

He had been calling on Tommy Douglas and Stanley Knowles among others on Parliament Hill.

The Express Foreign Editor was on the telephone from London with orders to get Harold Wilson's reaction to the great sex-and-espionage scandal, involving John Profumo, Defence Minister John Profumo and Piccadilly playgirl Christine Keeler, which had just broken.

Wilson was on his way to Ottawa International Airport, and I caught him as he hurried across the rotunda to catch his flight.

Stan Knowles and Tommy Douglas were with him, shaking his hand and bidding him happy landings when your Express correspondent slid to a stop in front of him with the question about the Profumo-Keeler caper.

He thought for a moment, then, carefully choosing his words and speaking slowly, let it be known he had "nothing to say about that sordid, sex-on stereophonic sound and gorgeous technicolor."

It seemed an odd remark, but opened a door to London from the airport, it satisfied The Express in that it appeared as a single sentence in a three-column story of the scandal.

Time brought Harold Wilson to power, and one night in the British Commons, for reasons still unknown, he was asked about the remark he had made in Ottawa months before, and he denied having said it.

The Express was upset. Cables and overseas calls flooded in with demands for "proof" Wilson had said it.

How is "proof" the Foreign Editor? No good. What else then? It's up to you, just give us proof. Would a call from Canada's very own socialist party leader do it? It would.

But would Tommy Douglas make the call? The situation was outlined to him, and in fairness it was pointed out that if he confirmed the Wilson quote it might hurt his friend the British Labor leader.

Get your London editor on the phone, said Tommy, and I'll tell him I was there and heard Mr. Wilson say it.

Tommy didn't have to make that call. He could have said he didn't remember, or couldn't be sure.

The call was made. The Express vindicated. Neither The Express nor Wilson ever explained.

But he had to do, as Tommy put it, "the right thing."

Communication Link

Shawn Boissoneau, 8, splashed in pool at Sir James Whitney School with Jim McDermott of Big Brothers. They are both deaf and have few problems communicating with each other. Leith DeTracey, executive director of Belleville and District Big Brothers, said it wasn't easy finding a match for Shawn, until she realized the best companion for a deaf boy would be a deaf man.

At first, she said, Shawn didn't realize Mr. McDermott also was deaf. Shawn wouldn't quite understand the concept of Big Brother, Mr. McDermott is his friend".

As well as being president this year of the Quinte Club for the Deaf, Mr. McDermott works with deaf and retarded youth at Prince Edward Heights School and teaches sign language and finger spelling at night school.

There are 13 big and little brother matches in Belleville. They meet regularly to share common interests such as bowling, camping and model building.

Occasionally they meet for special events such as swimming at Sir James Whitney School.

Mrs. DeTracey said there are 18 Belleville boys waiting for big brothers. After an interview, she said, men and boys are matched according to background, interests, personality and the needs of the boy.

Common Handicap Brings Better Understanding

Jim McDermott knows what it is like to grow up with a handicap. That's why he became a Big Brother.

Mr. McDermott and his little brother, Shawn Boissoneau, 8, are both deaf. Shawn, a day student at Sir James Whitney School is also moderately handicapped by cerebral palsy.

Leith DeTracey, executive director of Belleville and District Big Brothers, said it wasn't easy finding a match

Some Chemicals Deadly Expert Tells Firefighters

An accidental spill of acetic acid, of which vinegar is composed, can be as deadly as that of the most well-known dangerous chemical, says Jim Head of Canadian Industries Ltd. at Toronto.

Mr. Head outlined some safeguards which can be used during chemical spill accidents either by truck or rail to a combined meeting of the Thurlow Township Volunteer Fire Department, Corbyville division and the Quinte Rescue Squad this week.

He explained acetic acid is about 99.5 per cent pure while vinegar is about three per cent acetic acid. The former "can be as wild as nitric acid," he commented.

Mr. Head advised that dilution of acetic acid at such a spill will eliminate any problems. Such dilution will produce, in effect, vinegar.

Regarding chlorine leaks, he said water should not be used because the combination will produce a corrosive agent which will only cause a larger leak. He said the combination is hydrochlorous acid "which will chew the hell out of steel.

As for a hydrofluoric acid spill, Mr. Head remarked, "you can't get water on it fast enough to stop it. It creates the worst burn I've ever seen."

"The trouble is, you don't know you're getting burnt right away," he stated. "It works that fast."

However, a commercial liquid bleach will stop any danger during a sodium cyanide spill, Mr. Head explained. "It does a very good job of neutralizing cyanide."

Rescue Work Faster With Jaws Says Official

CORBYVILLE — If the Quinte Rescue Squad had the "jaws of life" as part of its equipment, the driver of a car who died following an accident near Deseronto Oct. 7 would have been extricated in mere minutes rather than in 20 minutes, says squad member Bob Pearce.

The accident involved 19-year-old John Benjamin Crane of Deseronto who died two hours after his rescue at Lennox and Addington County Hospital from injuries suffered in the one-car mishap.

Ontario Provincial Police at Napanee said Brant's car was eastbound on Highway 2 about two miles east of Deseronto at 8 a.m. at a high rate of speed when it went out of control and wrapped itself around a tree on the driver's side.

Mr. Pearce related that the driver's side "was completely caved in" and the squad had to use a wrench to unbolt the door — a process that took 10 minutes.

He noted that the jaws have attachable shears which would have cut the hinges in about two minutes.

Rescuers then found the driver's feet were jammed under the dash and had to use a jack and other tools to raise it, he said.

The second process lasted 10 minutes more but the jaws,which can open under load in 40 seconds, would have completely bent both the dash and steering column well away from the front seat in about a minute.

Mr. Pearce emphasized even with the jaws, the driver in this particular incident might not have survived due to the extent of injuries. But the savings in time have proved to be a life-saving measure in other accidents where jaws have been used, he added.

He said the jaws, on the market for two years, are in extensive use in the U.S.

Mr. Pearce said the squad has raised about $3,500 in donations towards the $6,500 purchase price of the jaws.

Miller Flexible on New Area Health Councils

Frank S. Miller, provincial minister of health, has released a summary of public reaction and ministry response to the 1974 report of the Health Planning Task Force chaired by Dr. Fraser Mustard.

In addition to ministry staff comments on the Mustard report, 411 responses were reviewed from professionals, organizations, institutions, municipalities, universities, public and voluntary agencies, from other individuals associated with health care delivery as well as from community and church groups and members of the public.

Entitled Report, Reaction, Response — The Health Care System in Ontario, the report groups the 12 recommendations of the Mustard Report into six broad areas: development of primary care sector; rationalization of secondary care; local involvement in health service planning; redefinition of responsibility within the ministry; greater involvement in manpower planning and control and improvement in the delivered quality of medical care.

Broad consensus emerged on the first three areas, primary care, secondary care and continuing involvement and coincides with the ministry's analysis of what is required to improve Ontario's health system.

Mr. Miller says, "although the ministry will be acting on widely supported recommendations, we are prepared to be flexible and not impose rigid solutions. Development of district health councils will continue to be encouraged where communities are ready and anxious to go ahead.

Cause of $40,000 Blaze Still Remains a Mystery

Capt. George Woodhouse of Belleville Fire Department, a 19-year firefighting veteran, was transferred Tuesday from the intensive care unit at Belleville General Hospital to Toronto General Hospital for coronary care.

Capt. Woodhouse has been in serious condition since he suffered a heart attack last Friday during an apartment block fire at 90-92 Victoria Ave.

Fire Chief Leo Culhane said cause of the blaze which extensively damaged the 100-year-old brick structure will probably remain unknown.

He said Insp. Paul Stephenson examined the structure Monday but could not find a clue.

"It's a mystery," he commented, adding that the investigation is officially closed.

The two-alarm blaze caused between $35,000 - $40,000 damage. The building, which includes 11 bachelor units, is insured for $80,000 which includes refrigerators and stoves in each unit.

However, only one tenant is reported to have content insurance.

Capt. Robert Sloss of the Salvation Army said all tenants have been accommodated in the areas of lodging and clothing. "Everybody seems to be set at this point," he said.

He said the corps provided some clothing for these tenants who sustained complete losses and provided overnight accommodation for some during the first day until other, more permanent, accommodation could be secured.

Council Remains Firm On Store Sign Decision

Lights do not always make for bright shoppers.

Take the case of Mr. Submarine.

City council this week again refused the new take-out sandwich food centre on East Dundas St. to use a flashing sign to advertise business contrary to city regulations.

The application was originally denied Sept. 8.

Then Monday, a request from Orillia solicitors Clarke, Zwieker and Sparks to reconsider the refusal won no support. Ald. Brian Knudsen said council should abide by its by-law stipulations.

The original application for the sign did not indicate flashing lights, reported city manager Wilbur Purcell. But, after reading the city's bylaw, the installer-Anais-Way Signs, of Orillia-inquired about special permission for animated signs.

However, "unfortunately the inquiry did not get answered" and the applicant went ahead with the installation-including the flasher.

Then the city's building inspector requested Mr. Submarine's owner not to operate the sign's flashing lights, but apply to city council for permission.

The law firm wrote council its client, since he received no reply to his query, from city hall, went ahead on the basis.

The law firm wrote council its client had been originally told by a city hall employee if it was not proper to erect the flashing sign after obtaining the permit, he would be contacted.

Since he wasn't he went ahead on the basis he would be permitted to do so-with no intention to "deliberately disregard the bylaw."

The sign also fits into "the general area where it's located," said the law firm.

Suspect Remanded

A 17-year-old Belleville youth was remanded to Oct. 27 in provincial court here this week for sentencing after he pleaded guilty to 10 charges of break, enter and theft.

The charges against James Bateman of 186 Station St. had been laid in connection with a break-in at Woodland Chrysler Plymouth Ltd. at 298 North Front St., Aug. 17.

Dennis Davis, 17, also of 186 Station St. was charged in connection with the same incident, will also appear in court Oct. 27 for sentencing.

He was remanded Oct. 9 for preparation of a pre-sentence report following his conviction on eight charges of break, enter and theft.

Windows Smashed

About $200 worth of damage resulted during the weekend when rock-throwing vandals smashed two windows at Alumasaiding Products Ltd. at 175 West College St. in Belleville.

City Police Deputy Chief Harold Reid said this week entry to the building was not attempted.

Firms Awarded Contracts

From the Ottawa Bureau of the Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Two Belleville and area firms have been awarded almost $60,000 in federal supply contracts, the department of supply and services has announced.

The largest of the two contracts valued at $47,860, was given to Travelways by Rathburn Bus Service of Trenton which will provide school bus transportation service at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

Another defence contract, worth $10,000, was given to Dan Jones Ltd. Canadian Tire store in Belleville, which will supply the armed forces with hardware supplies.

Two Cars Looted

Two automobile break-ins in Belleville during the weekend netted thieves little in goods.

City Police Deputy Chief Harold Reid said this week 20 eight-track tapes and an electric shaver valued at $75 were taken from a car owned by John Bleys of 228 Victoria Ave. parked in his driveway.

He said entry was gained through an insecure window sometime between 6 p.m. Saturday and 1:40 p.m. Sunday.

John Norton of 47 Chatham St. discovered an eight-track tape player had been taken from his car parked on the east side lot of the Dairy Queen at 74 East Dundas St.

Mr. Norton had left his car parked for only 15 minutes. Value of the tape player is $75.

Radiation On Doorstep

Ted and Sylvia Galloway examine slag outside their Deloro village home after federal government studies show the material is giving off radiation. The slag was used to level ground around their house — purchased from Deloro Smelting and Refining after it ceased operations in 1961.

Warm Reception

Rosa Rio, talented pipe organist from Connecticut chats with fans who came to talk with her during a reception after her concert in Picton this weekend. The two-hour event was attended by 1,250 fans, many coming from the United States, Toronto and Kingston.

WHOLE WHEAT VS. ENRICHED WHITE BREAD

Is whole wheat bread really better nutritionally than white? Yes, even better than enriched white bread - provided it's made with all whole wheat flour.

With regard to some nutrients - e.g., protein, iron, niacin - even 60 percent whole wheat bread rates higher than enriched, though a slice of enriched white bread has more calcium, thiamin and riboflavin than an equal weight of 60 percent whole wheat bread.

Whole grains also contain "trace elements" and roughage lacking in enriched products. But if your family doesn't accept dark breads, remember that enriched white bread and flour are good alternatives.

New Bank Says No Gimmicks

TORONTO (CP) — [Pegas for Canada's 12th chartered bank, the proposed Continental Bank of Canada, do not include gimmicks to attract investors, says Joseph Stephen Land, president of IAC Ltd.

"We don't propose to pay premium rates on deposits just to attain them," he said in an interview.

"Nor do we intend to follow the pattern of some savings banks in the United States and offer gift premiums, lotteries or so on. Hawaii to new depositors.

"While the new bank would offer a full range of services the emphasis would be on demand and term loans to small and medium-size businesses.

"Establishing a reputation and name is a slow process," Mr. Land said, "but the only way to gain acceptance."

IAC, Canada's largest sales finance company, announced plans last month to convert the firm into a chartered bank with initial capital of $100 million, half of which will be subscribed by IAC.

A private member's bill to create the bank has been drafted and is expected to be placed before Parliament for approval this year.

If Parliament approves, the bank would begin life as an IAC subsidiary, but amalgamation would take place later, and IAC shareholders would become shareholders of the bank.

Under the bill, there would be a 10-year transition period during which IAC and its subsidiaries would not be permitted to make loans that could be made by the new bank.

Based on IAC's $200 million in equity, the bank would be the sixth largest in Canada, and the eighth largest in terms of assets.

"Our main strength is that the bank will be a going concern from the day it gets its licence," said Mr. Land, 60, a native of Chatham, Ont., who grew up in the Toronto area.

"After all, IAC has been around for 50 years and we do know the business of lending money. Because of the similarity of operation, our people already have banking experience, so we won't be starting from square one."

Miss Sager had received the annual Hilda Collier nursing bursary, presented by Mrs. Lockyer, at the Moira Secondary School graduation exercises Saturday, and as a special guest last evening had an opportunity to meet the club members.

B&P Women Learn About Law

The monthly meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club was held Monday at the Sun Valley Motel. The guest speaker for the evening was Rodney Follwell of Follwell and Follwell Legal Firm. His topic was "Women and the Law" and he discussed such legalities as dower rights, deeds, wills, taxes, retirement savings plans, and homeowners savings plans.

Among the business discussed was the project for International Womens Year. Tony Burns of the Success Motivation Institute is going to be the speaker at the November meeting and prospective members will be invited to hear him.

Colombe Roth, president, gave a report on the Regional meeting which she attended in Kingston. One of the speakers there was Donna Whalen, who represented Belleville for the Young Career Womens competition. Ms. Whalen now goes on to Hamilton next May to compete provincially.

A special guest at the meeting was the winner of the B and P scholarship, Darlene Sager. She was the recipient of the Hilda Collier Nursing Bursary of $150.00 which was presented to her by Charlotte Lockyer at the recent graduation ceremony at Moira Secondary School. Ms. Sager is now studying nursing at Loyalist College. She also received the IODE scholarship.

The elected Chairwoman for Business Women's Week in November was Barbara Maracle.

Leftovers: A Variety of Extra Recipes

Everybody has leftovers, even newspapers. During the last few months we have published Wednesday food features on salads, vegetables, special desserts and Oktoberfest, to name a few. And each of these dishes, a few recipes have been sort of leftover and never used.

To bring you what you've missed — and use up all our leftovers — we're presenting this pot pourri of recipes today.

Vegetable Medley
two cups corn flakes OR
¼ cup packaged corn flake crumbs
¼ cup regular margarine or butter
¼ cup grated parmesan cheese one cup cooked cut green beans one cup cooked cut cauliflower one cup sliced, cooked carrots two tsp. instant minced onion
OR one small onion, chopped one 8-ounce package (1 cup) grated cheddar cheese one 10-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
one cup sliced, cooked potatoes

If using corn flakes, crush into fine crumbs. Melt margarine in small saucepan. Remove from heat. Add corn flake crumbs and parmesan cheese; mix well. Set aside for topping.

Place green beans, cauliflower, carrots, onion, Cheddar cheese and cream of mushroom soup in greased 1½ quart baking dish; stir until combined. Arrange potatoes in a layer over vegetable mixture. Sprinkle corn flake crumbs topping evenly over potatoes. Bake in a 350 degree oven about 30 minutes or until thoroughly heated. Makes 8 servings, ¾ cup each.

Chocolate Mousse
8 oz. chocolate chips six eggs, separated
two tsp. vanilla

Melt chocolate chips in the top of a double boiler over hot, not boiling water. Remove from heat, beat in egg yolks and flavoring. Fold in egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Spoon into eight to 10 fancy glass dishes. Cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate overnight. Top with whipped cream and chocolate.

Apple Slices
Crust
2½ cups flour
one tbsp sugar
½ tsp salt
one cup butter and-or lard
two-thirds cup milk
one egg, separated

Filling:
one quart sliced apples
one cup sugar
one tsp cinnamon
two tbsp. butter

Cut flour, sugar, salt and butter together as for pie crust. Beat milk and egg yolk together and add to crumbs. Roll out half dough to fit a greased cookie sheet.

Prepare filling by mixing all ingredients except the butter. Spread over bottom crust and dot with butter. Roll out top crust and place on filling. Prick with fork. Brush with egg white and sprinkle with sugar.

Bake at 400 degrees for 30 minutes.

John Turner's Gingebuyer Pie
one package chocolate wafers
one third cup melted butter
20 marshmallows
¾ cup milk
½ pint heavy cream
½ tsp. vanilla creme de cacao
½ tbsp. green creme de menthe
green food coloring

Crush the wafers and mix with melted butter. Press all but ¼ cup of this mixture into a nine-inch pie plate. Chill. Melt marshmallows and milk over hot water and cool thoroughly. Whip the cream, add creme de menthe and creme de cacao.

Add food coloring if desired. Fold in cooled marshmallows mixture. Pour into pie shell. Sprinkle with remaining crumb mix and chill several hours.

Cheese Cake
Crust:
two cups graham crumbs
¼ lb. butter
two tbsp. sugar
Filling:
18 oz. cream cheese, softened
¾ cup sugar
three well beaten eggs
one tsp. vanilla

Combine crust ingredients and pat into spring form pan. Mix filling ingredients and pour into shell. Bake until firm for 325 degree oven. Top with canned or homemade cherry pie filling.

Navy Bean and Egg Salad
1½ cups cooked seasoned navy beans
¼ cup sliced radishes
¼ cup sliced stuffed olives three hour hard-cooked eggs one tbsp grated onion
¼ cup diced celery
two tbsp diced green pepper
French dressing to moisten one cup shredded lettuce or other greens
salt and pepper to taste

Combine navy beans, sliced radishes, olives, 3 coarsely chopped or sliced eggs, onion, celery and green pepper. Add well-seasoned French dressing gradually, tossing salad lightly with two forks to avoid mashing ingredients. Adjust seasonings. Refrigerate until serving time. Before serving toss with the shredded lettuce. Garnish with extra olives and strips of green pepper; and remaining egg, sliced or chopped. Serve with additional salad dressing or mayonnaise if desired. Serves four.

Ham Salad Mold
two tbsp. unflavored gelatin
two cups ham, cubed ½ cup cold water
three cups broth, heated salt
½ cup Canadian red table wine one cup fresh green peas, cooked
Mayonnaise
Mint leaves

Soak gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in hot broth. Add salt to taste. Cool, and add wine. Place in refrigerator and chill until mixture thickens slightly. Pour ¼ cup of this gelatin mixture into bottom of a ring mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until it begins to congeal. Then arrange a layer of ham cubes and green peas on the gelatin layer. Add remaining ham and peas, remaining gelatin mixture. Pour over first layer. Chill until firm. Unmold, and serve with mayonnaise and a garnish of mint leaves if desired.

Wine French Dressing
one tbsp sugar
one tbsp salt
½ tsp dry mustard
one tsp. Worcestershire sauce four tbsp catsup four tbsp. Canadian Red Table Wine four tbsp wine vinegar
¾ cup salad oil
one clove garlic, crushed

Combine all ingredients in order given in a pint or quart jar and shake until thoroughly mixed. This dressing may be kept indefinitely in your refrigerator, but you may wish to remove garlic after a day or two. Always shake well before using.

Pot Roast With Sauerkraut
Two tsp poultry seasoning
¼ tsp celery salt
¼ tsp paprika
¼ tsp pepper
one bay leaf, crumbled three tbsp cooking oil four lb pot roast of beef
one large onion, sliced
½ cup water
one can (28-oz) sauerkraut
½ tsp caraway seeds
1¼ cups diced apples
boiled potatoes

Combine poultry seasoning, celery salt, paprika, pepper, bay leaf and one tablespoon of the oil. Rub all over roast. Heat remaining two tablespoons of oil in a large heavy saucepan or Dutch oven. Add roast and brown well on all sides. Discard fat if desired. Add onion and water. Cover tightly and simmer three hours, turning once on way through cooking.

Drain sauerkraut shortly before meat is ready, (saving half of the liquid). Add sauerkraut, the half cup liquid, and caraway seeds to roast. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes. Add apples. Cook for 10 minutes. Makes six to eight servings.

Serve roast sliced thin, with sauce, sauerkraut and boiled potatoes.

Apfelkuchen short dough recipe below) three green apples, peeled and sliced two tbsp. raisins
two tbsp. slivered almonds
one tbsp. sugar
one tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg
four egg whites
one cup powdered sugar

Short dough recipe:
two cups flour, sifted three-quarters cup butter, cold
two egg yolks, cold
¼ cup sugar
grated rind of ½ lemon

Quickly, with hands kept cold by running water, work everything together into a smooth dough ball. Roll out two-thirds of the dough ¼-inch thick, and press gently into a 10-inch spring-form pan. Roll remaining dough into a snake about ½-inch thick, and press gently around pan to form sides.

Bake short dough in preheated 375-degree oven for 10 minutes. Arrange half the sliced apples on top. Sprinkle with half the raisins, almonds, sugar and spices. Repeat this process, and put back in oven for half an hour.

Beat the egg whites with half the powdered sugar to a stiff meringue. Lightly stir in the rest of the sugar. Put the meringue in a pastry or icing bag and fashion over the apples. Put the Apfelkuchen back in oven, until the meringue is lightly browned.

Olympic Fashion

Four Montreal designers — Leo Chevalier, Marielle Fleury, Michel Robichaud and John Warden — have worked contemporary chic into comfortable, casual clothes for almost 20,000 people doing 29 different jobs during the Montreal Olympic Games. The official uniform (left) is a single-breasted, two buttoned classic jacket with three patch pockets and a single vent. It will be worn with skirts or trousers with ties or scarves in the official rainbow of colors. Hosts and hostesses will wear unstructured soft jackets (right and centre) with trousers or skirts. Men's jackets are of a shirt cut with open collars and the women's jackets are semi-cardigan style with round necklines.

Laborers

Laborers and maintenance people will wear coveralls in brilliant rainbow colors of polyester and cotton blend at the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal. Olympic messengers (centre and right) will wear a basic uniform of trousers or lightweight skirts, T-shirts and running shoes. Classic patch pockets and soft, pull-on sun hats emphasize the youthful spirit of this uniform category.

Red-haired Herbalist Follows Family Tradition

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — There's nothing like sticking to family tradition, and Dorothy Banks is a woman who would make her ancestors jump for joy.

The Peterborough resident said that as far back as 1600 any redheads in the family were herbalists and good with their hands. Well, Mrs. Banks is a redhead and she has done everything from making rose hip tea to silversmithing.

"I do everything but arithmetic," she noted.

And indeed she does.

Her oil and fabrage (her own creation) paintings hang on the walls of her home. Her dried flowers decorate the tables. Her numerous live flowers thrive on windowsills. Her small copper dishes sit on the coffee table. Her embroidery stand, complete with partially completed tapestry, takes up a corner of the living room. A suitcase in her basement bulges with aprons, table clothes, pillows and numerous other illustrations of her embroidery skills.

And this is to say nothing about her crocheting stuffed toy making, knitting, macramaing and pen and ink drawings.

And on top of all this, she's a member of the Peterborough branch of Soroptomist International, is guest speaker for other clubs and demonstrates her work occasionally at Lang Century Village, about 12 miles from Peterborough.

Some of her interests bring her financial rewards—at one point in England she used to repair embroidery—but the herbal end of it, in particular, is purely for fun.

Both her grandmother and great-grandmother were village herbalists in their time. Mrs. Banks said in those days often a doctor might be a day's horseback ride away, so the residents would come to the herbalist for remedies.

During the Second World War, Mrs. Banks said, often she gave out home remedies for both neighbors and pets when doctors were not available.

She has an old book of recipes which belonged to her grandmother and offers some directions once vital to making a pioneer's life run smoothly.

For instance, back a few decades when the woman of the house often worked hard in the field alongside her man, she couldn't tred down to the corner drugstore for creams to help her complexion—so she would make her own.

Mrs. Banks offered one such recipe which can be easily made from household items. It requires the yolk of an egg, 2 tsp. olive oil, ¼ tsp. vinegar and ¼ tsp. honey.

She termed it one of her "by gosh and by golly recipes"—the ingredients are not exact but depend on the size of the egg and even on the humidity. She recommends adding the ingredients until the mixture becomes a white cream and if additions won't blend properly, it's saturated.

The recipe can be transformed into a hair conditioner by adding the juice from stewed nettles a drop at a time until it won't take any more. Apply to the hair after shampooing, leave on for a few minutes, and rinse out.

Better Bed-wetting Answer: Seek Help from a Doctor

Dear Ann: I've read your column for many years and I enjoy it. However, as a nurse, I must say I was surprised to see your response to chronic bed-wetters.

I agree that a chronic bed-wetter should take every precaution against damage (and embarrassment) but that 22-year-old who thinks he's found a solution to his problem by wearing a diaper and rubber pants is mistaken. Wearing a diaper and-or rubber pants solves the problem of embarrassment and damage, but it does nothing to solve the problem of bedwetting.

He needs to see a Doctor. There's a reason (by physical or psychological) for bedwetting and he ss find out what it is and inconsideration, humiliation (and diapers) won't be necessary. I'm counting on you! — Mrs. K.

Dear Mrs. K.: Of course you're right. Bedwetting by anyone over three years of age is a symptom of another problem—either organic or emotional. My experts tell me at least 90 per cent emotional. Therapy is needed for adults who have the problem. Counseling is definitely in order for both the mother and the child who swims ashore every night.

Thank you for hauling me and insisting on a better answer.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a teen-age girl who has seen many beauty pagaents. Miss America, Miss Universe, etc., always for women. Now I would like to see some of those contests for men.

The world is changing and it's time people realized that females enjoy looking at handsome males just as much as the other way around. I guess in the olden days it wasn't considered decent or respectable for a woman to admire a beautiful male body, but all that is different now. How about letting the world know the game has changed? We'd love you for it. Mother—Future Na Sheck

Dear Future: "The world" doesn't need to hear it from me. First there was Burt in that nude centerfold. And recently, at a bridal shower in Carmel, Calif., the girl's sorority sisters surprised her at the festivities by having a nude fella jump out of a cake!

P.S. I'm not your mother.

3 Cities Enjoy Reduced Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — Residents of three cities enjoyed a slight decline in the cost of living during September while prices in Toronto were generally unchanged from August, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

The consumer price index dropped three-tenths of one per cent in Saint John, N.B., and one-tenth of one per cent in Halifax and Thunder Bay, Ont.

Prices in 10 other cities surveyed increased.

The highest jump was in Regina, where the price index was up 1.3 per cent from August.

The highest jump from the previous year was reported in St. John's, Nfld., where prices were up 12.4 per cent from September, 1974. The lowest 12-month increase was 9.5 per cent in Halifax.

The agency's 14-city survey measures price changes within the cities, but does not show where prices are the highest or lowest.

On a national basis, the September index was up two-tenths of one per cent from August with a 12-month rise of 10.6 per cent. The national figures, released two weeks ago, attributed the moderation in the September rise to lower prices for food, particularly vegetables, and a slower rate of increase in other prices.

Food prices were down in all cities surveyed, and were the main factors in reducing the cost of living in the three cities and holding the line in Toronto.

The increases in other cities were due largely to higher prices for accommodation and, in some cities, higher prices for gasoline, fuel oil, electricity and natural gas.

The September increase in St. John's was two-tenths of one per cent.

The 12-month increase was 10.2 per cent in Toronto, 12 per cent in Saint John, 9.5 per cent in Thunder Bay, and 11.5 per cent in Regina.

The September rise in other cities: Saskatoon, one per cent; Vancouver, nine-tenths of one per cent; Ottawa, one-half of one per cent; Calgary, four-tenths of one per cent; Winnipeg, three-tenths of one per cent; Edmonton, two-tenths of one per cent; and both Quebec City and Montreal, one-tenth of one per cent.

The 12-month rise in other cities: Winnipeg, 12.2 per cent; Calgary, 12.1 per cent; Saskatoon, 11.8 per cent; Edmonton and Montreal, 11.3 per cent; Vancouver 10.9 per cent; Quebec City, 10.7 per cent; Ottawa, 9.7 per cent.

Offer Turned Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau turned down the offer of a ride in the Concorde supersonic jetliner from Ottawa to the recent opening of Mirabel airport, near Montreal. Instead he went in a government plane bought second-hand from the T. Eaton Co.

Doctors Urge New Definition of Abortion

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand was told Tuesday night by Dr. Heather Morris of the Canadian Physicians for Life that the conditions under which a therapeutic abortion may be carried out should be narrowed considerably.

Psychiatrist Myer Sim of the University of Ottawa and neurosurgeon Harley Smyth of Toronto also said abortion should remain in the Criminal Code.

Mr. Allmand was among about 30 members of Parliament, including two other cabinet ministers, who attended a dinner organized by Ursula Appelbom (Lib.—York South) at which the doctors set out their positions against abortion and answered questions.

The dinner was probably round one in the match between those for and those against abortion as the government shows signs of preparing to modify the 1969 law which has allowed about 200,000 abortions to take place.

Justice Minister Ron Basford, represented at the dinner by an aide, recently gave a special committee its terms of reference for a study into how the 1969 law is working.

GM Has Concerns Over Price Controls

TORONTO (CP) — The new president of General Motors of Canada Ltd. said today he has "great trepidation" about wage and price controls.

"They just never seem to work," Donald McPherson told his first news conference since being appointed to his new position Oct. 6.

However, Mr. McPherson, who took over his new duties Monday, said he didn't have enough information on Canada's economic controls to comment on what effect they will have on the auto industry.

Owen Sound Officer Demoted

OWEN SOUND, Ont. (CP) — Constable Ron Ross of the Owen Sound police was demoted to third-class from second-class constable until Jan. 1, 1976, after he was found guilty at a statutory tribunal Tuesday on two charges of neglect of duty.

He was also sentenced to 20 days forfeiture of leave on a third charge of lying to a senior officer. The reprimand will be included on his record.

The neglect charges, under the Ontario Police Act, resulted from a fight between two Owen Sound men and two off-duty police officers last July 13.

The tribunal was told that Constable Ross, who was on duty, witnessed the fight but did not try to stop it. He made no report of the fight.

The charge of providing false and misleading statements to a senior officer was laid after an investigation into the incident. The tribunal was told Constable Ross would not cooperate in the investigation.

Constable Gord Gallagher, one of the two off-duty policemen involved in the fight, was found guilty Monday on three charges of discreditable conduct.

MMP Attacks Davis Over Lack of Protest

HAMILTON (CP) — Marion Bryden, New Democratic Party member of the legislature for Toronto Beaches-Woodbine, said Tuesday that Premier William Davis was willing to accept Ottawa's selective wage-and-price control proposals because he thinks they will get him off "the rend-control hook."

Speaking to a Hamilton West NDP Association meeting, Mrs. Bryden said the proposals contain no pressure from Ottawa for a voluntary rent control based on cost increases also and including a rollback of gouging increases which have already occurred.

She also said that faced with demands from teachers, civil servants and municipal employees for some closing of the gap between public-sector employees and business executives, lawyers and doctors, Premier Davis can now feign sympathy but say his hands are tied.

She said the package contains glaring inequities and is really "thinly disguised wage control, not income control."

NDP Develops Rent Policy

TORONTO (CP) — A caucus of the New Democratic Party spent 1½ hours Tuesday afternoon thrashing out its rent control policy.

Following the five-hour meeting, party leader Stephen Lewis said it will take at least two more full meetings before the discussions are completed.

He said he felt sure the final policy would be "as carefully worked out a policy as we have ever had."

He said there was no basic division in the party's policy as outlined during the campaign for the Sept. 18 provincial election. Discussions involved percentage increases to be allowed, retroactivity and the question of a rent review board.

All 37 NDP members were assigned jobs as critics of various government departments. Mr. Lewis is the 38th member of the caucus.

When the 30th session of the Ontario legislature opens next week, the NDP will take aim not only at rent policies but policies involving Ontario Hydro and energy.

For the first time the party has designated critics for both hydro and energy.

Evelyn Gigantes, Carleton East, will be the Ontario Hydro critic and Fred Burr, Windsor-Riverside, will concentrate on energy.

The New Democrats with 38 seats are now the official Opposition party with Liberals dropping into third spot with 36. The Conservatives have 51.

Welfare Project Planned

TORONTO (CP) — A pilot project designed to encourage welfare recipients to seek employment is planned in three Ontario cities, James Taylor, community and social services minister, said Tuesday.

He said in an interview that agreements and paperwork setting up the project will be completed this month with representatives from Toronto, Peterborough and Ottawa.

The project will allow recipients to hold full-time jobs and still collect full benefits. The province and the municipality will share equally in the cost of the project.

Mr. Taylor said he initiated the project in response to the complaint by welfare recipients that they would make less money working than they receive in benefits.

He said the recipient will be subsidized to bring wages to $300 a month. For example, if a job pays $400 a month, the province and the municipality will provide $100, Mr. Taylor said.

The most received in benefits is $400 a month, he said.

Guelph University Apologizes

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The University of Guelph has issued an apology to the Canadian meat-packing industry for the manner in which one of its staff members presented results of bacteria counts in cold cuts during a national television show two weeks ago.

The apology was issued by Dr. J. M. DeMan, chairman of the university's food sciences department, to the Meat Packers Council of Canada following the broadcast two weeks ago of a food sciences department study for The Marketplace, a consumer-oriented Sunday night CBC television series.

Dr. DeMan said he is also writing a letter of complaint to the producers of the television show, chiding them for what he called the sensational and misleading manner in which the research results were presented.

The show presented results from two random surveys of cold cuts made by four Canadian meat-packing companies and claimed Burns Foods Ltd. products contained 13,000 times as many bacteria as those made by J. M. Schneider Ltd.

Dr. DeMan said the claims and presentation were "not scientific at all."

He added that the university will not accept future contracts dealing with topics of "a similar controversial nature."

Lorne Anderson, general manager of Burns Foods Ltd. said sales have fallen in the last two weeks, and 20 of the plant's 430 employees have been laid off.

He blamed the sales slump and layoffs directly on the airing of the show.

The objections of the company centre on the harmless nature of the bacteria and the fact that tests were based on total bacterial count, rather than on a count of only those dangerous bacteria on which federal health standards are based.

Long Range Patrol Aircraft

Lockheed's candidate for Canada's long-range patrol aircraft (LRPA), shown in artist's concept, introduces a new dimension in patrol aircraft effectiveness. In addition to its military roles as an airborne submarine and a maritime surveillance aircraft, the LRPA has a broad spectrum of civil capabilities which will enable its crews to police fisheries, keep tabs on drifting ice, detect and identify water and air pollutants, the search and rescue missions, locate natural resources and monitor their exploitation. The plane will be able to fly in excess of 17 hours without refueling. (CP Photo)

Canadian Cooks Take Over Great Escape Restaurant

EDMONTON (CP) — Two Edmonton chefs and a partner trained in the cooking arts in France have taken over operation of The Great Escape, a restaurant described by Cosmopolitan magazine as one of the 10 best in Canada.

Claude Buzzo, Ron Kannick and George Batt stepped in to prevent the five-year-old restaurant from being converted into a fast-food or specialty operation by other prospective buyers.

The $100,000 purchase price included the land and building with its impressive collection of antiques and paintings, and the unique recipes of the two men who launched the enterprise—Peter Priestly and Alan Blue.

All three of the new owners are capable of taking over in the kitchen, but it is the German-born Batt who usually shops for food and prepares it in the restaurant's four microwave ovens.

Kannick, born in Winnipeg of Polish parents, and Buzzo, born in France and trained in food preparation there, wait on the diners or so tables that accommodate a maximum of 40 diners.

The new partners are determined to continue a Great Escape tradition of serving seven or eight fresh vegetables with each main course.

Diners are given a choice of three dishes which are changed weekly and may include beef stroganoff made from filet mignon, fresh baked trout, roast duck or pheasant. A special favorite of regulars is stuffed Bavarian pork ribs.

Under Priestly and Blue The Great Escape charged a flat $18 a plate for 2½ hours of dining and called patrons a day or two prior to their evening out to confirm the reservation.

Cosmopolitan magazine, in its September issue, urged its readers to "... make reservations at one of Canada's 10 best restaurants the small but superb Great Escape. . . ."

The new owners do not approve of serving liquor or beer with their meals but feel wine could be an asset and have applied for a licence. Under Priestly and Blue, no wine was served.

But patrons may have to wait a while for wine. The Alberta Liquor Control Board has insisted on some changes—more lighting and marked fire exits—before issuing a permit.

Batt, who has had seven years experience as a chef in major Canadian hotels, shops for vegetables daily in a neighborhood supermarket. His partners assist in preparing dishes, which are covered and cooked when needed.

Kannick has been in the food business for 17 years. He moved to Edmonton from Winnipeg four years ago. Buzzo has been a maitre d'hotel in several city restaurants.

Forest Ranger Claims Campers Pollute More

NORDEGG, Alta. (CP) — Campers do more to pollute forests than big development companies, says forest ranger Patrick Hendrigan.

Hendrigan, 38, who has been with the department of lands and forests for nine years, is one of four men at the Nordegg ranger station in the Rocky Mountains area 95 miles west of Red Deer. They are responsible for 1,000 square miles of mountains and foothills, including two designated wilderness areas.

The area is visited by 40,000 to 50,000 tourists during summer and the rangers do their best to steer them into organized campsites where their garbage and fires can be controlled.

"We have more pollution from individual campers than from big companies," Hendrigan said. "The companies are big enough and have enough money behind them that they are willing to do the work we ask of them."

The rangers are responsible for monitoring logging operations to ensure they don't exceed specified limits and that companies do a proper job of reforesting and restoration. Similarly, oil and gas exploration companies must do their work in a prescribed manner, avoiding damage to trees, leaving the area undisturbed and in some cases restoring land they use for roads to a more natural state.

Hendrigan keeps a close eye on wildlife though his chief concern is monitoring land use and not game populations. He says game is scarce and that there should be a five-year moratorium on hunting and stricter controls on fishing in the foothills.

In eight months, he saw one elk. There are few deer left and the moose population, while in better shape, is not high. At least, there are plenty of bears who bother the provincial campgrounds and have to be trapped and transported farther back in the wilds.

The area of responsibility around the station, he said, is a watershed, and damage to the land from too much logging or resource exploration will result in erosion and impair the flow of major rivers into the central part of the province.

There are 19 free government campsites in the area to be supplied with wood and cleaned up. A large part-time staff is kept on hand for that job.

This summer has been too wet to do much extensive travelling in the bush. But on an ordinary summer, with fires to fight and help needed in other forestry areas, rangers spend at least two weeks at a time away from home, Hendrigan said.

Reconstruction of Breast Possible Says Surgeon

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Ralph Millard, a professor of plastic surgery at the University of Miami, Fla., said Tuesday that he has devised a surgical technique that can restore relatively normal appearance to breast cancer patients who have undergone mastectomy.

Dr. Millard told a convention of the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery that if women knew that the reconstruction of a breast was possible, it might eliminate some of the horror and fear about the operation.

It might also help the surgery who performs the mastectomy because it would be less of cure but the villain of mutilation, he said.

Dr. Millard said a strip of skin and fat is taken from the abdomen, left attached at one end, and rolled into a tube with the other end attached to the area where the breast was.

When the flap is firmly attached, with its own blood supply, the other end is severed from the abdomen and moved into the front of the armpit, he said.

The reshaped skin and fat are later shaped into the form of a cup to support a silastic implant and a new nipple is created by the surgeon. The other breast is then tailored to match the reconstructed breast, he said.

Dr. Millard said the initial surgery on the abdomen may take five or six days in hospital but during most of the procedure the woman may remain at home. He said he has completed two breast reconstructions and has others in progress.

News Leak Prompts Investigation Request

OTTAWA (CP) — The leak to reporters of a confidential immigration document prompted a demand in the Commons Tuesday for a special investigation to find out who was responsible.

The document, first draft of a special Senate-Commons committee report to Parliament, suggests, among other things, that Canada set an annual ceiling on the number of immigrants.

Some reporters obtained copies of the 101-page draft during the last few days and Marvin O'Connell, co-chairman of the special committee, said unauthorized publication is expressly prohibited by the rules of this House.

With almost unanimous support of the other parties, the Toronto Liberal MP asked Commons Speaker James Jerome to refer the matter to the privileges and elections committee. Mr. Jerome deferred decision, asking for a day or two to study the issue.

During its evening session, the Senate was presented with a similar request to refer the matter to a Senate committee by Senator Maurice Riel (L—Quebec). Senate Speaker Renaude Lapointe deferred a decision on the question.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) and Jack Epp (PC — Provencher), both members of the joint committee, said they hoped the leak would not compromise the work of the committee.

Lionel Beaudoin (SC—Richmond) said any investigation would be practically useless because up to 600 copies of the report had been distributed.

"We wouldn't want to have a witch-hunt . . . with respect to what was only a draft report," he said.

Cullen to Define Canadian Magazine

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says federal Revenue Minister J. A. G. (Bud) Cullen will present a new and tougher definition of what constitutes a Canadian magazine to the federal cabinet Thursday.

The newspaper says in an Ottawa dispatch that the definition, if accepted, should clarify some of the uncertainty surrounding a bill before Parliament to end the special income tax privileges accorded to Time and Reader's Digest magazines.

The new definition probably will require that for a periodical to qualify as Canadian for tax purposes, it cannot have more than 20 to 30 per cent of its material similar to a related magazine published elsewhere.

Chretien Defends Economic Restraints

OTTAWA (CP) — Treasury Board President Jean Chretien said Tuesday the government could not have imposed selected wage and price controls before now without doing an injustice to workers.

Speaking in the Commons debate on legislation to administer the federal anti-inflation program, he said workers wages had to be allowed to catch up with inflation.

In the 1970-74 period, corporate profits were strong, but wages had not had time to catch up with galloping inflation, Mr. Chretien said.

So the government argued strongly against the compulsory program the Progressive Conservatives campaigned unsuccessfully on in the 1974 election.

"At no time in 1974 did we say controls were a solution that should never be used, but we said they would have been disastrous for workers in 1974," Mr. Chretien said.

Opposition MPs, particularly the Conservatives, have attacked the government regularly since debate started last Friday, claiming the government has completely reversed itself from its election platform opposing controls.

The Progressive Conservatives had advocated a 90-day wage and price freeze, followed by 18 months to two years of mandatory controls.

Paul Yewchuk (PC—Athabaska) said the current selected controls "are the same in principle" as the plan advocated by the Conservatives last year. But he added it is a year too late to be effective.

Mr. Chretien said the Conservatives were a year too early.

He criticized Conservative MPs for taking conflicting economic positions on government programs.

President Francisco da Costa Gomes summoned leaders of the feuding Socialist and Communist parties to a reconciliation meeting in an attempt to ease the tensions which increasingly have divided Portugal's two main left-wing parties.

The Centrist Popular Democrats (PPD), who form the shaky government coalition with the Socialists, Communists and moderate officers, were not invited to the meeting.

But security forces said not one weapon has been surrendered yet in response to the four-day appeal.

Medical Tests Now Questioned

OTTAWA (CP) — Next time you roll up your sleeve so the doctor can take some blood for tests to find out what's making you sick, keep in mind that between 25 and 30 per cent of the tests are inaccurate.

In fact, Health Minister Marc Lalonde told 430 experts at a conference here on medical devices, some of these tests are "potentially hazardous."

The in vitro test kits—so called because in vitro is Latin for glass and much of the work is done in test tubes—have been around since 1962 but the government has not set special regulations or standards for them.

But now, with the realization that only 108 of 219 kits tested between 1962 and 1975 have acceptable performance, the government has decided to step in—some time.

Unfortunately, the electromedical equipment service that would have assessed the kits has been the victim of a spending cutback.

Canadians need not worry unduly said Dr. J. E. Legard of the Laboratory Centre for Disease Control, because the U.S. has decided to crack down on their manufacturers of in vitro test kits.

Close to 90 per cent of the kits used in Canada come from the U.S., he said.

What is wrong with the kits and who takes the blame?

Part of the blame should go to manufacturers, says Dr. D. J. Campbell, head of the clinical chemistry division of Vancouver General Hospital.

He said many kits do not have sufficient instructions, lack warnings about their limitations, are designed poorly and come from factories with poor quality control.

Ottawa Rejects Joint Service

OTTAWA (CP) — New Democrat Les Benjamin accused the government Tuesday of not considering seriously a proposal by the two major railways to provide joint passenger service.

Mr. Benjamin (Regina Lake Centre) said the proposal was outlined 1 months ago in a letter to then Transport Minister Jean Marchand from F. S. Burridge and Robert Bandeen, the respective presidents of CP Rail and Canadian National Railways.

When he raised the issue with the Transport Minister Otto Lang in the Commons Tuesday, Mr. Lang said he would have to check his correspondence files to find out whether there is a reply.

A copy of the letter, dated Dec. 20, 1974, said the railways wanted a prompt government response so that they could make plans.

The letter was in answer to a request by Mr. Marchand that the railways come up with suggestions on how to improve passenger service.

CN and CP Rail said they were prepared to accept responsibility for service between pairs of cities with as little duplication as possible. They said would be co-operation on tickets, timetables and the improved service would be provided under contract with the government.

The railways said in their letter they hoped to implement the first phase of their program in March, 1975.

Postal Sub-stations Still Open, But No Mail Moving as Strike Continues

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

City residents can still hand their letters to a select number of postal clerks in Belleville, but such mail will get no further than the city's main post office.

In an unusual sidelight to the postal strike that has ended all mail movement in Canada, nine sub-post offices scattered across Belleville remain open. Clerks will sell stamps, money orders, and register letter. But such letters will remain unsent, if indeed, they get to the main post office.

Sister local post master Roy Wainwright said Tuesday the "subs" will continue to operate. Mail and parcels collected in such post offices will be picked up and taken to the main post office for storage. However, how and when this will be done is unclear today.

The post master said today that the "subs will be told to try not to accept mail."

Mail cannot be legally handled by post office supervisory staff while the 31 members of the Belleville — Brighton local of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers are on strike.

Inside workers have closed down the post office early Tuesday and the remaining 22,000 CUPW members walked out in a nationwide strike.

Clerks in "subs" said Mr. Wainwright, are not members of the striking union, but are directly employed by the sub-post master.

As such, the clerks do not fall under union jurisdiction, he said.

A contractor, hired by the city post office to pick up mail from the sub-post office, cleared street letters Tuesday. The post master said the local union officials had agreed to the arrangement "for security reasons only."

Today, he said, he hopes that the pickup service — along with rural and city delivery services have been suspended.

Mr. Wainwright said he will be talking to local union officials to iron out the pick-up-of-mail situation.

Belleville union president Walter Valemas said today an executive meeting is planned for today at which time the pick-up service will be discussed.

"We allowed them to clean the boxes yesterday," he said. But it was a "one-time run".

"We haven't made any deal with them," Mr. Valemas said. But the executive might consider it if there was enough mail in the "sub" to pose a security problem.

When inside workers walked out Tuesday, numerous bags of mail — mostly addressed to businesses — was left unsorted, and undelivered by letter carriers.

In Belleville, carriers delivered mail that had been sorted overnight Tuesday.

Today, carriers are working around the office, but in the letter carriers section only.

Commission Hears Arguments Against Federal Riding Changes

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

There is no forecast how Quinte communities will be organized for voting in the next federal election.

But the official group assigned to recommend such organization left Belleville Tuesday with a firmer grasp of local feelings.

It came as politicians and political spokesmen went before the Electoral Boundaries Commission for Ontario.

"That's the group charged with drafting proposals for redistributing political representation in the constituencies — re-aligning riding in keeping with population.

It was the fifth of eight meetings the commission, under Mr. Justice Campbell Grant, is holding across the province to collect local suggestions and reactions to its proposals for new voting districts announced in August.

And the need to appreciate local ties and traditions was graphically stated all by one politician-William Scott, Conservative MP for Victoria—Haliburton — whose riding includes six Hastings County townships and now faces possible absorption into two separate districts.

He pleaded for consideration of a concept frequently repeated at the hearing in Hastings County administration building — community of interest, the common traditional ties to serve local people and population centres.

He told the commission that "the electorate is becoming very confused an deeply concerned with constant changes at all levels of government and are beginning to criticize the entire system.

"This regardless of political persuasion, I beg your commission to take into consideration the traditional communities of interest" involved in any changes of voting districts.

Similar reminders came from Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, who faces abridgment of his Hastings County territory to Belleville, Thurlow and Tyendinaga townships into Prince Edward County. The new constituency would also include the Lennox and Addington township of Camden, Fredericksburgh, Ernestown and Adolphustown.

Mr. Ellis suggested these communities be exchanged for Thurlow, Huntingdon and Hungerford in Hastings, which has strong ties with the south shore of Quinte.

Douglas Aldenbrack, MP Frontenac—Lennox and Addington also asked for return of Ernestown to Lennox and Addington townships because they were historically oriented to that region.

Redistribution suggests a new riding of Hastings-Frontenac—Lennox and Addington to the northwest of Peterborough. Mr. Aldenbrack, who faces absorption of his area of Pittsburgh Township neighboring Kingston also he retained in his new riding.

Robert Kennedy, spokesman for Flora Macdonald, MP Kingston and the Islands, signed rejection of small strip of neighboring Pittsburgh Township. Its fate is with the riding including the large mill.

Mr. Kennedy said on Kingston's outskirts and oriented to the city.

One area politician absent from the meeting was George Hees, MP Prince Edward—Hastings, whose district faces the loss of Prince Edward into a new riding of Northumberland.

It took more than two and one-half hours to hear the various suggestions and briefs offered from spokesmen of ridings involved—and the importance of such ties was stressed at the outset by Mr. Justice Grant.

"We as a commission cannot possibly be aware of all the local situations that might be present to assist us in forming a local riding," said the chairman.

Decision follows a survey of accommodation in house athletes in the Quinte area by Mr. Belch.

Staging of the games in Belleville depended on finding accommodation for about 2,000 athletes.

Mr. Belch contacted 29 hotel-motel operators, Alberta College, Sir James Whitney School for the Deaf and Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

If favorable consideration is received from all agencies surveyed some 1,720 beds will be available—1,350 from hotels and motels, he reported to the recreation-arena committee.

But Albert College, he said, would consider the request only if the Tam O'Shanter hockey school did not operate in 1976. The school for the deaf to date had not responded and CFB Trenton's facilities use all base housing.

"Finalization of our survey leaves no doubt that the Quinte Area cannot satisfy accomodation for the '78 Ontario Games athletes," reported Mr. Belch to the committee. "Therefore, unless immediate hotel-motel construction is undertaken, Belleville is not in the position to entertain the Ontario Games."

Possibility of having the games — either winter or summer — was first raised at the beginning of the year by then Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

At that time it was indicated the ministry's major concern on scheduling the games at Belleville depended on housing the estimated 2,000 athletes.

Faulkner Pays Visit

Canadian secretary of state Hugh Faulkner will visit Belleville Friday morning while travelling from Toronto to Kingston.

Mr. Faulkner will be available for comment on the federal anti-inflation measures, said a spokesman for his office.

He will be at the Four Seasons Hotel from 9:30 to 11 a.m. before leaving for Kingston.

A spokesman would only say that his business in Kingston is both personal and governmental would not comment in detail.

Paquet Begins Systems Study

Ed Paquet, superintendent of business for the Hastings — Prince Edward Separate School Board, is doing some trouble shooting for the ministry of education.

Director of education Ed Neville informed trustees Tuesday night that Mr. Paquet has been asked by the ministry of education to work on a systems evaluation project for the Durham Region Separate School Board.

Mr. Neville assured trustees that these added duties would not interfere with Mr. Paquet's own duties at the separate school board. Mr. Neville said the board "feels fortunate that the ministry selected Mr. Paquet to work on the projects."

Mr. Paquet also serves as a trustee on the Hastings County Board of education.

Truck Snarls Downtown Traffic

A large transport trailer jack-knifed on Front Street Tuesday, backing up downtown traffic for more than half an hour while crews worked to move the trailer. The truck was finally dragged sideways giving the driver clearance to manoeuvre out of the parking lot near the downtown bus-loading stop.

Murder Trial Enters Second Day

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Defence counsel for Jeremiah James Arthur Meneely said Tuesday his client admits he carried out the physical act of shooting and killing his 40-year-old father, James Meneely of RR 4, Madoc in Rawdon Township, Aug. 1, 1974.

Donald Thomas of Toronto made the statement in his opening remarks to the jury during the first day of the Supreme Court trial at the Hastings County Courthouse here.

However, he added, intent to perform the act was not included in the admission.

Meneely has pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder not punishable by death in the shooting death of his father at their farm on the township's 11th concession.

The elder Meneely died after he was shot in the chest by a 12-gauge shotgun. A widower, he and his son resided together at the farm.

Detailed evidence was given Tuesday as to the layout of a portion of the farmhouse where the shooting is alleged to have occurred before a 12-member jury composed of six men and six women.

A total of 28 exhibits were entered including a shotgun discovered on a kitchen table, a spent shell removed from the shotgun, a door connecting the kitchen and a laundry room and 23 photographs and diagrams during testimony by Cpl. James Dennis Ryan, an identification officer with Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville.

Cpl. Ryan was scheduled for cross-examination by Mr. Thomas when the trail resumed today at 10 a.m.

Two other admissions were also entered by the defence — that the elder Meneely had no alcohol in his system at the time of the incident and that Coroner Dr. D.W. Burgess pronounced the man dead at the scene between 2:18 — 2:30 p.m.

Ontario Supreme Court Justice Lawrence Pennell of Toronto requested that the news media refrain from reporting the opening remarks by Crown Attorney Glenn Define. He apologized to Mr. Define for having to make the request.

Justice Pennell had interrupted Mr. Define twice during the opening, questioning the content of the remarks and once said it was the most detailed opening he has heard during his years on the bench.

Meneely was arrested by provincial police at Healey Falls north of Campbellford in August, 1974. He was 18 years of age at the time of the arrest.

The arrest was made by Insp. Casey Kotwa, former provincial police detective sergeant at Belleville, now with the force's criminal investigation branch and Cpl. R.L. Burchat of Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc.

Meneely was employed at General Motors in Oshawa at the time of his arrest. Police said at the time of his father's death, he was a student at Campbellford High School.

MPs Confer

MP Says Commission Using Outdated Figures

The realism of using four-year-old statistics as a population basis for changing federal electoral boundaries was questioned Tuesday by Allan Lawrence, MP Northumberland — Durham.

The figures are "ridiculous" said Mr. Lawrence, one of several politicians appearing before a meeting here of the federal Electoral Boundaries Commission for Ontario.

The commission has to base its proposals for creating new constituency boundaries on 1971 census figures.

Its terms of reference also were excluded by parliament from considering growth factors; Mr. Justice Campbell Grant, commission chairman said later.

But, intimated Mr. Lawrence, results to redistribution proposals could have been more realistic if electoral census statistics from recent federal and provincial elections had been used.

Mr. Lawrence asked the commission to review its proposals to change boundaries of six ridings in the Quinte — Oshawa corridor.

A proposed new Durham district surrounds Oshawa but the areas east and west of that city have no community of interest, he said.

He also suggested the present ridings of Prince Edward-Hastings Northumberland — Durham and Peterborough remain intact.

As ridings, they now are "perfectly acceptable," he suggested, and need no further dislocation confusion and worry to the citizens as to what riding they're in."

He said one worry — "incorrect as it may be" that has been in the minds of concerned citizens is "that in this area you are moving ridings simply for the sake of changing the name of a riding."

He said separation of the long-linked towns of Port Hope and Cobourg into separate ridings is "simply not acceptable to the people of the area."

A similar plea was entered by a Liberal politician — Isobel Kirkpatrick, candidate in Northumberland in the recent provincial election.

She said the riding's Liberal association was asking the commission recommend that Port Hope and Hope Township remain in Northumberland, along with Cobourg.

The Quinte Santa Claus Parade committee is in desperate need of taggers.

On Friday, taggers should be at the centre by 4 p.m. and by 9 a.m. Saturday, said Mr. Lewars.

Homer Does It in 12th

Fisk Blasts Red Sox Back on Even Terms

CARLTON FISK

BOSTON (AP) — "I don't think I've ever been in a more emotional game," catcher Carlton Fisk said early this morning after belting a tenth inning homer which lifted Boston Red Sox to a 7-6 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

"I don't think anybody in the world could ask for a better game," the big catcher said after his dramatic blast which forced a seventh and deciding game in the World Series tonight.

Fisk took off against Pat Darcy, the eighth Cincinnati pitcher, to lead off the Boston 12th.

"The pitch was a sinker down and in," Fisk said. "When I hit it, I knew it was going to be foul or a home run.

"I wasn't trying to hit a homer, but I got good wood on the ball. I thought it was going to hook around the foul pole. Instead, the ball hit the pole. The wind must have pushed it 15 or 20 feet closer to the line."

Fans swarmed on the field as Fisk circled the bases. But he said there was no danger that he would miss scoring.

"I made sure I touched every base," he said. "I touched every little white thing I saw on the way around. In fact, I was ready to straight arm or push anybody out of my way."

FILES PETITION

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Rubin (Hurricane) Carter's lawyer filed a petition Tuesday with Gov. Brendan T. Byrne seeking executive clemency for his client. Lewis Steel, lawyer for John Artis, the ex-middleweight boxing contender's co-defendant, said he would file a similar petition Wednesday. Lawyer Byron Baldock said Bryce now is free to pardon Carter and Artis or commute their life sentences to time already served. They were convicted of murdering three men during a 1966 tavern holdup in Paterson and have maintained they were innocent and sent to prison because of racial prejudice.

One Swing Ends It

BOSTON (AP) — "I don't think I've ever been in a more emotional game," catcher Carlton Fisk said early this morning after belting a tenth inning homer which lifted Boston Red Sox to a 7-6 victory over Cincinnati Reds.

"I don't think anybody in the world could ask for a better game," the big catcher said after his dramatic blast which forced a seventh and deciding game in the World Series tonight.

Fisk took off against Pat Darcy, the eighth Cincinnati pitcher, to lead off the Boston 12th.

"The pitch was a sinker down and in," Fisk said. "When I hit it, I knew it was going to be foul or a home run.

"I wasn't trying to hit a homer, but I got good wood on the ball. I thought it was going to hook around the foul pole. Instead, the ball hit the pole. The wind must have pushed it 15 or 20 feet closer to the line."

Fans swarmed on the field as Fisk circled the bases. But he said there was no danger that he would miss scoring.

"I made sure I touched every base," he said. "I touched every little white thing I saw on the way around. In fact, I was ready to straight arm or push anybody out of my way."

His imperfection became more obvious when George Foster unloaded a two-run double in the Cincinnati seventh and Cesar Geronimo laced a home run into the right-field seats in the eighth.

"Geronimo's wallop finished Tiant and gave the Reds a 6-2 lead. With Pedro Borbon pitching overpowering baseball in relief, the Reds seemed to be driving toward their first World Series title since 1940.

DWIGHT EVANS

But as everyone soon found out, the game was far from over.

Borbon gave up a leadoff single to Lynn and a walk to Rico Petrocelli. The reliever was taken out of the game in favor of Rawly Eastwick and the Fenway crowd of 35,306 burst into life.

Cincinnati's outstanding youngster quieted the Boston customers by striking out Dwight Evans and getting Rick Burleson on a fly ball. Then he went to a 2-2 count on pinch-hitter Bernie Carbo before the former Cincinnati player hit a game-tying homer into the centre field stands, more than 400 feet away.

"It was a fastball over the plate," Carbo said of the pitch from Eastwick. "I was just trying to make contact in that spot and not strike out, so I stepped out of the box a couple of times to help relax myself.

"All I was trying to do was just put the ball in play somewhere.

The crowd went wild when Carbo homered. And the benchwarmer had a ball running around the bases, applauding himself as he enjoyed every second of his journey toward home. When he sauntered around third, he gave Rose a friendly needle.

"I said something like, 'Don't you wish you were as strong as you, and he just laughed. Because we were real good friends when I was with the Reds. I wasn't trying to insult him or anything. I just was too excited. I was terribly thrilled."

With the cheers of the Red Sox faithful still ringing in the air, Boston came back with more fireworks in the ninth. They loaded the bases with none out. The noise level reached new heights.

But the Boston rally fizzled. Lynn lofted a fly ball to Foster along the left field line and the Cincinnati outfielder gunned down Denny Doyle at home for a double play. Then Petrocelli grounded out and the game went into extra innings.

The Reds had the opportunity to put the Red Sox away but were turned back by an almost unbelievable play by Evans in right in the 11th.

With a man on first, Joe Morgan hit a drive that appeared almost certainly headed for home run territory but the young outfielder speared the ball near the seats and fired back into the infield to complete a double play.

"It was the best catch I've ever seen," said Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson.

That catch saved Boston for the 10th when Fisk delivered his homer.

It was a fitting climax to a game that had everything—even a violent collision with the centre field wall by Lynn that temporarily knocked the outfielder in the fifth inning.

Lynn, one of the best rookies in some years in the American League for many years, was hurt when he went back in an attempt to catch Griffey's triple.

Tiger-Cats' Tom Pate Dead

CALGARY (CP) — Tom Pate, 23, who came to Canada from Omaha, Neb., this year to play professional football, died Tuesday less than 72 hours after collapsing during a Canadian Football League game.

The Hamilton Tiger-Cats linebacker lapsed into a coma after falling in the artificial turf of McMahon Stadium during his team's 35-33 win over Calgary Stampeders Saturday night and was in critical condition up to his death Tuesday evening.

Dr. Jack Barlass, a neurosurgeon who treated Pate at Foothills Hospital, said an autopsy will be necessary to determine the exact cause of death.

There has been no medical evidence made public directly linking Pate's collapse and death to the clean hard block he took from Calgary's Rick Gabbos and Dick Wesolowski seconds before collapsing.

Barlass told reporters Tuesday night that Pate had a brain hemorrhage, "but whether this was the cause of death or whether this was the result of injuries he received in the football game, we don't know." A decision on an inquest would be made after the autopsy.

Hamilton team doctor Jim Charters said prior to the deal Pate had been suffering from severe headaches and Calgary general manager Gary Hobson said a doctor who examined Pate in hospital indicated Pate had a weakness in a blood vessel, technically known as an aneurysm.

Pate, who graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1973 as a business administration major, recovered from a childhood attack of spinal meningitis. He said early in the season that the attack at age 13 sent him into a coma for four days, caused him to lose 10 pounds and confined him to hospital for 11 days.

Pate is the second player to die following a game in the history of the CFL and there has been more reported death among American professionals.

Defensive end Rick Suderman of Edmonton Eskimos died in 1972 the day after a game. An autopsy showed he had an aneurysm. Flanker Chuck Hughes of Detroit Lions collapsed on the turf during a game several seasons ago and later died in hospital of an apparent heart attack.

Teammates described Pate, a husky six-foot-three and 220 pounds, as quiet and serious. A friend, Cindy Drullinger of Omaha, and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Pate, his parents, had been at his bedside since Sunday.

Pate started his Canadian football career as a free agent with Saskatchewan Roughriders and appeared to have won a starting job but was cut the day before the season opened when the team picked up veteran Bruce Gores from Calgary.

He found a job with Ivats and helped improve the defence, putting them in a battle for the third and final playoff position in the Eastern Conference.

Al Sanguinet, Roughriders president and president of the Western Football Conference, called Pate's death a "tremendous tragedy."

"It's a terrible loss of a very fine football player and a very finegentleman."

No Action on Merger

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Basketball Association adopted a new rule at a league board of governors meeting Tuesday limiting the jump ball and tabled a recommendation of hiring a third official to work league games.

The meeting, presided over by O'Brien, took no action on the American Basketball Association's desire to merge with the NBA.

The ABA dropped its Ball-more franchise Monday and moved to have the remaining nine franchises join the established NBA.

An NBA spokesman said concerning the third official that "although the owners recognized the improved coverage that three officials bring to the game, the overriding factors were the existing operation costs for the NBA and member clubs, especially litigation expenses.

The board approved a motion limiting the jump ball for the 1975-76 season which opens Thursday. All games will begin with a jump ball. The team winning the jump will have possession of the ball at either the fourth quarter by inbounding the ball under its own basket.

Habs Halt Penguins' Streak

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Montreal Canadiens played the spoiler last night, upset winging Pittsburgh Penguins 7-1 in a National Hockey League game and ended a four-game winning streak for the Pittsburgh club had run up a record of 21 wins and eight ties against one loss on their home ice since dropping a 3-2 decision to the Canadiens last Nov. 27.

But the Canadiens handed the Penguins their first loss in five games this season and jumped into first place in the Norris Division with a 4-1-1 mark for nine points, one more than the Penguins and Los Angeles Kings. Los Angeles is 4-2.

In other games, Vancouver Canucks and New York Islanders played to a 5-5 tie and St. Louis Blues trounced the Kings 6-1.

Pete Mahovlich pushed his goal total to seven with two first-period goals for Montreal. Guy Lafleur, who had two assists, scored his seventh and eighth goals of the year, both on power plays, and Yvon Lambert and defenseman Guy Lapointe added man-advantage scores. Doug Risebrough drew Lemieux's other goal.

Pierre Larouche set up Jean Pronovost for Pittsburgh's only goal against Montreal netminder Ken Dryden, who turned in 26 saves. Gary Inness faced 37 shots for Pittsburgh.

At Uniondale, N.Y., Don Lever beat Islanders goalie Billy Smith at 18:29 of the third period to give Vancouver its lead.

Rookie Rick Hight with two goals, Chris Oddleifson and Dennis Ververaert were Vancouver's other marksmen. Clarke Gillies and defenseman Denis Potvin had two goals each for New York, and Billy Harris one.

Vancouver coach Phil Maloney was happy with the result, considering three of his top people — Bill Derlago, Gary Monahan, Gerry O'Flaherty and John Grisdale — were back home nursing injuries.

At St. Louis, the Blues picked up their second win against three losses and a tie as Garry Unger, playing in his 500th straight game, scored his fifth and sixth goals of the season both in the first period, against Kings' goalie Rogatien Vachon.

Bob MacMillan, Brian Ogilvie, Wayne Merrick and Chuck Lefley had the other St. Louis goals, while Bob Nevin bested Yves Belanger with 5:01 to play for the early Kings goal in the Blues' 16-shot barrage.

Racers Having Problems

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Indianapolis Racers are having their problems, and coaching may not be the problem.

The second-year World Hockey Association team started the season with a victory over the expansion Denver Spurs, but have lost five consecutive games, the most recent a 3-1 loss Tuesday night to Minnesota Fighting Saints.

The game marked the inaugural winger Jack Carlson scored diampolis coaching debut of Jacques Demers, who until Gerry Moore was fired after a loss Saturday night, was director of player personnel for the Racers.

The game was tied 1-1 until his first goal of the season at 4:38 to give the Fighting Saints the victory.

In other WHA games Tuesday night, Winnipeg Jets shut out Cincinnati Stingers 7-0 and Quebec Nordiques beat New England Whalers 6-4.

Dave Keon picked up his second goal of the season to give the Fighting Saints a 1-0 lead at 6:21 of the first period, but defenceman Pat Stapleton tied it for the Racers seven minutes later.

The victory moved Minnesota into a first-place tie with Phoenix for the West Division lead.

The Jets scored three power-play goals in the first period to defeat the first-year Stingers.

Anders Hedberg scored two goals to pace the Jets at their home opener before 8,323 fans.

Veteran goaltender Joe Daley kicked out 22 shots to record his second shutout of the season.

Rejean Houle scored his fourth goal of the season and set up two others as the Nordiques won their fourth game in five starts.

Voyageurs Whip Indians

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
Nova Scotia Voyageurs pumped in five goals in the first period and never looked back as they dumped Springfield Indians 10-3 in an American Hockey league game Tuesday night.

In the only other scheduled game, Serge Lajeunesse slipped a shot past Baltimore goalie Dave Wilson on a power play with 1:00 remaining to give Richmond Robins a 3-2 victory over the Clippers.

In Sydney, the Voyageur attack was led by Ron Andruff with three goals, Guy Chouinard with two goals and Kelly Greenbank, Jim Cahoon, Pierre Mondou, Paul Woods and Mike Polich added one goal each.

Springfield's goals came in the third period from Norm Dube and Don Cairns.

Late in the second game between the two teams in Cape Breton this week while the Indian fax forum is being readied after an agreement between the Voyageurs, won 3-2 on Sunday.

Nova Scotia came on strong in the first with Cahoon rifling a shot past an unsuspecting Rocky Farr from a sharp angle at the 44-second mark. Mondou scored on a power play from an John Shanahan and Chouinard at 2:46.

Farr was replaced by Bob Taylor in the Springfield net when Andruff sank a low backhand shot at 4:47.

But Taylor was unable to stop the Vees as Chouinard scored twice with almost identical 40-foot shots from the right of the Springfield net.

Springfield got on the scoreboard at 8:32 of the third period when Dube took a pass from Billy Inglis and Dennis Patterson and flipped in in a backhand shot from in front of the net.

Soccer Team Out of Games

MEXICO CITY (CP)—Canada on 10 medals and lost one Monday, together with an entire soccer team, in a day of bizarre activity on and off the playing surface.

Even the wrestling gold medal won by Egon Beller of Gladstone, Ont., in the feather-weight division was unusual. James Humphrey of the United States, his prospective opponent in the final bout, had to withdraw because of an injury and the Canadian won his title by default.

That was about the only break that went Canada's way. Earlier, Joan Wenzel of Waterloo, Ont., had to hand back the bronze medal she won in the 800 metres the week because a post-race test showed traces of a forbidden drug she had taken 18 hours before the race in an anti-histamine pill.

And the soccer team, already on the verge of elimination in the semi-final round, withdrew from the competition because it was running out of players. Five were under suspension and a sixth was injured.

Game officials agreed that Mrs. Wenzel had taken the drug inadvertently and first the referees who had suspended most of the soccer players. But they declined to reverse the rulings against the Canadians.

There was additional bad news in the Canadian camp. Ian Millar of Perth, Ont., one of the top riders on the show-jumping team, suffered a broken arm in practice and was lost to the team.

And Canada's best hope for a yachting medal, the Flying Dutchman sailed by James and Hugh Kidd of Brantford, Ont., was disqualified in its sixth race and dropped to third from second place in the over-all standings with one race to go.

The United States had another big day, sweeping all six events in the Pan-Am pool and striking gold in five of the 10 weight classes in freestyle wrestling. Three Cubans and a Mexican won the other seven gold titles and a Colombian cyclist won the 4,000-metre individual pursuit.

The Canadians backed Beller's gold medal, the country's first in Pan-Am competition with silvers won by lightweight Clive Llewellyn of London, Ont., and middleweight Rick Deschatelets, a University of Guelph student from Sturgeon Falls, Ont.

Welterweight Jim Miller of Terry Paice of Thunder Bay, Ont., and heavyweight Claude Pilon of Ottawa won bronzes.

The wrestlers get another chance for glory in the Greco-Roman competition, which starts today.

The swimming team got silvers from Cheryl Gibson of Edmonton in the women's 400-metre Individual medley, Mike Scarth of Edmonton in the men's 200 backstroke and Dave Heisbourg of Vancouver in the men's 100 breaststroke while Wendy Quirk of Pointe Claire, Que., claimed a bronze in the women's 100 butterfly.

Janet Nutter of Winnipeg was leading at the end of the compulsory stage of the women's lower diving competition with Linda Cubbert of Beaconsfield, Que., in fourth place.

And the unbeaten Canadian field hockey team, finished off its preliminary round with a 5-1 victory over Chile to qualify in second place behind the host countries battling for the medals.

But there was despondency at team headquarters over the unsuccessful appeals on behalf of Mrs. Wenzel and the soccer team.

Dr. Dough Clement, head of the Canada delegation, said a minute quantity of ephedrine was present in the cold capsule Mrs. Wenzel took the day before her race.

"It was just a common cold pill, one you can get without a prescription," Mrs. Wenzel said. "They're calling something doping which, in the medical sense of the word, isn't really doping."

Clement, a Richmond, B.C., physician who once represented Canada as a sprinter, agreed.

"A certain form of legislation is being pushed to the letter, he said. "Innocent athletes are being thrown out."

Mrs. Wenzel's bronze was turned over to Kathy Hall, the American girl who finished fourth in the 400 last Wednesday.

Had she not returned the medal, she would have been subject to a lifetime suspension from international track and field. As it was, she lost her place on the Canadian 1,600-metre relay team that won a gold medal Monday with Joanne McTaggart of Saskatoon running her leg.

Soccer coach Colin Morris said the Canadians, who had two losses and a draw in three starts and never scored a goal, were disgusted with the officiating throughout the tournament.

The trouble arose in a match against Argentina last Friday which the Canadians lost 3-0. The team received official notice that Carl Rose of Toronto had been suspended for three games and Gary Ayre for one game by the Nicaraguan referee.

Morris said someone entered the Canadian dressing room before the team's next game against Mexico and told him Ray Telford of Nanaimo, B.C., and Robin Megraw of Oshawa, Ont., had also been suspended. Lacking official notice, he used them in the game, he said, because neither had been cautioned or sent off.

Then, against Mexico, Jim McDonald of Toronto was sent off "for a perfectly innocuous offence—he just stood still and a Mexican ran into him."

Meanwhile, Jim Douglas of St. Catharines, Ont., suffered a shoulder dislocation and a knee injury in the Argentina game and was lost to the team.

That reduced the Canadian roster to 12 from the original 17, Morris said, and he was not prepared to take the risk of playing the remaining two games on the schedule without adequate replacements.

Marlies, Canadians Tie

Fincups Rip Generals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Fincups had their second most productive game of the season Tuesday, defeating Oshawa Generals 9-3 in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

In other games, Toronto Marlboros and Kingston Canadians fought to a 4-4 draw at Kingston and London Knights tied St. Catharines Black Hawks 5-5 at St. Catharines.

League play resumes Thursday with Kitchener at Peterborough, Sault Ste. Marie at Windsor and Sudbury at St. Catharines.

Two goals each from Dale McCourt and Archie King led Hamilton to the win before 1,250 spectators. Rick Selling, Joe Contini, Jack Anderson and Mike Keeling got the other goals for the Fincups.

Glen Kirkham, Brian Dillon and Bill Lesuis scored for Oshawa. The Generals continually were frustrated by Hamilton goalie Al Jensen, who blocked 39 of the 42 Oshawa shots. The Fincups fired 38 shots at the Oshawa goal.

Hamilton led 3-0 after the first period and stretched the lead to 4-0 before the Generals scored their first goal.

John Searle's goal with less than five minutes remaining gave Toronto the tie in a game played before a crowd of 3,654 Kingston fans.

The Marlboros, who trailed 3-2 going into the final 20 minutes of play, got their other goals from Gary Dillon, Mike McEwen and Bruce O'Grady.

Brad Rhiness, Ken Linseman, Tim Stiller and Brad Tambyn scored for the Canadians, who led 3-1 at one point in the first period.

The tie gave Kingston a two-way tie with Sudbury Wolves for first place in the Leyden division.

The Marlboros outshot the Canadians 30-29.

In St. Catharines, it was centre Doug Caines's third goal of the game that salvaged a tie for the Black Hawks.

The game was watched by 986 spectators, believed the small-est crowd in the 33-year history of Junior A hockey in St. Catharines.

Injunctions Denied Gretzky and Rorabeck

TORONTO (CP) — Two minor league hockey players were denied interim injunctions Tuesday that would have permitted them to play for a team in the Toronto area.

Wayne Gretzky, 14, and Brian Rorabeck, 13 were denied the injunctions by Mr. Justice James Southey of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice Southey said he did not think the boys were using to prevent the violation of legal rights peddled by them, and that they had not exhausted the appeal procedures available to them in hockey channels before coming to court.

The two boys, whose families live outside Toronto, had obtained release forms from their local Ontario Minor Hockey Association teams before moving to Toronto this fall under legal guardianships.

REQUEST APPROVED

TOMS RIVER, N.J. (AP) — A judge has approved a request from executors of the estate of Robert J. Schmertz to sell his interest in the Celtics to two Los Angeles businessmen for $3 million. The move, if approved by the National Basketball Association's board of governors, will give Irving Levin and Harold Lipton total control of the team. Schmertz, who died in July, bought the Celtics in 1973 for $4.5 million. He later sold half interest in the team to Levin and Lipton.

Gretzky, of Brantford, Ont., and Rorabeck, of Brighton, Ont., have enrolled in Toronto schools and had hoped to play for the Toronto Nationals Hockey Club.

Belleville Lions Midget goaltender, Terry Thompson, did everything but stand on his head to make a save against Kingston's Kevin Taylor in the third period of Tuesday's game at the Memorial Arena. The Gurney Midget forward had taken a pass from teammate Matt Murray on a two-one situation, against Belleville defenceman Curt Langstaff (centre) and backhanded the puck over the sprawling Thompson. Taylor's goal started a third period onslaught that culminated in Kingston's 8-6 win.

Kingston Trips Lions Midgets

Kingston Gurney Major Midgets made perseverance pay Tuesday night at the Memorial Arena as they came came from behind to outlast Belleville Lions 8-6. The two Ontario Minor Hockey Association squads were matched up in the second game of first elimination series for the right to represent Ontario at the Wrigley National Midget Tournament in Calgary.

Belleville had won the opening match up of the best-of-three series in weekend play in Kingston. However, the Gurney's just kept plucking away at the local goalie with positional, heads up hockey and took advantage of Lions' errors to earn the win.

The Belleville squad came out of the first period with a 5-1 lead. Bob's teams hustled and neither made any bones about scuffling over the puck. Some keen passing and light positional play by the Lions led to goals by Gary Geegan and Bob Bunton. Randy Hutchinson and Steve Coons drew helpers on the opening goal and Geegan and John Jiannopoulos assisted on the second. Matt Murray got the only Kingston marker of the period.

The visitors came out flying in the second frame and simply outplayed the locals. Too many cooks spoil the broth and sometime during the second period everyone of the Belleville team became a puck carrier. Defencmen were caught up the ice and forwards were checked at centre ice before they could get man the puck. That's when the tide turned and Kingston tallied three consecutive goals within a two minute span. Murray, Brian Cole and Joe Monahen got those.

Belleville regained a certain degree of composure and made the score 4-3 at the end of the second on Bunton's second goal of the game from Bob Crawford and Jiannopoulos.

Kingston continued to move the puck when, after three minutes of the third, Murray scored again. Bunton replied the second period winner, with helpers going to Jiannopoulos and Curt Langstaff, to keep Belleville within one goal.

Then the roof fell in. Two minutes after Bunton's goal, Kingston was in front 5-4. Kevin Taylor, John Dwyrs and Cole fired those three.

The Lions dug in and came back with singles from Coons and Crawford, but two goals was as low as they could cut the margin. Randy Smith earned the assist on Coon's goal and Jiannopoulos and Bunton got the helpers on Smith's.

The deciding game in the series will be played in Kingston later this week. The winner of this will have four remaining series to win before qualifying for the Wrigley Tournament.

Chuckwagon Takes Over

Bob's Sports had hardly gotten the feel of first place when Chuckwagon Foods bumped them back into second. Both clubs are undefeated and Bob's had won their third game of the season Monday night to earn a share of the top spot. However, Tuesday night in Gus Hoose Hockey League action, Chuckwagon ran their unbeaten streak to four games and moved two points up on Bob's with a decisive 7-1 victory over Procter and Gamble.

In two other GHHL games Tuesday, Bayview Orchards shutout a stubborn Quinteliation Carpet club 3-0 and Bitemp Heating dumped Kelly's Esso 5-1.

Wally Dainard scored twice for Chuckwagon and Fred Bedard, Tom Pierce, Grant Sage, Fred Sliekie and Terry Casselman tore a goal each.

Mark Bradshaw replied for Procter and Gamble.

Ken Genereux displayed some of the form that made him one of the top goalies during the 1972-73 season Tuesday night when he earned Bayview's shutout. Steve Truelove and Dave Skelton provided him with all the firepower he needed.

John Pinden scored twice and Charlie Nestrovski collected three assists in Bitemp's win. Vic Peralta, Tony Lenini and Bill Lynch added one goal each.

Warren Rushkow was the lone marksmen for Kelly's.

Radiator Service In Front

Belleville Radiator Service remains the only team with a perfect record in the Belleville Broomball League, following Friday night play at Dick Ellis Rink.

Backed by strong goalkeeping from Joel Trudeau, the team made it two wins in as many starts by turning back Golden Mile Restaurant 4-1. In other games, A & J restaurant of Trenton tasted defeat for the first time since joining the league in 1974 when Northern Electric won 3-1, and Bancroft Sports Centre nipped Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund 1-0.

The Radiator Service team got a three-goal effort from Bob McLeod to go with Trudeau's steady netminding. Jim Parks had the other goal for the winners. Alec Belch and Andy Prudden each earned two assists. Lons marksman for Golden Mile was Joe Louis.

Northern Elected evened its record at 1-1 with the upset of A & J. Joe Rommo fired two goals and Bob McFarlane added one. Jacklin took care of the A & J goal.

In a battle of the new entries to the league, the Sports Centre squeezed past BVBP on Steve Rushkow's goal. Tom Bagery recorded the shutout to edge Yves Lamer in the goalie's duel.

Saints Finish With a Rush

Demonstrating a high-geared, diversified attack and a stout defence, Harry Turpin's Quinte Secondary School Saints closed out their Bay of Quinte High School Football League regular schedule, Tuesday, whipping Napanee and District Secondary School 26-0.

The win in Napanee was the fourth in seven starts for the Junior Saints who climbed into a points tie for third place in the standings with Moira Secondary School Trojans who close out their regular season today against Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, Napanee finished at 3-5.

Rearing into a 22-0 lead in the first half, Saints continued to apply the pressure and outscored Napanee 20-6 after the interval.

Quarterback Duff Porteous hit flanker Gary Frederick for a pair of touchdowns and running back Ken Brevoy put in another strong effort for the Saints, accounting for two majors and adding a pair of two-point conversions.

Paul Bancroft-Jones and Don Buck, running from the fullback position, took care of the other Saints' majors. Bancroft-Jones also clicked for a two-point conversion.

Napanee's points came on a third quarter touchdown by quarterback Greg Mills.

QFL May Expand to 12 Teams

The Quinte Football League operated in the face of impending financial difficulties 1975 campaign. Plan support fall off at a rapid rate over the past few years, but never more abruptly than during the past season.

It was even difficult to get together a complete executive without falling back on the old faithfuls.

However, QFL officials decided to hold their annual meeting in the fall rather than spring of '76 and by doing so came up with their most promising results in several years.

The concensus is that the league will expand to a 12-team loop from its 10-team situation of past seasons. Represented at the meeting on the weekend were Frankford Motors, Howard & Robert Printing, Angus Mea's Wear, Bardon Supplies and Borabeck Real Estate, all members of the league during the past year, Cobourg, Cold Springs, Brighton, Napanee and Peterborough Deck Transport.

Also throwing their names in the QFL hat were Campbellford and possibly Belleville Fish Juniors though without representation at the meeting.

Should the league double to a full 12 squad, it will be divided into an East and West Division. Another added twist would be inclusion of travelling among teams. In previous years all games were played at Belleville's Alemite Park, but with the distances involved, it was considered unfair to have teams constantly coming to Belleville. Instead, some games will be played in Napanee and Peterborough, and possibly Madoc, Cobourg and Trenton.

The only factor still completely up in the air is the election of the '76 executive. George Rutledge, Harold Rawson, Ken Ross and Vern Whalen, the workhorses of the league for the past several years, all declined to accept nominations.

In order to find an executive a temporary screening committee has been established. Members are Jack O'Connor from Trenton; Doug Murray and Bill Morrow, from Belleville, and Tom Mathews, from Cobourg.

The next meeting of the group will take place on Sunday, November 30, 2 p.m. at the Recreation Centre on Pinnacle Street, Belleville.

Senior Football Dates Are Set

While the eight-team junior section of the Bay of Quinte High School Football League finished up its regular schedules with a full slate of games this week, the seniors will be marking time, grading the start of playoff action.

All six senior teams will participate in the playoffs.

Four teams finished the regular schedule with identical 3-2 records. Matching marks were: Centre Hastings Centurions, Moira Trojans, Quinte Saints and Trenton Tigers. Centennial Chargers were 2-3 and Bayside Red Devils, 1-4.

Team coaches met Monday with league convenor Joe Dicrace of Trenton to lay out a playoff schedule.

Moira and Trenton meet in one set of first round playoffs while in other sudden death play, it's Bayside and Quinte hooking up, and Centre Hastings taking on Centennial.

The Bayside-Quinte match will be played at Quinte, October 26. Trenton is at Moira and Centennial at Centre Hastings, October 29. Game times are set for 2:30 but may be moved ahead should the coaches agree to do so.

Nova Scotian Schools Under Heavy Attack

WINNIPEG (CP) — "After Nova Scotia educational says the province's school system is producing illiterate and semi-literate students who have little or no background in the humanities.

Dr. H. G. Schwarz of the Dalhousie University German studies department says, "Education is so poor in this province that within a few years the only people served by the government of manpower will be to repair unskilled labor for Upper Canada."

Dr. Schwarz says the underlying problem is the heavily centralized education system run by the province.

The Graham commission report, a comprehensive munici-

Another spin-off of government education regulations that Dr. Schwarz would like to see removed is that they tend to force universities to the point of no lower entrance standards in order to enlarge the student body.

"The bigger that gets the bigger the pre-student great gets.

He says English is the course in most need of overhaul in provincial schools, and it is a subject that is weak across Canada.

"In senior high school, English is the only compulsory subject and even it has been reduced to a banal communications art which neglects written English and grammar," he says.

The effect is that Dr. Schwarz has freshmen who have never written an essay in their entire high school experience "and some are unable to string words together to form a single comprehensive or grammatically correct sentence."

It is the problem only in Nova Scotia.

"No, the American system is totally corrupt educationally apart from a handful of universities who have decent standards. The Canadian, and especially the Nova Scotian, system of education is on the same track."

pal review of the province, recommends major curriculum changes.

"You'll really be the end of quality education if they do it," Dr. Schwarz says. "If they turn curriculum decisions over to local areas they'll end up with rural areas with less sophistication standards than those in urban settings.

"The problem, as I see it, is that high school graduates in the province is not geared to produce any educated elite but produces persons with mediocre skills through an education system that reduces its content to the lowest common denominator."

Dr. Schwarz says one of the major tragedies of this system is that it not only denies the average student a chance to improve but also deprives gifted students.

"It's the most anti-social education system in the world."

Small Bridge Builder Now Champion Logger in BC

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP)—The real bull of the Canadian woods is no professional logger — in fact; he's an introspective wallflower who stands a lot less than six feet tall and tips the scales at a lean 150 pounds.

Soft-spoken Alan Boyko is a bridgebuilder during the week at MacMillan Bloedel's Taylor logging division on Vancouver Island. On weekends, he's the world champion in two logging sports and the Canadian titleholder in a fistful of others. He's won so many championships in 18 years of competitive logging events that he's lost track of some of them.

Boyko may not be a towering giant, but he packs a wallop that would break Paul Bunyan's kneecap. He shakes hands like a freight train complete and the tattoo on his right forearm has grown from garter snake to python proportions thanks to a muscle-building program that has turned his arms into tanned pistons.

Born and raised in Port Alberni, Boyko is a thoughtful quiet man who relishes antique bottles and potters around a basement cluttered with tools and a pinball machine, making coffee tables from log burls for family and friends. But put him on his favorite battlefield, a logging sports park, and he turns into a true "bull of the woods" — loggers' slang for top hand — and possibly the best all-round competitive logger this country has produced.

Size, he insists, is no substitute for skill. Boyko is one of the smallest but most successful competitors on the Canadian Loggers Sports Association's 15-meet British Columbia circuit, which covers Vancouver Island, the lower mainland and Fraser Valley.

"I've been in quite a number of logging sports events where there are guys a lot bigger than I am, over six feet and 200 pounds or more, said the 60-year-old bridgeman, a regular on the circuit since 1965. "If you can get mean enough and you're strong enough, a smaller man can come out on top."

Boyko specialized in two events that involve at might and dexterity with steel cables used in actual logging operations — eye splicing and the Molly Hogan race. He's the recognized world champion in both categories and utilizes skills he acquired on his job since joining MacMillan Bloedel at Franklin River in 1953 at 18 years of age.

"In eye splicing, you take a piece of three-quarter-inch cable and tie an a loop by weaving the strands together," Boyko explained. "In a logging camp you use an eye-spliced loop to pull the rigging back out of the bush."

He said the Molly Hogan race consists of joining two pieces of cable together by looping a nine-foot-long piece of line between the ends — a travelling tank that goes even tougher in competitive circumstances.

They call it the poor man's shackle."

Medicine Showman Tells Old Tales

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ernie West's memories are filled with 50-year-old tales of travelling medicine shows. He can recall hours talking about bottles of tonic, cakes of skin food and cackling patients.

Between his youth and his 76th birthday, Mr. West followed the vaudeville circuit and hawked countless cases of medicine to the gullible crowds throughout Ontario and the northern United States.

Mr. West was born in this city and lives here now. His father operated a livery service and he came from here embarked on his travelling show career.

"After father died in 1919, I ran away to the minstrel shows," he said in an interview. "I guess I thought I was Frank Sinatra."

But the minstrel shows did not hold him for long and in 1922 he joined Doc Baylor's travelling Indian Medicine Show.

Mr. West said he and his brother-in-law, Mel Forbes, are the last surviving members of the real travelling medicine shows.

"It's really a phenomenon with a medicine man; you are an actor, a salesman and a publicity man as well as yourself," he said.

"And the doctor, he was a genius—and he was a real doctor, not like a lot of the rest of them," said Mr. West about his employer.

"He spoke five languages and two of them were native Indian languages."

Wherever the travelling medicine show stopped in Ontario, whether it was Stratford or Ingersoll or Tillsonburg, it began 18 days of hawking medicine and doing skits.

Mr. West said the show put on three acts a night and only five persons did everything.

"If you repeated an act or sang the same song twice, you were fined five bucks by the Doc," Mr. West said.

"And you got a $5 fine for mentioning the word soap—it was always skin food—and if you were caught swearing or sitting around a tent it was another $5."

Mr. West said he was paid $55 a week and traveling expenses with Doc Baylor's show and that was "pretty big money" in those days.

As well as the skits and songs, there were the new-legendary medicines that would cure anything from stomach aches to warts.

"We had this one medicine; it was Epsom salts and iron and boiled tea for coloring and we hawked it as a way to stop stomach gripes," he said. "The ingredients cost six cents and we sold it for $1."

Then there was the cactus oil which was supposed to be so strong one drop would eat through sole leather in one minute.

"We'd get one man from the audience and put a drop of oil on this piece of leather and tell him to cut through it with a knife before the oil got through," he said.

"Well the leather was really soft belly leather that we hammered on an old railway track to look like shoe leather and the oil just soaked right through."

If such demonstrations were not enough to convince the audience of the value of the medicines, there was always a display of bottles on stage to win over the skeptical.

"One jar was supposed to contain a tape worm passed by someone who drank our tonic and it was 285 feet long," Mr. West said. "It really came out of a shoop."

Report Hits Hard at TV

CANBERRA (CP) — Regular television viewing may be socially and physically dangerous, a report released here contends.

Researchers who prepared the study claim the result may be social breakdown, alienation of the individual from society and himself, and a state resembling severe brain damage in the viewer.

The report, entitled A Choice of Futures: To Enlighten or Inform, is a comprehensive summary of international work on the effects of television on the human brain.

A team of 13 researchers carrying on the study for the Australian Post Office drew on studies carried out in various parts of the world including the United States, Canada, Britain and Europe.

Dr. Fred Emery, a senior research fellow in the centre for continuing education at Australian National University, heads the team.

The researchers claim that under the stimulus of television, the function of the left cortex of the brain—the centre of visual, analytical and calculative reasoning—is effectively reduced to tracking changes on the television screen.

Their work suggests that the continuous trance-like fixation of the television viewer is not "purposeful attention" but distraction.

Effects of color television may be more dangerous than black and white as the right cortex of the brain becomes occupied with processing the color signal. This cuts down the time it has for checking and cross-checking information, and reduces communication between both cortices or brain sections.

The researchers say television is used mostly by people wishing to escape from their own psychological problems and who are the least concerned with the outside world. Television isolates them from the real world and may result in the viewer being out of touch with reality for some time after the television set is switched off.

Your Horoscope

For Thursday, October 23

ARIES (March 21-April 19) This is not a good day to try to accomplish things alone. Other people's thinking will help you to avoid mistakes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to be extra-practical today. You could kid yourself that you have more resources than you have thus causing much wastefulness.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're in a happy-go-lucky mood. If home problems should interfere with your social desires take it in stride.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You're more content at home today. Things annoy you at work. You'll even get uptight if you have to leave the house to run an errand.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you try to have things all your own way with friends today. It's going to cost you far more than you bargained for.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You might get away with playing the big shot with strangers today but don't try it at home. They'll burst your bubble.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) Keep everything out in the open today. Hidden motives will necessitate a lot of fast talking to cover up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Keep your thoughts and ideas to yourself today. Other people's opinions will be wrong for you and could prove expensive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Continue to try to think in terms of helping others. You tend to be too self-centered. This could put you in a bad light.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep your nose to the grindstone. Don't try any new-fangled ideas. Things get done better by tried-and-true methods today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're lucky as you're dealing with a few friends today. Large groups or gatherings could cost you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be prepared to be flexible and able to change your thinking today or you'll find yourself locking horns with those at home.

To Your Good Health

Thoracic Syndrome Affects Chest Area

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please write something about thoracic syndrome, what causes it, what are the symptoms, and what can be done to relieve the pain?—Mrs. N.H.

These are chest area pains caused by abnormal pressure on certain spinal nerves as they pass from the lower spine through the neck. The particular nerves involved are those entering the upper chest (thoracic) space. Pressure may result, for example, from what is called a "cervical rib," an abnormal protrusion from one of the lower neck vertebrae. The nerve pressure can also result from a tightening of a muscle running from the back of the skull to the collar bone (scalenus muscle).

Because of the complexity of nerve and muscle systems involved in the cervical (neck) portion of the spine, an abnormality in any of the structures can produce a variety of complications. Certain positions or movements can exert pressures on nerve trunks or arteries, producing pain and numbness as far distant as the fingers.

An X-ray of the lower neck spine would disclose the cervical rib, which, if present, can be corrective surgically. Likewise, the tight muscle problem can be relieved with surgery.

Short of this there is little else to be done. The person must learn to avoid the positions or movements that provoke pressure and the pain. A neurologist can often determine the precise source of pressure and pain from the patient's symptoms.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you answer some questions about trichomoniasis? How is it contracted? How is it established without a doctor's care, if at all? What happens if it is left untreated?—Mrs. M.A.

This form of vaginitis is usually due to infection from a sexual partner. I don't know how one would treat the problem without the supervision of a physician. The trichomonas parasite must first be identified from appropriate tests before a specific medication can be prescribed to combat it. Also, it is important for the sexual partner to be treated at the same time to avoid cyclic infection and reinfection.

If left untreated, the progress would be the same as in any infection, with increased discomfort and vaginal discharge. Tip: women who become uncomfortable and vaginal discharge should look to their toilet habits. Toilet tissue should be used in a forward to back wiping motion. Readers will excuse the explicitness of this rather graphic but useful information, which can be the answer in a great many of the causes of vaginal trichomonas as well as of other, similar vaginal disturbances.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Some time ago you had an article in your column about a man whose urine was red after he ate red beets. My husband seems to have the same problem, bit his urine is not red. Do beets do the same thing to the bowels?

He is a heart patient and is using a blood thinner. Could this have something to do with it?—Mrs. N.K.

After eating heavily-pigmented food such as beets, the color can appear in the stool.

However, use of blood thinners, especially too high a dose, can cause subtle bleeding which may appear in the stool, urine or gums. If your husband notices blood, it should be reported promptly to his doctor. If it is only a red coloring that occurs after eating beets, then there is no problem.

Seaport Hostel End of the World

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Smack in the centre of this old seaport capital stands a three-story building with a sign that says "End Of The World Hostel."

The hostel, formerly a United Church children's home, opened last July and by the time it closed its doors for the summer season it had provided accommodation for 1,400 visitors from many parts of the world.

About 70 per cent of the visitors were Canadian, 20 per cent were American and the rest were from England, Europe, Mexico and Japan.

A member of the staff said the hostel, once considered exclusive accommodation for the young, was best this year to travellers in their 30s and 40s.

The United Church donated use of the building when suitable accomodation could not be found elsewhere. It was the hostel's fifth location in as many years.

The hostel operated with a staff of seven and financing from the department of the secretary of state.

The building was cancelled as a children's home a few months ago when the provincial government refused to continue subsidizing its operation. The last 19 children to occupy it were sent back to foster and boarding houses.

This summer was also profitable for hospitality homes in the province.

These are private dwellings in rural areas where homeowners provide meals and, in most cases, meals for tourists at rates ranging from $5 to $10 a night for singles.

The provincial government has been encouraging hospitality homes since 1973 and about 60 of them now are registered in the province.

The tourism department provides no funds for people wanting to set up such hospitality homes, but it can recommend individual operations to the rural development agency for interest-free loans which are repayable over five years.

There is no association in the province for hospitality home operators so detailed statistics on the number of homes are not available.

An experimental mini-hostel project started this summer and although it drew fewer visitors than had been anticipated it is being termed a success.

Five mini-hostels were set up in private homes around the province with funding provided by the recreation department. Owners were given $400 grants and permitted to charge $1 a night for rooms.

The mini-hostels were set up to encourage travellers, especially out-of-province tourists, to leave the Trans-Canada Highway and venture into small outports where they would be in closer contact with native people.

"We received late getting approval for the project and too late for good publicity," said a recreation department spokesman.

"However, if the project is renewed next year we will try to get more visitors staying in the houses."

He said participants in the program were satisfied with the results and are encouraging its renewal next year.

To Work In Space

MAINZ, West Germany (Reuter) — West German scientists and engineers will be operating in space by the early 1980s, Bonn's Research and Technology Minister Hans Matthofer, has forecast. But he said he did not see any "obvious advantage" in West Germany operating with the Soviet Union in space research as it does with the United States.

Opening lead — 2 ♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The utility one club opening is usually made with the balanced hand that is too weak for one notrump. Even with 19 high-card points, North opened one club. His jump bid to two on trumps showed this exact hand.

With 11 high-card points of his own, South merely raised to three notrump. North had been heading for the spade game all the time and proceeded to bid four spades to announce specifically that he had 19 or maybe 20 points with four spades and three cards in each other suit. South revealed his hand and decided to invite a slam by going to five spades. North's values were mostly in aces, kings and good trumps and he went on to the slam.

Mathematically, the slam is not a really good one. The ace of clubs must be lost. With all four trumps in one hand there is a sure trump loser and in any event the diamond queen must be located.

South started out by playing three rounds of trumps. East's first discard was the three of diamonds. He next one the jivel of clubs.

This diamond discard gave South all the help he needed. He didn't play diamonds right away, but when he got around to the jack he finessed against East and made thirteen.

You recommend a jump raise to three spades to set the suit. Later on you plan to take further action to show that you really have a tremendous hand opposite a forcing bid.

Pending Abolition Bill

Allmand Delays Three Hangings

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand announced Thursday that none of the nine death sentences imposed by the courts will be carried out or commuted before Parliament deals with a bill to abolish capital punishment.

Three stays of execution will next July 13 were issued Wednesday to give Parliament time to debate an abolition bill expected to be introduced before the end of the year.

Mr. Allmand indicated that judges may be empowered to impose longer mandatory sentences, without parole, for murder and that murder may be categorized in a different way.

Since 1967, the death sentence has been automatic for killing policemen or prison employees and has been imposed 14 times with the cabinet commuting five sentences to life in prison and staying three sentences. The other six are under appeal before the courts.

In all other convictions for murder the sentence has been life in prison.

Life has meant a minimum term of 10 years in prison, since the law was amended in 1972, and a maximum of 20 years. The rest of the life sentence is to be decided by the National Parole Board, to which prisoners released on parole are supposed to report for the rest of their lives.

Mr. Allmand told the Ontario Association of Police during a meeting here Wednesday that judges may be empowered to impose a mandatory term of imprisonment longer than 20 years.

Although minimum terms must be served before parole is granted, the National Parole Board may release such prisoners on day parole and penitentiary officers may release them on what are called "temporary absences" — leaves of several days for various reasons.

Real Chartrand, whose death sentence was stayed in July 15, was on a temporary absence from a prison psychiatric centre when he shot Constable Gabriel Dupont dead during a bank robbery in Ste. Therese, Que., two years ago.

Chartrand and Rene Vaillancourt, who shot down a Toronto policeman after a 1973 bank robbery, were to be hanged Oct. 21. Vaillancourt was out on bail when he shot the policeman.

John Francis Connearney, who had escaped from a Rhode Island prison, was trying to get rid of a gun when shopped by police in Lasalle, a suburb of Montreal. A constable was killed during the ensuing gunfight.

Connearney was to be hanged Friday. His death sentence also was stayed until July 15.

Mr. Allmand told the police that harsh penalties are not the key to a more stable society. Canadian adults have to provide a better example to children at home, in school and in the community, he said.

—Of a lineup of about 15 Metropolitan Toronto policemen walked out when Mr. Allmand arrived at the meeting and several policemen from Waterloo, Ont., walked out later as Mr. Allmand, answering questions, said a life sentence does not mean life in prison.

Basic Wage Jump Urged by Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) — Lower-income workers may be eligible for more than the $600 first-year pay increase originally provided for under the federal anti-inflation program.

An unspecified boost will be included in proposed changes going to cabinet after a two-day federal-provincial conference of finance and labor ministers ends today.

The provincial ministers generally agreed Wednesday that the basic wage jump allowed before percentage controls apply—should be more than $600. They declined to mention specific figures.

Federal Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said he is "particularly sympathetic" to such an increase. However, the decision on this and other requested changes will have to be made by cabinet.

The provinces proposed an array of amendments during the 5½-hour closed session Wednesday.

But Mr. Macdonald told reporters the program has won general support, despite some hedging by Alberta.

Merv Leitch, Alberta's finance minister, said he will hold a commitment to the program for two weeks because it may adversely affect investment in the wealthy, but industry-short province.

Delegates from several provinces said they want the federal program scaled more strictly than indicated so there is a minimum of "exemptions and loopholes" which could destroy its credibility with the public.

Ontario Treasurer Darcy McKeough said a special surtax would restrict the incomes of professionals more effectively, Mr. Macdonald said this will be given serious consideration.

Today, the ministers were to discuss the specific federal requests for controls on rents and professional incomes, both under provincial jurisdiction. The other ministers were to meet separately this afternoon.

The program basically limits wage increases to 10 per cent in the first year and restricts price increases to that amount needed to cover increased costs. Dividends have been frozen for a year at the level paid in the company's last fiscal year, even if it means a roll-back in dividends now being paid.

CUPE Continues Protest

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) continued Wednesday to lay solid groundwork for an all out attack on the federal government's new anti-inflation program. Workers Back on Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Construction workers began returning to their jobs today at the main Olympic site and union officials said a solution is imminent in the dispute which had halted work on the mammoth project since Wednesday. The 3,000 workers walked out in protest against the existence of what they described as a police blacklist, designed to keep troublesome workers from the project. As a result, all work was stopped at the Velodrome, swimming pools and the 70,000-seat main Olympic stadium.

Postal Strife

Criticism Mounts Against Strike

OTTAWA (CP) — Political criticism of the government handling of the postal dispute mounted Wednesday as the national strike by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers continued through its second day.

While Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said the postal workers should be realistic and settle on a wage package offered by the government, Progressive Conservative and NDP spokesmen criticized him for negotiating through the media.

The union, representing 22,000 postal clerks and mail handlers, wants to settle non-wage issues before agreeing to any wage settlement. But Mr. Mackasey says he wants the wage question agreed to first.

Speaking to reporters outside the Commons, Mr. Mackasey said the post office was willing to discuss non-monetary issues as long as it was understood that once other questions are settled, wages would be as proposed in a conciliation report.

The report, prepared by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court, recommends pay increases totalling $720 in four stages over 28 months, average hourly pay now is $4.50.

The proposal was accepted by Mr. Mackasey but the postal workers are asking for pay raises totalling $2.71 over 27 months dating back to October, 1974.

The union also wants the issue of the use of casual non-union labor, seniority, hours of work and other issues resolved before wages are discussed.

Mr. Mackasey said in the Commons that the union should resume negotiations and ask its members to return to work after talks begin again. Negotiations failed Monday night.

But Mr. Mackasey faced attacks in the House from opposition MPs, especially from Cyril Symes (NDP—Sault Ste. Marie) who said the federal treasury board should take over negotiations.

Saskatchewan Balks Economic Controls

REGINA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau failed Wednesday to convince the Saskatchewan Federation of Labor to abide by his government's recently-announced wage and price guidelines.

Federation president George Semeniuk emerged from a meeting with the prime minister to declare the labor group's firm opposition to the controls. He said protest strikes are one possible tactic labor groups may decide to use to fight the legislation.

Mr. Semeniuk said wages are already controlled by the collective bargaining process and the controls on profits will be ineffective.

The controls would limit salary increases to 10 per cent generally and limit price increases to the amount needed to cover increased costs.

The prime minister, however, did have some success, winning support at a private meeting with businessmen, being warmly received at speeches here and in Assiniboia, Sask., and easily deflecting critical questions at a news conference.

In his speeches, Mr. Trudeau elaborated on the controls, which Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney described as vague and potentially unfair to many groups.

Mr. Trudeau rebutted various criticisms made by opponents of the controls, saying they may not have worked in other countries but in those cases the controls were universal.

He noted that in some cases, governments attempted to prevent any wage or price increases.

Police Wait Out Siege

MONASTEREVIN, Ireland (AP) — Police say they are going to wait out a besieged Irish Republican Army terrorist holding kidnapped Dutch industrialist Tiede Herrema as the second floor of a row house.

"We just know we can persuade him to see he has nothing to gain by killing the Dutchman," one detective said early today as the siege went into the third day.

Searchlights illuminated the house where terrorist Eddie Gallagher and a young woman were holding Herrema upstairs while police and troops occupied the ground floor.

Besieging troops pitched tents for shelter, and occupants of neighboring houses sold tea and sandwiches from front-door counters.

Preview of progress in readying Bancroft-area Madawaska Mine for production was given group of visiting financiers, mining professionals and politicians Wednesday. Bancroft Uranium Mine May Employ 300 People

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

BANCROFT — By 1977, reactivation of this area's known uranium site will employ 300.

That's the latest estimate given by Madawaska Mines Ltd. as it shaped up the scale of its preparations for re-opening the site to a select group of professional viewers Wednesday.

The visitors included representatives of financial houses, the mining industry, politicians and business people.

The group was called in by Madawaska to view its progress in preparing the mine for production — to be sold in the Russian-dominated European agency AGIP.

Information sheets handed the group — as it toured the mine — show an 80-man workforce now at rehabilitating installations closed more than a decade ago — included these estimates:

— Production status is scheduled for July 1976.

— By 1977 Madawaska will be producing 1,500 tons of ore daily and employing 300.

— Proven and probably reserve are 1,022,000 tons with another "inferred" 1,600,000 tons which would produce a total of 6 million pounds of uranium.

But exploration programs to develop further resources will be carried out as production goes on.

"There is no mine in this country that knows its ultimate reserves, said John Donnelly, assistant — treasurer of the Madawaska — the company formed United States and Canadian corporations to mine the uranium after the Italian contract was approved earlier this year by the federal government.

But federal requirements also demand that 30 per cent of reserves be kept for possible future domestic needs.

Some $5,500,000 is being spent renewing facilities and installing new equipment, said Mr. Donnelly. Preparatory work will include doubling the mine's ventilation capacity.

Re-opening of the mine has been hailed with expectancy in an area that was economically hit in the early 1960s when world demand forced its closing.

As the Faraday Uranium Mine it became the mine of the Bancroft area when it opened in 1957.

Prospects for a renewal gathered impetus late last year when it was learned that Federal Resources Corp. of Salt Lake City, and Consolidated Canadian Faraday were seeking approval for the Italian contract.

The U.S. corporation owns 51 per cent of the Madawaska operation.

Any influx of workers generated by the mine should present no problems in nearby Bancroft, said Reeve Russell Hawley, as he toured the facilities with other local politicians.

The village now has municipal services and subdivisions are being planned.

He also figures much of the estimated 300 — man peak workforce are already in the region — from the time Faraday closed — and now live within working distance.

His community of 2,300 — where provincial government agencies are now an influential staple — also looks forward to the economic boost he foresees.

"You can't put a payroll of the size this mine will generate into a small centre like Bancroft and not feel the effects of it," said Reeve Hawley.

Brighton Hockey Shifts to Colborne

BY JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — Minor Hockey has been salvaged by the efforts of the parents, officials from the village and townships councils and Colborne Lions.

On Tuesday, the Ministry of Labor ordered the Brighton arena closed because the roof could collapse under a heavy snowfall and was unsafe. The entire minor hockey program and all other scheduled programs had to be cancelled. More than 2,000 people were affected by the closing including the figure skating club which has been cancelled for the year.

The village and township are waiting for the result of a survey of Murray township residents to see if they will join with the two Brighton in a cooperative effort to build a new arena in Brighton. The plan has met with opposition in Murray because of the proposed location of the arena in Brighton Village.

The program will be shifted to Colborne, if most of the parents agree to provide transportation in a telephone survey being done today, and will be held in non-prime time, said Bill Rorabeck, a parks commissioner.

"We have worked a time agreement with Colborne and hope we will be a limited time guest arena," he said. "But we hope to have this remodeled soon, then and if the roof on the old rink can be strengthened we will begin holding practices there," Mr. Rorabeck said.

The organizers were worried about the increased cost per child to use the Colborne facility but Mr. Rorabeck said this may have been solved.

"Both the village and Township councils met this evening and representatives of the two information boards will be monies available to pay for the extra fees," he said. "It will probably come from the maintenance and repair money set aside in the budget which is no longer needed," Mr. Rorabeck said.

"It is really great to see what can happen when your back is against the wall and so many people work together," Mr. Rorabeck said.

"There were hundreds of kids on the roads around 1970," said Al MacNeill, but now the numbers have dwindled. However, there has been an increase in the number of girls staying at the hostel because they come in bicycle groups from the United States.

Many Residents Favor Shopping Mall Near Picton

PICTON — Prince Edward County planner Brandon Alexander recently told a public meeting here that when shopping plazas are constructed on the outskirts of small towns the small stores are "finished." The official plan for Prince Edward does not support a mall near Picton.

A poll of Picton shoppers Wednesday indicated that most of them visit nearby malls and would be eager to patronize a plaza on the fringe of this town.

JAMES CORY

James Cory, a Picton public works employee says he would like to see a mall constructed near Picton as he would then be spared the drive to Belleville. He added he prefers to shop in a mall because all stores are under one roof for convenience.

GLORIA FERGUSON

Gloria Ferguson of Picton says she does not regularly patronize the shopping plazas in neighboring communities but she would shop in a mall, if it were built a the outskirts of Picton. She said any new shopping development should be at the east end of Picton.

"It would be a good thing, I think," she observed.

NANCY CHARLTON

Nancy Charlton, an employee at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital, says if there were a plaza near Picton she could shop without driving to the malls in other communities. She said she now is a regular shopper at the Quinte Mall, Sagonee Mall, the Belleville Plaza and Frontenac Mall.

GERALD COURTNEY

Gerald Courtney, a Picton Public Works employee, says he is in favor of a mall near Picton for added shopper convenience. He says he now visits the Quinte Mall and noted that a plaza here would make this unnecessary.

GERRY VELTHUIS

A Picton housewife, Gerry Velthuis, said she would like to see Picton's Main Street transformed into a giant mall with traffic re-routed to bypass the downtown area. She suggested off-street parking and a new route for through traffic.

"These are modern times and you have to do something," she asserted.

MARTY REYNARD

Marty Reynard of the Paradox Boutique, says he would not be concerned if a mall were constructed outside town.

"If your merchandise is good and it is known a mall won't hurt you," he commented.

Mr. Reynard added that he dislikes "gimmicks" in business such as the Gold Cup shoppers festival promoted by Picton merchants.

Organizers Defend Ticket Sales Method

TRENTON — A variety show being sponsored by the Canadian Legion Branch 110 has hired local students to do telephone canvassing to sell tickets for the Nov. 15 event and some of the workers have earned no money for their labor because they are being paid on a commission basis, said Michael Dufrio, Advance man for I.M. Garden Shows of Toronto.

"Some of the kids have not earned anything yet because ticket sales are going slowly," Mr. Dufrio said Wednesday. "I have hired 10 local students and they are working on a rotating basis until I discover which are the best salespeople and then I will let the rest go," he said.

The students between the ages of 14-17 work four hours nightly contacting listings in the Trenton telephone directory, reading a prepared presentation provided by Mr. Dufrio and the company.

"They are just kids and that is part of the problem when Mr. Whittle (George Whittle legion president) has been receiving complaints that we are asking for donations," Mr. Dufrio said.

The Trenton Legion has been paid a flat fee of $400 to sponsor the event and this money will be donated to the hospital for its 25th anniversary fund and in an interview Mr. Whittle said, this was all the funds the town would receive.

"The presentation reads — we are helping to raise money for the Legion's community projects such as helping unprovisioned children and minor sports."

The local residents are offered a choice of ticket prices, from the $3.00 children's ticket to the $12.50 family plan (two adults and four children) and if they do not express an interest in the show the presentation continues.

"... possibly you could help out in a very important way. We are inviting a large number of less fortunate persons to attend this fine show absolutely free," and then the prospective customer is asked to sponsor some of these free tickets at the regular prices.

Mr. Dufrio said he has already called five local charitable homes and offered them the tickets, but that he would not release their names. Paul Dempsky, manager of I.M. Garden shows said the tickets are just issued to the institutions, saying this had probably already been done, and the company took the chance on whether or not it would recover the funds.

Some of the people say they will mail the money in for tickets but Mr. Dufrio says if he receives 40 per cent of them he is lucky.

"It is surprising how many people will say yes to anything just to get one of the kids off the phone but they usually purchase the tickets after we do followup calls and visit," he said.

Mr. Dufrio and Mr. Dempsky are going to meet with the legion executive on Friday night to straighten out any problems at the request of the local association.

On the Telephone

A travelling variety show being sponsored by Trenton Royal Canadian Legion has hired ten Trenton students to sell tickets for the Nov. 15 event. The I.M. Garden show company, has been criticized by legion president, George Whittle who says he has received complaints that the ticket sellers have been asking for donations if they cannot sell tickets.

Urban Guerrilla Violence is a Possibility in Canadian Cities by 1980s

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

The other evening I watched the movie "Tupamaro" in the downtown Toronto theatre specializing in avant-garde, revolutionary and New Left films.

It was a crudely-done, but, nevertheless in its own way, effective film report on Uruguay's urban guerilla movement named after an obscure Indian chief of the 18th century brutally tortured to death by the Spanish.

Some of you might have seen the commercialized version of the same film theme in the magnificent political suspense piece called State of Siege by the film-maker Costa Gravas — to also did the same kind of film, called Z, about recent Greek politics.

The film "Tupamaro" was being shown in the same week in which a Metropolitan Toronto bid kidnap and ransom case, these had been published, appreciate a possible future urban guerrilla could function in Canadian cities.

Indeed a good part of my movie in the Tupamaros either than general curiosity about the film is a nagging fear that it may persist in Western democracies with the social unrest and the chronic fragmentation of our societies, that the Tupamaros represent the future.

And it is a frightening supposition of how easily a controlled and well-organized small cadre of revolutionaries can bring about nearly total upheaval in an urban community.

The Tupamaros' style for a long time was not kill or hurt people, but rob, the victims being easily identifiable members of what they called "the three institutions, banks and cattle, which suck the blood of the people."

Kidnap victims are kept in so-called "people's prisons," usually the caged basement of an affluent Tupamaro member where they are questioned about their support of the status quo, and on what the "people's court" has to do, never tortured.

The results of this were comments about good treatment and the values system of such revolutionaries being misunderstood when the prisoners were released, usually to a large press conference.

"A wealthy Uruguayan politician who not long ago in my after his first kidnapping was taken again for a 72-hour stay, was merely visited by the guerrillas as he verbally indicated, "interrogated" by them after all.

There is the story of a casino robbed by a superbly-organized Tupamaro band; then, it was raided a second time when the manager had complained to the press that these "supporters of the people" had also stolen the casino payroll.

In the second raid, the exact amount of the payroll was put back in the till by the Tupamaros.

But later in the mid-70s, murder, street fights, police tortures changed that image. A police torture victim was found by Tupamaros in 1976 gave indication of the growing size of the organization, made up mainly of white collar and professional people.

They are the ones you would think would be under guerrilla movements important by changing social attitudes in the courts, business and the professions. But instead, many of them opted for revolution.

If you think Montevideo's terror could never be repeated in Toronto, Montreal or Vancouver, neither our police nor our armed forces share your optimism.

They are concerned internal violence could not be let in the 80s as our social fabric is fractured more and more by growing differences in age, which cannot be resolved.

In Toronto, it is unusual to hear warnings from among a community of 14,000 Uruguyans who fled the terror that they already see some of the same symptoms here which led to the urban guerrillas back home.

Strike: Everybody Loses

So the country has been plunged into yet another postal strike.

As of Monday night things had looked a little more hopeful. True, there had been Postmaster-General Mackasey's ultimatum — to accept a conciliation board's offer, or go on strike — but there were hopes the postal workers would go along with it — and especially in view of the government's anti-inflation measures.

Instead, the postal side reacted angrily. Mr. Mackasey should not be faulted for his stand, for if there is one thing that traditionally is lacking on the Government side it is firmness. Strikes on the other hand have cost Canada so many lost working days that it has one of the worst records in this regard in the western world.

There may be sympathy with postal and other workers caught in these inflationary times. There are many inequities, but then this country is built on the competition that for a long time rewarded a man according to his skills and competence. This has been superseded to a large extent by everyone, regardless of skill, education et al, claiming as much from the system as they can. This is what has fired inflation and brought us to the brink of monetary and economic collapse.

Somewhere along the line Canadians must realize they have to make do with less, in terms of both money and material possessions. At the same time they must work to produce more as a hedge against rising prices and inflation. Where the postal workers are concerned there are other considerations, such as automation and the threat to job security, but it appears to have been on the money issue that the negotiations have broken down.

The strike promises to be a long one, with all the disruption and inconvenience to the public and the economy that that entails. In the end everybody loses

Need for Unanimity

Belleville's Centennial in 1978 is still some way off, but as Mayor Ben Corke reminded Kiwanians recently preparations are under way.

We have no doubt everything will be in readiness when the year's events get under way but there is some element of speaking with different tongues in the statements made thus far on the subject.

Thus Centennial chairman Larry Kells was saying last July that the steering committee is a group of volunteers supported by the Chamber of Commerce working closely with city hall.

The committee of 15 people meets with Mr. Kells to discuss ideas for involving people and associations in the planning and celebration, and Mr. Kells noted then that "you can derive many new ideas when 15 people provide the input."

Very good, but now we have Mr. Corke saying professional assistance is needed in the preparation and implementation of the year's activities. He refers in this context to the advertising of the programs prior to and during centennial year.

He says too that the Mayor will be involved daily in celebrations and will need assistance. At the same time he says responsibility for the success of the year cannot be delegated to other city officials, and that the mayor should put his own stamp of approval and participation on programs.

Certainly the Mayor's stamp of approval is important, but so too is a consensus where the cooperative effort Mr. Kells speaks of is concerned. The Mayor will have to concern himself with routine city matters as well, and undoubtedly this is what Mr. Corke has in mind when he speaks of the need for assistance.

It will be an onerous period for the mayor then and the burden should not have to fall to excess on any one person.

The first battle of the English Civil War was fought 331 years ago today—in 1642—at Edge Hill, Warwickshire. For the first 18 months, King Charles I was winning, owing to the superiority of his cavalry. The Parliamentary army was confined to the southeast of England and London. Oliver Cromwell's development of Ironsides turned the tide by 1644, forcing Charles to flee to Scotland. Cromwell then defeated the Scottish army and the king was captured and executed in 1649. The House of Lords was later abolished.

Dollar Subject to Conflicting Pressures

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Foreign reaction to Canada's economic-restraint program will be obvious soon as the focus shifts to the Canadian dollar on foreign-exchange markets.

The markets' initial reaction was negative, as the dollar dropped amid fears that foreign investors would sell out their Canadian securities.

No such dumping seems to have taken place yet—and possibly because of a shortage of investors who feel the buying—and so the dollar has stabilized for the time being at just over 97 cents (U.S.).

The restraint program contains a combination of positive and negative factors affecting the dollar. On the positive side:

—The freezing of dividends at current levels for at least a year will reduce the outflow of Canadian funds. This is "a direct exchange control and therefore a plus for the Canadian dollar," says Bob Korusa of Wood Gundy Ltd., investment dealers, Toronto.

—Since one cause of the dollar's decline during the past year has been foreign concern about Canada's super inflation, the restraint program could restore confidence in our ability to manage our own economy.

—If Canadian production costs, especially labor, were to level off as a result of the restraint program, our export trade might pull out of its disastrous slump.

The negative side consists of the danger of a flight of capital from Canada, should foreign investment sentiment focus on how the restraint program affects capital investment here (rather than on the government's new commitment to economic leadership).

As economist at one large Canadian brokerage firm says the investment industry has abundant evidence of a decline in confidence in Canadian enterprise on the part of both foreigners and Canadians.

The important question, this economist says, is how long these investors will be prepared to wait for the Trudeau government to show how far it intends to go in the direction of expropriating profits and dividends.

This was a worrisome question—because of federal and provincial governments' grabbing of oil, gas and mining taxes and royalties—long before the Oct. 14 announcement of new direct controls.

The government's answer, as much comfort to foreign investors. The Trudeau cabinet would cancel everything chose the diffused danger of a 10-cent dollar in preference to the direct political threat of being branded "anti-on business."

Does the foreign-exchange value of the Canadian dollar make any difference to Canadians—apart from bankers and tourists?

The answer is that it makes a great deal of difference to some important Canadian industries.

A drop in the dollar, if it went far enough, would be fatal to a good many export-based businesses and send our unemployment higher than ever.

Non-residents who invest in Canadian property and financial assets will, like Canadians themselves, be looking to Ottawa for some sign that the Trudeau cabinet intends to apply restraint to its own operations.

Politicians and bureaucrats like to pose as innocent bystanders, forced by the electorate to hand out more and more millions of dollars to them than using financial discretion.

That pose is no longer valid. A majority government has the power to curb the most assertiveness of the bureaucracy—they can be changed by statute.

If some reasonable restraint on government spending doesn't soon emerge, the credibility of the restraint program will be diminished—to the detriment, not least of all, of the Canadian dollar.

Restraint A Bind For NDP

By DON O'HEARN

Queens Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — It should be fascinating watching how the NDP handles the wage freeze when the session opens next week.

It seems certain that the party will be under pressure. And it could be a pressure that is hard to handle.

Through common sense, if nothing else, it will want to go along with the wage restraints.

But will it be able to stand up to Big Brother?

Big Brother with the NDP in Ontario, of course, is Big Labor.

And Big Labor has made it clear that it is opposed to the wage restraints.

Its public position has been foolish, with the charge that wage-earners are being made a whipping boy. Just as foolish as its earlier protestations that high wages are not a factor in inflation.

The frustration will come in seeing just how much it is stuck or is willing to be stuck.

With the rare exception, the NDP-CCF has taken a toady position to Big Labor over the years.

When Big Labor has spoken it has backed.

But on the restraint question how far can it bark?

Through self-interest if nothing else the leadership of Big Labor has to complain. Wage ceilings knock out realistic bargaining, and with this much of a justification, or at least lame sales value, of leadership.

But that side of the NDP world is dedicated to the public good as against the labor good and that the public good is essential.

A problem, a problem! And more including the opposition group, can't wait to see what the party offers.

Will the Ontario party perhaps follow the lead of Barrett in B.C., who defied labor with his back-to-work legislation.

The alternatives are considerably different.

Labor never had the dominance over B.C. that it has exercised over the NDP here.

OCTOBER 23, 1955

Acting on the request of 30 residents of the Southview-Goldfale area in the Parkwood Heights district, council voted unanimously to install six culverts across Goldfale Road to drain off surface water which floods the area when it rains. Cost of the work will be approximately $1,000.

Within the last few days approximately 165 pounds of muskies have been landed by fishermen of the city. All were caught in the vicinity of Sprague's Island. Six of the fish, ranging in weight from 15 to 20 pounds, were on display in the window of Black's meat store on Bridge St. East recently.

The shops run by barbers and hairdressers here will close on Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. during eleven months of the year, then staying open during December, according to a by-law passed recently because of a petition submitted by four-fifths of Belleville's hairdressers and barber shop owners. A penalty of $50 or six months in jail will be given if the law is broken.

Sunday Opening

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Recently there has been much discussion on the topic of Sunday opening for supermarkets.

Would you be kind enough to publish in your paper, the following statement which the members of the Belleville Ministerial Association wish to issue in their last monthly meeting.

"After a concerned discussion about the matter of Sunday opening, we, as a group of members of the Belleville Ministerial Association wish to express our common conviction that the keeping of the Lord's Day as a day of rest and worship is essential for the preservation of a desirable quality of family and social life.

We encourage members of our congregation to make known their feelings about Sunday openings of supermarkets to their elected government representatives."

Juneau Found 'Parachuting' into Riding Perilous Experience

By RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Surveying the surprising scene of Prime Minister Trudeau's stunning rebuff in Hochelaga where his hand-picked candidate, Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier Juneau was so badly beaten in the by-election, Senator Eugene Forsey, Parliament's resident historical sage, says not to be surprised.

But think of it for a moment. Pierre Juneau, comfortable in his $50,000-a-year chair at the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, giving it up— small sacrifice, he must likely have thought — to oblige the Prime Minister by going for the supposedly soft and easy seat of Hochelaga, created by the resignation of former Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier since departed for Paris as Canadian Ambassador to France.

Hochelaga in Montreal where, traditionally, only Liberals win and Conservatives always lose.

And Pierre Juneau, big name, already in advance a cabinet minister, in the best possible spot to funnel federal funds into the low-income, east end big city riding where much of the living is done on welfare and unemployment insurance.

Then the winner, Conservative candidate Jacquin Lavoie, a young lawyer, ambitious, determined, hard-working, but by comparison to the glamorous Pierre Juneau, a political nobody, really.

It should never have happened.

But not for the Liberals to speak ill, considering Eugene Forsey.

For the Conservatives to rejoice.

Neither party did it, he says.

The people did.

And Jacques Lavoie — not as a Tory nor a Grit, an NDP or Independent party candidate, weren't read by the voters and didn't matter — got a man who parachuted.

Pierre Juneau, with the Prime Minister's blessing upon his head, was parachuted in and the voters shot him down before he could land and return to Ottawa, the Department of Communications offices, the Cabinet and the Commons, seldom again to be seen in the riding.

Jacques Lavoie was trying for the third time for the riding. He knew, after two elections, who was behind the doors on which he knocked to win this time. Knew their success in trials and tribulations.

He was sick of Hochelaga. He had an office there, and through four years and three election campaigns he operated it as a clearing house for people's troubles with the Ottawa bureaucracy; pensions, family allowances, old age pensions, unemployment insurance, the lot.

Even unelected, he was the working MP rather than Gerard Pelletier who was always busy in Ottawa, as they knew so he would be Pierre Juneau if they elected him.

Jacques Lavoie was still working the night of his defeat triumph.

He grabbed a bullhorn and delivered to the crowd that he'd be on the job "as usual," their trouble-chosen next day, but please let him sleep in until 7.30 a.m.

Election by parachute is seldom a safe operation.

It is particularly dangerous when the government is in difficulty and the candidate an "instant cabinet minister," brought into the magic power circle at the last minute.

The classic case of the shooting of the cabinet - parachutist was that of General A. G. L. McNaughton.

He was dropped into the Outario riding of Grey North as the new defence minister by Mackenzie King after the Cabinet Minister had fired James L. Ralston for insisting on conscription.

It was the famous by-election of 1945 — John Diefenbaker and George Hees campaigned for the Conservative Garfield Case — and General McNaughton rode down from Ottawa in one of the Governor General's private railway cars.

He had the plush coach parked on a back-of-the-yard track, out of sight, he hoped, of busybody news photographers.

But they quickly found it, and the huge outside press corps — even THE NEW YORK TIMES was there — made a sensational discovery with the local taxpayers that the Governor General seemed to think he had been appointed and that he was giving the riding a patriotic duty to confirm it.

They rejected him, and took the key from the door.

The General, still under the illusion he was a Member of Parliament and a cabinet minister, and that elections were a nuisance, tried again in Saskatchewan's Qu'Appelle.

Same political fatality. The parachute failed.

But each time, in Grey North, Qu'Appelle, and Hochelaga, it was the local candidate that did it.

Not the party, and especially not the Prime Minister whose blessing seemed to be worth the parachute it's attached to.

Navy League Tradition Part of UCS Community

Tradition and responsibility are the two key words behind the Belleville Sea Cadets Chapter of the Navy League of Canada.

More than 40 boys and two girls, between the ages of 12 and 18 combine fellowship and skill while learning the traditional ways of the navy.

Skills such as survival in the winter, boating, navigation, life saving and even driver education are part of the League's program.

And, says president Reg Morry, one of the most important part is the Navy League Band, a regular at many parades in Belleville.

One of the 15 United Community Service organizations, the Sea Cadets operate on $3,800 yearly grant from the United War drive, while supplementing their budget with fund drives for special projects such as the purchase of boats.

"The assistance UCS provides allows us to put more time and effort into the training," said Mr. Morry.

The Navy League of Canada, a national association with committees such as the Sea Cadets operating under their banner has operated in Belleville for almost 50 years.

Barry Bevvan, commanding officer of the local cadets, said the league is also sponsored by the Armed Forces and Navy League of Canada which is a source for special courses and speakers.

There are at least 50 groups of cadets in Ontario and all now are open to girls. Branches stage competitions regularity with each other.

Most summers, senior members spend working with the Coast Guard in British Columbia while camping trips even in the winter, aren't uncommon. And, says Mr. Morry, this is all just part of the training.

"Anyone that's willing to accept discipline is welcome," he said.

The barracks, located on Front St. near the harbor are open seven days a week and are becoming a centre for jam sessions and discussion groups. "They can relax there and participate," said Mr. Morry.

Art Work On Display

By SUSAN MCCONNELL
Staff Reporter

The Eastern Ontario Art Association has just unveiled their 17th annual juried exhibition with 48 paintings, 12 paintings, sculptures and crafts — by both professionals and amateurs.

The display at Corby Public Library until Oct. 31 before moving to Picton, Port Hope and Whitby, is the final selection by jurors from the 133 pieces originally entered.

The art works were judged by Francis Smith, curator of a Kingston gallery and Dorothy Farr, a member of the department of art at Queen's University.

This year new purchase awards were made by the Belleville Art Association, hosts of the show in Belleville and Belleville Transit Commission. Carol Reynolds with River Rocks was the art association's choice while Helen Graham with Harbour at Port-Aux-Basques and Dorothy Brown with A New Gyre, won the Transit Commission awards.

Developer and Hydro At Odds Over Power

BY AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Kennington Gardens developer Reg Breault and Ontario Hydro don't see eye to eye on the provision of power to "executive style" homes the builder says he will soon begin just outside Belleville city limits.

Mr. Breault said Wednesday he wants, at best, usable underground power distribution, but added he will compromise his conception of a "quality subdivision" with use of concrete poles, and a single strand of overhead line.

He said he wants an "aesthetically pleasing" 16-acre, 71-home subdivision just north of Hatter Dr. in Sidney township.

"I take pride in my work. I want people to say 'you did a good job', he said Wednesday.

On the other hand, Ontario Hydro spokesmen said policy dictates no concrete poles for rural power distribution. Two options are offered. Underground wiring, but with transformers on front lawns in special boxes that Mr. Breault calls ugly and overhead wires with lines strung on wooden poles.

Mr. Breault said he is not pleased with either option nor with other available alternative.

Ontario Hydro spokesmen said the provincial utility cannot fill Mr. Breault's preference for which the developer said he is willing to pay any extra costs. Hydro says it wants to provide what it considers optimum service, and the availability of equipment to service concrete poles.

If a transformer on a concrete pole needs repair, the repairmen couldn't climb the pole using spurs. A special truck-equipped with a bucket (a "cherry picker")-would be required, said hydro.

Hydro says only one such truck exists in the Frankford based area that extends as far as Campbellford.

A spokesman in the regional office in Belleville said it's not a case of ignoring aesthetics. Norm Manning said Wednesday appearances are considered more so now than we have in the past."

"We are certainly thinking aesthetically as much as its economically possible. Hydro tries to provide the best service for all customers at the lowest rates.

To make an exception for a subdivision in "urban suburbia" outside a city's limits would mean another customer in the true rural area would in effect, subsidize such subdivision homeowners, he said.

Hydro provides its underground and wooden-pole overhead distribution without charge. All exceptions must be paid for by a homeowner or a developer.

Currently, said Mr. Breault, he is uncertain what he will chose for the development's power distribution system.

Gravel Pit Draws More Objections

BRIGHTON — Confusion and controversy about council's recent decision to approve the opening of a commercial gravel pit in the village continues as councillors have tested a statement to the ministry of natural resources objecting to the pit as an environmental threat.

The resolution, made public Wednesday, says council was "objecting to the environmental damage that may or could occur with the opening of the pit."

Shirley Patterson, village clerk said council had never had the final say on the matter but it had just ruled whether the pit was legal under in the towns official plan as a nonconforming use.

The past two council meetings have been the scene of angry confrontations between homeowners living on the road that will be used by the trucks servicing the proposed pit and the principals involved it the removal operation of the aggragate.

Agr groups with objections must present them to the ministry office in Napanee and they will be forwarded to Toronto where a decision will be made on the date for a hearing.

Juried Show Opens

Bea Williamson, exhibition coordinator for the annual Eastern Ontario Association Juried Art Show, shows two different types of art displayed at Corby Library. Her sculpture The Struggle, enhances the Rose Baker award winning painting Long Ago Butterflies by Marjorie Binnerson.

Frankford Water Tank To be Ready by 1976

FRANKFORD — Construction of a new 200,000-gallon holding tank to streamline distribution of this village's water supply is expected to start next week.

Hugh O'Neil, MPP Quinte, has announced that the province's environment ministry has awarded a contract for constructing of the elevated steel tank and a water pumping station.

The contract — of Maple Engineering and Construction Ltd. — is for $234,460.

The project is to be completed by December, 1976, said Mr. O'Neil.

The new tank will replace an existing facility and is required to meet demands of village growth, said Reeve Carman Miket.

Higher elevation of the new tank will also permit higher pumping pressure to village homes on the east side of the Trent River, he said.

Students Form Theatre Group for Children

Teen-agers forming a theatre group is not a new idea, but Larry Taylor, theatre arts instructor at Picton Secondary School, has organized a group of 10 from Grad Grades 11 and 12 students like a theatre performing only children's plays and only those written by Canadian authors and about Canadian subjects.

Mr. Taylor, a performer for Belleville Theatre Guild in its latest production Around About 1833-34, said the theatre was the students' idea and he's backing them up.

Their first production Pigeals by Janie Schorch of the Studio Lab Theatre, Toronto — will be performed Dec. 6 in Picton United Church Hall for children of the Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. employees.

Teeth Filling Material Commercially Made

LONDON (CP) — A filling material for teeth, invented at the laboratory of the British Government Chemist, which has many advantages over material used up to now has gone into commercial production. Known as ASPA, it sticks to tooth enamel and to dentine, the layer underneath enamel.

Development of the material has been backed by the National Research Development Corp. It is based on a powder and a liquid. The liquid is a polymer, closely related to that used in dental cements. The powder has been formulated to react with the liquid and the mixture makes a tooth-colored filling. Its main characteristic is strong adhesion and it makes dental repair simpler and quicker. No separate insulating lining is needed in a cavity.

The material has been undergoing clinical trials for some time and its commercial approval underlines the excellent results obtained with it.

Children especially should welcome the development, even if they will not care that they are being treated with a "glass hammer crowns". They suffer decay mostly in back teeth and repair normally means a drilling into a healthy part of the tooth to provide the anchorage to hold conventional cements. With ASPA all that is necessary is to remove decayed tooth tissue and then put the filling in. It will hold firmly in place.

With acidic, a distinct advantage is that the material makes it possible to repair the grooves on the teeth that appear when the gums recede with age. This often causes trouble because brushing can wear away the softer part of the tooth thus exposed. The grooves now can be filled with this tough abrasion-resistant, natural colored material.

Dangerous People Hard to Predict

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer

Walk down any city street. Look at the faces. Who is disturbed? Who is dangerous?

What of the man on the elevator with the sullen face? What of the woman, mumbling to herself? What of the young man pushing through the crowd fairly trembling with rage? Which person walking by carries a gun? Which suitcase loaded on a plane carries a bomb?

Who is disturbed? Who is dangerous?

Look at the montage of faces. Pick the assassin.

The psychiatrists who talk of the concept of "dangerousness" may look at the subject from differing perspectives, but they agree on the overwhelming difficulty of predicting dangerous behavior. Listen:

"It's difficult to know simply on the basis of a study of the personality or even of a person's fantasies. You don't know whether the person will act on those fantasies."

"The most important point is realize about personality traits of the members is that it is not possible to characterize him by one single, pervading trait. Contradictory ones can exist side by side in the same person."

"The more bland people are, the more dangerous they are, not the opposite."

And in the newest study of what is known about the subject: "There is no valid method for predicting dangerousness."

So this is where the people of the United States are, with the Secret Service agents protecting a president looking out at the faces in the crowd, but at hands—waiting for the flash of steel, the glimpse of the knife or the gun, waiting this last time until the shot was fired. Not a sophisticated defence.

Americans are at a time when they must empty their pockets and walk through the electronic arch at the airport before they can be allowed on the airplane. At the midtown tower of a multinational corporation one must check in, get a pass, be approved and stamped before being allowed onto the elevator to the 40th floor.

They live in the shadow of the guns.

It is a disease of the times. The disease is contagious, can be fatal, can't be predicted.

To an official of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency the identification of dangerous persons is "the greatest unresolved problem any criminal justice system faces."

Prediction is of vital importance because it is at the heart of any system of preventive confinement or detention that might be devised.

And the entire subject is so delicate that a spokesman for the National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH), a government agency, said researchers there did not wish to discuss it.

A leading authority in the field is Dr. Alan A. Stone, professor of law and psychiatry at Harvard University, who referred to his new monograph, Mental Health and Law: A System in Transition, in which he finds no valid method for prediction.

"Dangerousness, like beauty, is to some extent in the eye of the beholder," Dr. Stone writes.

While the general public probably associates dangerousness with mental illness, Dr. Stone says, the American Psychiatric Association has indicated that no more than 10 per cent of the mentally ill in hospitals are dangerous, a committee "gonetimate" he grossly inflated.

Women Taking Men's Jobs Not Considered a Trend

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Employers' Council says the trickle of women into traditionally male jobs involving heavy work is exceptional and does not indicate a trend.

The council recently conducted a study and said a sample of managers and female workers agreed that women can do blue-collar work, but they were not enthusiastic about women performing these jobs.

John G. Fricks, the council's manager of relations research manager who conducted the study, said the sample included 103 managers, most of them be men, and 117 working women.

The study disclosed that traditional values in the employment of women continue to prevail, with 38 per cent of the managers and nearly 50 per cent of the women not convinced that some women would be just as capable of doing certain jobs as some men.

The managers and women agreed that white-collar jobs are more suited to women than blue-collar jobs. The managers felt that non-supervisory jobs were more appropriate for women but were asked for managerial jobs, the study indicated.

Large percentages of managers in selected industries—construction, forestry, electrical manufacturing, mining and shipbuilding—said they were willing to hire women for white-collar jobs, including managerial positions, once their minds are made up that women can handle the jobs.

Some of the reasons given for not wanting to hire women for certain jobs were:

—"I am not convinced that some women are just as capable of doing the job as a man would be;"

—"Women may not have the necessary command as supervisors over a group which includes men."

The study said these same reasons were most frequently cited by women in explaining why they would not want to be hired for certain jobs. Another frequent reason was difficulty in obtaining promotions in male-dominated industries.

There must be full employment and continued economic growth if women are to expand into non-typical work areas in B.C., the study said. It also said that periods of recession and declining markets are not ideal. The council said it would call on corporate leaders to:

—Make a strong commitment to involve women in positions of responsibility and in non-traditional areas;

—Conduct appraisals of personnel policy;

—Delineate the major problems, both personnel and corporate, with which the company is faced;

—Adopt new policies and practices to achieve the objective.

TV Stations Seek Border Agreement

TORONTO (CP)—Managers of three Buffalo television stations said Wednesday they will drop plans to jam reception of their signals in the Toronto area if Canadian federal authorities negotiate an acceptable border trade agreement for television.

Otherwise, the stations will continue to seek permission to install jamming equipment in retaliation for what they consider a ripoff of their services by Canadian cable companies, a news conference here was told by Leslie Arries of WBEN-TV.

Some Canadian cable companies have been advised by Ottawa to delete some commercials from the U.S. signals they pick up for transmission to Canadian customers.

Thomas Wright, an engineer from Dallas, Tex., said a tower could be built on the south shore of Lake Ontario near the Canadian border to transmit a highly directional signal toward Toronto. The signal would cause horizontal lines to appear here on the screens of television tuned to Channels 2, 4 or 7, the Buffalo stations.

Mr. Wright said additional towers could be built south of Buffalo and along the Niagara River to spoil reception of their signals in the Niagara peninsula. This might be done if Toronto cable companies were to build new master antennas in that area to pick up clear signals.

NDP Determined to Get Income Program for Farmers

CALEDON, Ont. (CP) — The New Democratic Party is determined to force the Conservative government to implement an income protection program for Ontario farmers, Donald MacDonald, NDP member for York South said Wednesday.

Mr. MacDonald, a former Ontario NDP leader and now its critic on agriculture and food, told a meeting sponsored by the Wellington-Dufferin-Peel riding association that the basic problem facing farmers is the uncertainty and inadequacy of farm income.

He said the NDP government of British Columbia has provided Canada with a working model for a provincial farm income protection program.

Mr. MacDonald said Ontario farm organizations have launched campaigns demanding a B.C.-style program for Ontario.

"Let me assure you," he said, "the NDP is ahead in its support of their demands."

Caledon is just north of Toronto.

Foxboro Community Fashion Show Held

Children at the new Foxboro School, members of the village community and several local businesses have been working together since the school opened in September to present a fashion show for school children and the general public.

The show, which features clothes made from Foxboro patterns, was presented Wednesday afternoon at the school for all county home economics students and Foxboro senior citizens. It will be presented again tonight beginning at 7:30 p.m. There is no admission charge. The general public is welcome.

More than 40 outfits, made from materials from Foxboro Fabrics, were made for the show by Cy Ness and the women at Foxboro Fabrics, who cut the patterns from measurements supplied by Foxboro home economics teacher Fran Prokopp.

Co-ordinating the show were Ella Seminoe, Foxboro Fabrics, Mrs. Prokopp and Carolyn Emerson. Models included Mrs. Emerson, school principal John Emerson, Kelly Lott, Patti Revoy, Pat Saunders, Susan Clark, Brenda Weeks, Kay Ewing, Joan Jessop, Sweet Designs, Jane Cox, Carol Michelle, Jane Ogden, Melanie Strain, Sandra Watson, Tia Van Andrews, Jackie Conley, Melody Kerk, Bernadette Beaudoe and Sonja Trafford.

Carolyn Emerson makes adjustments for model Melody Kerk during a dress rehearsal for Foxboro School's fashion show.

Jane Cox, of Foxboro Fabrics, models a pant suit.

Home economics teacher Fran Prokopp keeps tabs on the show's progress while Kay Ewing waits her turn to model fashions.

Doctor's Total Examination Gives Woman Peace of Mind

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a message to all M.D.s who read the letter from "Slightly Suspicious." (She didn't think her doctor had any right to give her a breast examination when she had come in for a check-up for her plastic surgery on her face.)

Eight years ago I had an operation to remove a breast tumor which luckily turned out to be benign. Since that time I have gone back every year for a pap smear. I went to a physician's group instead of to my regular doctor. No breast examination was given.

I actually wanted the doctor to perform the breast examination but I was ashamed to ask him to. The next time I went I did ask. The doctor gave me a very cold look and answered "once over lightly."

I decided that very day to change back to my regular doctor. It was a very good move. Now, even if I come in for a sore throat he checks my breasts, also my blood pressure and my blood sugar, which is slightly on the high side.

Whenever I walk out of his office I say to myself, "Thank God for that wonderful man. Now I can live without fear for another year." Please don't print my name or city. Just sign me — Check Out And Grateful

Dear C.D. and G.: A disinfected-studded cadaverous to your conscientious doc. And a head of skunk cabbage to those other docs who won't take the time. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: I need someone else to tell my husband he is wrong. I hope you will be the one. He thinks you have a good head on your shoulders.

Whenever we go to a church wedding I try to arrive early so we can get aisle seats. Most of the enjoyment of a wedding is being able to see what is going on.

Invariably some latecomers will trail in and my husband moves over to the middle of the row and drags me with him. Of course, we lose our aisle seats. This really burns me up. The folks who come late don't expect to get aisle seats and they don't deserve them.

My husband insists it's bad manners to stand there as if your feet were nailed to the floor and expect the latecomers to step over you. Who is right? — Finders Keepers

Dear Finders: You are. And I hope this convinces him. Next time, just to make sure you hang on to your aisle seat, why don't YOU sit on the end? The person who has THAT spot can call the shots.

Dear Ann Landers: Twice in your column during the past two years you for a correspondent) have referred to a certain species of dog as a "Boston bull."

For your edification, Madame, there is no such animal. I believe what was meant was a Boston Terrier. Please, Ann, take the time to check the Canine Registry. You will discover there is no Bull in Boston — Tea Party Descendant

Dear T.P.: No bull in Boston? I'll pass the word but I'm willing to bet that a large number of people will hasten to disagree with you. Thanks for one man's opinion.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a young reader of your column. I even learn something from it once in a while.

What I would like to ask you is this: When we travelled all over the country last summer we bought newspapers in every city. The same column appeared in several different papers.

Would it be possible for you to write a different column for each of your papers? You must get a lot of mail and I'll bet you could do it if you worked a little harder.—15-Year-Old Fan

Dear Fan: My column now appears in 812 papers. Multiply that by three letters per column—then take THAT number and multiply it by seven days per week. What do you get? My figure is 17,062.

All you want me to do is prepare 17,062 answers a week for publication. Thanks a heap. Where should I send the body?

UNIVERSITY WOMEN

Marlene Castellano spoke about aboriginal rights and the new native locality at an open meeting of the Canadian Federation of University Women. After receiving her B.A. at Queen's, a C.F.U.W. professional fellowship enabled Mrs. Castellano to obtain a masters degree in social work from the University of Toronto. In Belleville she worked for the Children's Aid Society. She spent a year teaching adult education at Sir Sandford Fleming College. For the past four years she has been with the department of native affairs.

Mrs. Castellano defined it as "the way you are. This is achieved from the inside, a person's feelings and experiences, and from the outside, what a person sees in the eyes of those around."

Native students from all parts of the country, from large cities and remote areas are enrolled in Native Studies courses. All give the same reasons for being there — to find out about their heritage and, that of other native people, and to prepare themselves for service to native people.

The change in the consciousness of the native people has resulted in an explosion of concerns about aboriginal rights, Mrs. Castellano said.

Land rights of natives were recognized in 1763, the first time in statute law. The status of Indians as a specific group was recognized by the British North America Act. In 1960 the Federal Government recorded the idea that aboriginal rights existed. But after a 1973 action on land claims brought before the Supreme Court resulted in a split decision, Prime Minister Trudeau announced that land claims would be considered.

Among the young natives there is now a sense of unity and pride which did not exist five years ago. But the results of their new activities are not all positive. Once Indian land claims become a threat, whites find it harder to be tolerant, she said.

Take Care Of Your Child's Eyes

Parents should remember that they are responsible for the health and safety of their children's eyes. A single instant of carelessness can rob a child of the miracle of sight at home, at school, or at play. Choose toys carefully, remembering that such things as BB guns, bows-and-arrows and slingshots in the hand of young children are really weapons, and not toys at all. Never leave knives, scissors or sharp tools in reach around the house. Above all, teach children the wisdom of playing safely! These weekly hints on eye care are brought to you by the Canadian National Institute for the Blind and Quinte Optical, 34 Bridge St. E.

Instead of Turning Clocks Back, Why Not Double Daylight Time?

It's such a gradual thing, we hardly notice it happening.

And then, about the middle of October, we're struck by how soon night has come down. Winter's coming, we say. We realize, or thinking to raise the gloomy prospect of earlier darkness and shorter days.

Ironically, the sooner have we realized ourselves to fewer hours of afternoon, when we're dead serious now, the last weekend of October before a return to Eastern Standard Time. Saturday night, given no choice, we'll turn our clocks back and there we'll be, standing in the dark at 4 p.m. instead of 7.

Nonsense. I say. The bureaucrats who order our lives for us have got it all backwards — considerably, wise, so to speak. In winter, when we could really do with more day light, they shorten the afternoon. And in summer, when the days are naturally long, they've made even longer.

Daylight (Saving) Time was begun during the First World War, in order to lengthen the period of food production. The reasoning was that farmers needed clocks turned ahead so that they could stay in the fields longer before nightfall.

Now I'm not going to argue against Daylight Time. It's obviously a successful idea — and I adore long, balmy summer twilights like everybody else.

But I also love the end of day in wintertime, when the lowering sun makes long blue shadows, when the snowbanks reflect the rosy glow of the western sky. Amazingly, most of the hours of daylight fades while we're all still at work or at school; by the time we're out in the streets, the last set-ted into the cold blackness of northern night. Depressing, isn't it?

So — if Daylight Time is good for us in the summer, wouldn't it be twice as good in the winter? Why not Double Daylight Time? Let's turn our clocks ahead this Saturday night, just as we do in the spring.

Instead of the sun closing down at 4.30 p.m. as it does now, or at 5.30 p.m. as it will next week, we'd have sunset at 7.30 p.m., a far more pleasant time for the day to end.

What we'd have, obviously, is an extended recreation period after work or school, much more time to spend outside. Children could play in their snow forts or on their ice rinks after supper, without parents worrying about them coming home through dark streets. Adults would be far more likely to go for healthful, refreshing walks if it were still light in early evening.

Just think how much more cheerful you'd feel if night wasn't falling about your shoulders as soon each day.

Sure, you say, we'd get brighter afternoons. But what about the dark mornings? Instead of the sun rising at 7.30 a.m. as it does now, or at 6.30 a.m. as it will next week, it'd be coming up at 8.30.

Well, generally speaking, we don't use the morning for much. We're getting up and dressed and having our breakfast, and we do very little appreciating of that "extra" light.

Children who must take school buses are already getting up in the dark since they're rural early risers anyway. City children would at least have the pleasure of breaking as they trudged to school, enough light for safety, and a beautiful time of day.

A further note in favor of late sun rise is that it would make us think we were getting up earlier, and that's a miraculously virtuous feeling!

It seems to me, that if we were able to change the natural order of hours in relation to Greenwich — Mean Time, that we can do it again. Why not?

(Many thanks to reader Rick Klitz for sending us the idea for this column.)

Teachers Ratify Contract

PEMBROKE (CP) — Level B, C and D secondary teachers Wednesday ratified their contracts with the Renfrew County board of education.

The three levels represent 62 per cent of the 450 teachers in the county. Those in the A-A to A-4 categories—those with university degrees—negotiate their contracts with the county secondary teachers who still have not reached agreement with the board.

Under the new agreement, the three levels will receive 22-to-25 per cent annual increase in a one-year contract terminating Aug. 31.

Level D teachers last year received a minimum $8,400 annually and a maximum $9,700; level C $8,900 minimum and $10,950 maximum and level B $7,500 maximum and $13,150 maximum.

Because of the proposed federal wage guides, both groups issued a joint statement agreeing to submit their contract to either federal or provincial review agencies if required by law.

Cat Food Under Investigation

TORONTO (CP) — A Globe and Mail survey of two Dominion stores indicates that buyers of Purina Cat Chow are getting 18 per cent less for their money when they buy the one-kilogram box.

The cat food now comes in a one-kilogram box, about 64 ounces less than the old package, but the two boxes are selling the smaller metric package at the same price of $1.23 as the old one, the survey by the newspaper says.

However, a spokesman for Dominion Stores Ltd. said Wednesday that the one-kilogram box should be priced $1.02, not $1.23.

If buyers were charged more it was a simple case of human error, he said.

Terry Purnival, product manager for Ralston Purina, said supermarket managers are probably mixing up the new package with the old one.

The Dominion spokesman said that the company is considering a cash refund for customers who have paid the extra 21 cents.

Gets Contract

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The National Audubon Society announced Wednesday that Maurice Strong, the outgoing Canadian executive of the UN environment program, will receive the society's top award, Society president Elvis Stahr said Strong will be awarded the Audubon medal as "the man who has made the environment an international concern" at the Society's annual dinner in New York Nov. 12, with Strong as featured speaker.

CP News Roundup

Princess Bored

SYDNEY (Reuter) — A Sydney newspaper said Wednesday that Princess Margaret snubbed government officials and looked drawn, pale and bored Tuesday at the start of her two-week tour of Australia. The Daily Telegraph said the princess threw royal tour officials in the capital into a panic by disregarding her schedule, which she cut by half. It said officials believed her behavior was caused by a tiring flight from Singapore.

Appoints Canadian

GENEVA (Reuter) — A Canadian has been appointed special envoy by Kurt Waldheim, United Nations secretary-general, for a visit to Chad in a bid to win the release of French archeologist Francoise Claustre, the UN office here announced Wednesday. Charles-Edouard Bourbonnierre, 49, a six-year veteran of the UN who is director of the European office's information department, also will go to Paris for talks with the French government, the announcement said.

Calls for Cards

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada and the United States formally asked the International Joint Commission Wednesday to investigate the environmental dangers of the Garrison Irrigation Project in North Dakota and to report as soon as possible, U.S. sources say.

Supports Controls

SIMCOE, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Dennis Siston, president of the St. Thomas-Elgin Medical Association, said Wednesday his association supports the federal government's selective wage-and-price controls and intends to abide by them. Dr. Siston made the statement at the annual meeting of District Two of the Ontario Medical Association.

To Hear Charges

OSHAWA, Ont. (CP) — A Haldimand county police officer will at Monday, Dec. 8 in Whitby to hear charges laid under the Police Act against 11 Durham region police officers. The charges were laid following a stag party Ten of the officers are charged with neglect of duty and discreditable conduct and the other with damaging equipment.

Welfare Spending Cuts Proposed by MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Major welfare spending cuts are essential to stop inflation Progressive Conservative MP Jack Murta said Wednesday as the Commons continued debate on the government's new anti-inflation program.

The Manitoba farmer said the combined impact of medical benefits, development grants and other social measures have placed an unbearable burden on the economy.

"We'll continue to have inflation until these programs which the government calls the cornerstone of its social policy are brought within our means," he said.

"All forms of welfare programs have to be looked at," he said.

Gilbert Rondeau (GC—Shefford) said Prime Minister Trudeau has always been a radical socialist at heart.

The Eastern Townships MP said Mr. Trudeau, before he entered politics, "greatly admired" socialist and communist dictatorships on his foreign travels.

"He would like to see the same thing in Canada, a socialist society such as Mao Tse-tung has" in China, Mr. Rondeau said.

He told MPs that the program would spell the death of free enterprise.

Mr. Murta said Canada would wind up with the worst social unrest in its history if the government does not cut down its spending.

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party House Leader, said:

Wants TV Executions

HOFFMAN ESTATES, Ill. (AP) — A Toronto-born minister concerned about increasing crime advocates public execution of convicted murderers on prime-time television. "Nothing much else has helped stop crime and I think public executions of convicted killers would be an unbeatable deterrent method," says Rev. Paul Tinlin, 41, pastor of the Evangel Assembly of God church.

He said the minister put on a "despicable performance" when he "spoke on the abolitionist side. But this was not surprising because he used the same tactics when he was campaign minister.

"How do people know the minister is telling the truth this time?"

He said the program could mean "gross unfairness," if it is applied unequally in various sectors of society.

He said the government should make sure that low-income groups and those on fixed incomes, such as pensioners, are protected.

There is no sign that the program will operate with the real needs of these people in mind, he argued.

Frank Oberle (PC—Prince George-Peace River) questioned the integrity of Finance Minister Donald Macdonald, accusing him of "cheap political trickery" in attempts to deflect criticism of the anti-inflation program.

Alberta Town Completely New

GRANDE CACHE, Alta. (CP) — This community of 4,000 on the edge of the Rocky Mountains, 225 miles west of Edmonton has something most towns lack. It's all new.

There are no old buildings, old streets or old anything else here. It was an instant town—had upon a coal mine, add people and services and stir.

McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd. wanted to extract coal in the area, so in 1966 the Alberta government created the town of paper. Ken Bergo, 61, who has been in municipal administration since 1958, came up in 1969 when there was nothing here but forest, mountains and a dirt track.

It now has a large, covered shopping mall, paved residential areas and 300 mobile homes.

Housing in town is scarce at present. Mr. Bergo said it would be a lot scarcer if the town could convince the province to build a highway from Grand Cache to Grande Prairie, about 100 miles north.

The town is dependent upon the mine for its life. When the mine laid off about 220 workers in 1973, the town faced at actual population drop of about 800, throwing it into financial straits that the province had to help sort out. The crisis hammered home the need for the community to widen its economic base.

"We've tried to impress upon the government that this would make a wonderful vacation area," Mr. Bergo said. "We have pressed the government to complete the highway from Grande Cache to Grande Prairie. It's a natural."

"All the people in the Peace River block would come down through Grande Cache to Highway 16—the east-west Yellowhead Route linking Edmonton with Jasper National Park and northern British Columbia.

"I'm sure that the minute the government made an announcement that the highway is to be completed, private capital would be in looking around at golf courses, ski hills and so on. These are things we can't afford to build."

With coal returning to the forefront of the mining industry and numerous other minerals in the area, the future looks bright, provided the conflict between mining and recreational use in the foothills and eastern slopes of the Rockies can be resolved.

"There's billions of tons of coal at our feet. It's just a matter of the government of Alberta and the environmentalists giving the nod to the next company that wants to come in, and we're away."

Harking back to the early days when the town's administrators had their office in an old bank trailer instead of the centre they now use, Mr. Bergo said he couldn't see where any mistakes had been made.

"We had an opportunity to do a good job. There was nothing to hinder us."

The only hitch came when the mine cut operations.

"This hurt us and, because we felt we had been hurt, we approached the provincial government for some assistance."

P.E.I. Ferry Service Faces Crowding Problems

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — One of three reports being prepared by the Prince Edward Island tourism department concludes that ferry service to the province is deteriorating because of crowding and deliberate economies in the design of vessels.

The report concludes that if automobile tourist traffic continues to grow as forecast, waiting periods will increase in 1976 and a serious delay problem will exist by 1977 or 1978.

Tourism Minister Gilbert Clements is particularly harsh in his remarks on the two newest vessels on the CNR Northumberland Strait ferry service.

"The Vacationland and the Holiday Island although efficient from an operational viewpoint," are the worst possible design for carrying people," he said. "They are characterized by inconvenient arrangements and insufficient space for all passenger facilities, without exception."

Mr. Clements has been a frequent critic of the CNR ferry system, which has gone through several large - scale changes in recent years aimed at reducing the length of lineups and minimizing the inconvenience of being caught in them.

"Getting hauled across the strait quickly and safely is the critical part," said Mr. Clements. "But the quality of the ferry experience is also important, particularly to people on vacation.

"Clearly some middle ground is to be sought between treating people as cargo and providing them with luxury service."

CANADIAN SCHENLEY DISTILLERIES, LTD.

You need 6" of insulation in your attic.

You can do it yourself, this weekend.

Tonight, go up to the attic and measure the thickness of your insulation.

If you don't have 6", you don't have enough.

If you don't have 6", you should add more insulation this weekend.

1 The high cost of heating is getting higher. In the past year or so, your fuel bill has gone up substantially. And it'll go up more. The only way around the situation is to use less fuel. And that means more insulation.

2 Insulation is an investment. Building codes are being changed and 6" of insulation in the attic will probably be the new minimum for all new housing. Make your insulation conform to the new standards and you'll be increasing the real value of your home and saving on the cost of heating, too.

3 What kind of insulation should you get? Fiberglas.* It's easy to install, readily available and inexpensive. It's also extremely efficient, rot and mildew proof, fire retardant and recognized everywhere as the best form of insulation.

If you already have some insulation in the attic you'll probably need Fiberglas friction fit batts.

They install without so much as a nail. Just stuff them between the floor joists in the attic, right over the insulation you have. Get your Fiberglas friction fit batts thick enough to make 6" when you add the depth of your present insulation.

Since you'll be adding to existing insulation, do not use insulation with a backing or a vapour barrier. (You could be creating condensation problems.) All you need is plain, unbacked insulation–Fiberglas friction fit batts.

4 If you have no insulation at all. You need Fiberglas kraft faced batts with a built in vapour barrier. You'll need it 6" thick (that's called R-20) and you apply it the same way–laying it between the joists in the attic floor. The vapour barrier (the paper side) always goes next to the warm side. So in the attic, it's paper side down.

5 The Fiberglas booklet. It tells all. Your building supply dealer has a free copy of the Fiberglas booklet for you. It's called "HOW TO FIGHT THE RISING COST OF FUEL BY IMPROVING YOUR HOME'S INSULATION". Ask for it and read it. It'll tell you everything you need to know about insulating your attic, rec room, cottage and give you other tips on conserving energy.

To do the average house should take the weekend. But it's an investment that pays dividends on every fuel bill you'll ever receive.

Alberta's Growth Held to 11 Per Cent

EDMONTON (CP)—The September announcement from the Alberta treasurer's office had unusual impact coming from a government, awash in resource revenue and with every sign there was more where that came from.

Alberta, said Provincial Treasurer Merv Leitch, "dis-appointed" that the federal government had failed to take bold new initiatives to counter inflation, had decided to set a good example. Growth of the 1974 budget due by be handed down in February would be limited to 11 per cent — half the annual increase of the last four years.

"We believe governments must provide leadership in assisting in the reduction of the alarming inflationary rates in the nation," said Mr. Leitch.

"It is well recognized that the causes of inflation are primarily international and national, and that a provincial government is only capable of taking very limited action."

That Alberta was willing to lead the way in taking such action was affirmed a week later as Premier Peter Lougheed called on all Canadians to shed their bells a notch and be ready to make personal sacrifices to fight inflation.

Speaking to a joint meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade and Men's Canadian Club in Vancouver the premier said the problem had reached the stage where "noise and talk" had to be replaced by concerted action. Business, labor, and professional groups should be prepared to defer their expectations, he said, and every individual recognize the part he must play.

"The answer lies in a combined effort — governments must take the lead, but government can do it alone," said Premier Lougheed. "They must dampen expectations and tell it like it is."

The administration's sentiments, like the move to limit spending, was greeted with polite applause from the business community and the editorial writers. Back home, however, the call for self-sacrifice rallied little enthusiasm among the groups the budget ceiling would fall on hardest.

As well as direct provincial spending, the limit would also apply to the almost 50 per cent of the budget reserved for grants to schools, hospitals and municipalities.

Aside from municipalities, which have recourse to property taxation these services depend heavily on provincial largesse as a source of operating funds. As well, each was rounding out a year of exhaustive penny pinching to make salary demands, inflation and growth of programs fit under a 15-per-cent limit on provincial grants imposed for the current budget year.

Provincial contributions to the school foundation program, which shores up Alberta's Grade 1 to 12 school system, increased to $402 million this year from $338 million in 1974. Under a straight 11-per-cent guideline, grants would come to $446 million in 1975.

The reaction from school boards and teacher association representatives alike was one of dismay, accompanied by warnings the quality of education is almost sure to suffer.

"It isn't reasonable to expect education to be the sacrificial lamb to inflation," complained Jim Weaver, president of the Red Deer local of the Alberta Teachers' Association.

Ed Paszek, a teacher representative in Edmonton, said the profession has a right to salaries in perspective with those of society in general and would be unlikely to moderate its wage demands despite the ceiling.

The grant restriction comes at a time when local school boards are under great pressure to provide new facilities for growing populations and maintain a high standard of education, said Jim Falconer, chairman of the Edmonton public school board.

"We hesitate in view of this to cut back essential programs, particularly successful ones recently established, to increase class loads," he said.

"Restrictive financing of this kind could make the supplementary requirements on local taxpayers intolerable."

Support came from the heads of the province's colleges, which would receive a $5-million increase in grants next year compared with $4 million the year before, and universities, which would receive $130 million in the next budget year compared with $135 million this year and $109 million in 1974.

Critics of the cold under-stated cries of dismay came from the province's hospitals, which this year experienced a staggering 23-per-cent increase in costs, to $202 million, and which look forward to the start shortly of a new round of labor negotiations. Bargaining last year resulted in wage increases often exceeding the 30-per-cent mark and salaries may account for up as much as 75 per cent of an institution's budget.

The municipalities, whose grants under the limit would rise to $50 million from $48 million, had a more forthright response of how they would cope — it can't be done without turning to the taxpayer.

Ald. Laurence Decore, chairman of Edmonton's economic affairs committee, said he was irked that the province would impose the limit "and expect a regressive tax like the property tax to make up the difference."

Noting the effects of inflation and that union wage settlements have been running at increases of 15 and 16 per cent, the city needed a 15-per-cent budget increase this year just to maintain the same level of services as 1974, said Ald. Decore.

The situation underlines the need for a more rational cost-sharing arrangement between municipalities and the province, said Ald. Decore, pointing to Manitoba's decision to set cities in line for a share of provincial income tax and British Columbia's plan to split some of its oil revenues, the government that proposed the guideline may be amused the first to regret it.

This fall, an independent commission headed by Mr. Justice Clifton Prowse of Calgary is expected to hand down its report on the first pay increase members of the legislature have had since 1972.

The 75 members of the house now earn $13,500 a year, $4,500 of that tax-free. Cabinet ministers earn an extra $22,500 and the premier $27 000 above the base rate.

It's generally agreed an increase is in order but when the report comes down members of the house will have a difficult choice to make — eating their words and accepting a full increase or proving they do not to set an example in fighting inflation.

New Look To Phone Kiosks

TORONTO (CP) — A new look may be given telephone kiosks across the country because of the efforts of a Mississauga, Ont., firm, winner of the North American aluminum industry's highest design excellence award.

King Plastics Ltd. took top honors in the Aluminum Extruders Council 1974 Design Competition with its Series 540 Horizons I oak, a free-standing housing for coin-operated telephones. The unit employs a vapor lamp to illuminate the symbols and dial, a back-plate to surround the telephone and a sloping hood that both conceals the anchoring devices and serves to reject debris that would otherwise collect there.

The kiosk is made from aluminum extrusions detailed at Alcan Canada Products Ltd.'s plant in Ajax, Ont.

Entries in the competition are judged on design, versatility, cost savings and practicality of application.

Only Telephoning

The only telephone available to residents of a Stouffville subdivision, near Toronto, is this pay phone installed Wednesday. Lana Roffer makes a call on the phone while her son, Danny, 7, waits. Bell Canada has no cable for 1,231 new homes in the Toronto area. Even the sales manager for Bell's manufacturing subsidiary can't get a telephone in his home. (CP Photo)

Now Possible to Build Small House in 1 Week

VANCOUVER (CP) — How many times has a couple wished they could build a 1-room bedroom, 1100 square foot home within a week or two?

Community planner Bruce Fairbairn and architect Charles Haynes say it's possible—and for only about $15,000.

They say the key is to use manufactured components, held together with bolts and other fasteners. It's similar to a giant Meccano set and Mr. Fairbairn says the builder can arrange components as he wants, add or subtract components at a later date or even dismantle the building and move it to a different site.

"Technology today is perfectly adequate to allow people to build their own houses," says Mr. Fairbairn. "What is needed is a demystification of the building system."

That's what he told a British Columbia's federal Liberal caucus meeting as part of a bid to get a $50,000 grant from the federal urban affairs department to build some demonstration houses for the International Habitat conference here next year.

Ancient Monastery Popular in Bulgaria

SOFIA, Bulgaria (CP)—The most popular tourist attraction in this eastern European country busy with various five-year plans is an ancient monastery.

Considering that the location of the monastery is off the beaten track, its popularity is surprising. It lies 75 miles southeast of here, buried in a mountain fold, off the highway to Athens.

The Rila, as the monastery is known, is only one of 100 such institutions preserved in Bulgaria but it is the richest, most distinctive architecturally, the most beautiful and in the past was the most influential. In the five centuries of Turkish domination and suppression of Bulgarian religion and culture, Rila, like other monasteries, fostered literature, developed art in the form of icons, kept patriotism for Bulgaria and hatred of the enemy alive, and was a refuge for freedom fighters.

Today Rila is a museum which hugganess outsiders and is a monument to Bulgarian architecture and culture. It sits in a beautiful setting in the Rila Mountains, rising rise to more than 9,000 feet above sea level.

Sightseeing buses make the trip out of Sofia but on a sunny, mellow autumn day it makes a pleasant detour on a drive to the Black Sea. A few miles out of Sofia the countryside changes to apple and cherry orchards, rolling hills, tobacco fields and vineyards.

Even on Sunday men and women can be seen picking plums, grapes and corn; working in vegetable plots and drying tobacco leaves and peppers. Along the roads other traffic includes horses and donkeys pulling carts of straw, silage or vegetables. Cattle, sheep and horses graze under poplars and birch. Village homes appear well looked after, many topped with stork's nests.

The Rila Mountains rise ahead and at Kochertsova the turn-off leads into a valley forested with beech and pine.

The monastery looks like a grim stone fortress with corner towers. All about is quiet except for mountain streams and rustling trees. Inside the iron gates to the courtyard all is color.

The monastery is three storeys of red and white stone. Above the ground floor colonnade the arches continue to form open galleries and the top floor is a roofed balcony.

Bell Announces Earnings

MONTREAL (CP) — Bell Canada announced Wednesday its net earnings for the nine-month period ending Sept. 30 were $127.7 million or $4.39 a share compared with $171.5 million or $4.29 a share for the corresponding period last year. The earnings reported for 1976 have been restated to reflect a temporary ten-per-cent federal surtax imposed last year on non-manufacturing profits.

Calls for Study

TORONTO (CP) — Canadians should be issued identification cards with their photographs on them because of the increase in the theft of government cheques, the Retail Merchants Association of Canada said Wednesday. George Crompton, association general manager, said the association will ask the federal government to consider issuing social insurance cards with photographs on them. He suggested these could be renewed with new photographs every five years.

Holds Conference

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg has been chosen as the site of the sixth International Cereal and Bread Congress in September, 1978, members of the organizing committee announced Wednesday. The conference, expected to attract about 1,600 experts in cereal science and technology, will be the first ever held outside Europe.

Delivers Bills

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — A spokesman for the Peterborough Utilities Commission said Wednesday the Junior Civitans, a service club composed of high school students, has been contracted to deliver water and hydro bills during the postal strike.

Gets Top Award

CHESLEY, Ont. (CP) — The Bruce County board of education has ratified a contract to give a 30-per-cent salary increase over one year to 200 secondary-school teachers in this area about 20 miles southwest of Owen Sound, a board spokesman said. The teachers, without a contract since Aug. 31, now will be paid between $10,800 and $22,800 a year. Annual salaries previously ranged from $7,900 to $19,000. The new agreement also will give teachers a $250 cost-of-living bonus next June if the April 1978 consumer price index exceeds last August's index by eight or more points. Office and clerical staff were given a 17-per-cent wage increase over one year, the spokesman said.

Will Expand

OTTAWA (CP) — Regional Expansion Minister Marcel Lessard said he expects regional expansion efforts will continue during the next few months despite the federal anti-inflation program.

Voices Views

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker clashed with Commons Speaker James Jerome Wednesday during the Commons question period when he tried to present what the Speaker said was a statement. Mr. Jerome twice called Mr. Diefenbaker to order and tried to give another MP the floor before Mr. Diefenbaker finally prevailed. He questioned the legality of the government's anti-inflation program.

Still Holds Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Ten days after being defeated in a Montreal byelection, Pierre Juneau still is communications minister, Government House Leader Mitchell Sharp said in the Commons Wednesday that Prime Minister Trudeau may decide on a replacement soon.

Betty Hagerman Takes Affidavits from Hillcrest Residents

Lost Documents Hampering Solution To Hillcrest Sewer Costs Says Mayor

Hillcrest property owners Wednesday night formally took out affidavits to back up a reserve protest against high taxes blamed on sanitary sewer installation.

The statements will support a brief to Ontario Ombudsman Arthur Maloney — a move by Hillcrest Ratepayers Association (HRA) is contemplating should other attempts to gain relief fail.

The statements outline cost of households' taxes before and after the sewers were installed.

The statements were taken in recent days in a door-to-door canvass by HRA members.

Earlier this week they were typed onto affidavit forms by neighborhood teen-agers — on typewriters loaned by industrial park firms Hawking Hillcrest, said HRA president Ken Brooks.

Wednesday night they were notarized by a city lawyer's secretary and Betty Hagerman — commissioner of oaths. Ald. Stu Meeks, also a practising lawyer and as a city councillor also look affidavits from the board at a meeting of the HRA.

Mayor Ben Corke told students Wednesday City hall recommendations instead of Queen's Park may be one reason for lack of provincial government ministry response to the continuing controversy.

Documents on the issue — specifically a three-month-old city hall indication of a solution to high Hillcrest sewer costs through provincial aid — have not been traced by senior government authorities, he said.

The mayor said he uncovered the situation when he began probing the Hillcrest issue with Queen's Park three weeks ago.

And, a repeat attempt to get the correspondence to the environment ministry Monday also apparently failed.

So, the mayor said, he now has sent the documents by couriers.

As a result, the mayor told the Hillcrest ratepayers he now is hopeful the provincial government might reach a "favorable" decision soon on aiding Hillcrest with the sanitary sewer costs.

He said he had been assured by a ministry official the issue would be dealt with as soon as the city's letter arrived.

"It seems to me they will treat this matter with considerable urgency when they have this letter in the morning," said the mayor.

But the recent discussions described in tracing the puzzle of missing correspondence has "been for me — and I'm sure for you — a very frustrating three weeks," said the mayor.

The city's argument to the ministry was and that in neighboring Thurlow Township charges for installation on a 60-foot frontage will be no higher than $138 a year.

Hillcrest's difference of jurisdiction: The Thurlow installation will be the ministry's while the Hillcrest project is the city's.

Corke he added, "I don't believe they will hide behind that technicality. I believe there'll be a favorable decision."

Frankford Going to Dogs

The Belleville and District Kennel Club's annual all-breed dog shows the third largest in Canada will be held this weekend starting noon Friday at Frankford Arena. Competitors from Canada and the United States will be taking their dogs through conformation and obedience judging. Club officials said today 1,800 entries have been received. Admission is $1.00 for spectators.

Bylaw Before Public

Belleville's planning committee will hold a public meeting Nov. 13 to hear arguments concerning the proposed Belleville Mobile Home bylaw.

On the urgings of Mayor Ben Corke, the committee is to have the public meeting and make any necessary modifications to the bylaw in time for a Nov. 27 council meeting.

The 13-page draft of the bylaw has come under considerable scrutiny during the past year after an initial outcry from city residents who feared the document would go overboard spelling out how each homeowner would have to maintain his property.

The draft has been circulated through a wide range of civic departments and has been thoroughly screened by the subdivider's liaison committee in recent weeks.

Because so much time and energy has already been put into the draft, Mayor Corke urged the subordinate planning advisory committee to approve the document Wednesday night.

But fearing "flak" from the public, committee chairman Ald. Joe Cox urged a public meeting where residents would have a forum to discuss the document.

Mail Not Needed

Strike Won't Stop Monthly Billings

BY CLIFF KENTON
Staff Reporter

If the current postal strike has any happy side its the absence of bills in the mail box.

But just because the postal system has ground to a halt doesn't necessarily mean they won't arrive and don't have to be paid.

Most private and public companies are working out contingency plans, or are crossing their fingers and hoping consumers take it upon themselves to pay up.

Public Utilities Commission bills to customers within Belleville will be delivered by PUC employees, manager Neil Britton said Wednesday.

"We're going to have to ensure our collection continues as we have accounts to pay and must have money coming in," said Mr. Britton.

The postal strike, said Mr. Britton, will give PUC an opportunity to re-evaluate use of the postal system to deliver accounts.

Notices, will be placed in newspapers to remind customers to check mailboxes for bills as due dates for accounts approach.

The five-per-cent penalty for payment after the due date will still be in effect, said Mr. Britton.

Accounts, he said, are being investigated to determine if customer's cheques are stuck in the mail system. If so, said Mr.Britton, customers will be asked to cancel the cheque and issue another.

Accounts can be paid at PUC office at 195 College St. W., or at any bank.

No method has as yet been devised for billing customers outside on the city, he said.

Spokesmen for Mastercharge and Chargex have indicated accounts can be paid at the respective banks and interest charges for overdue accounts will not be waived.

Bell Canada will be delivering bills to only the "very largest" customers, manager George Thompson said Tuesday. Only about 100 commercial customers out of about 30,000 commercial and residential in the district will be billed.

"We'll take the same stance as in previous strikes and assume we're stuck until the strike is over."

He said it has not yet been determined whether interest charged on overdue bills will be in effect.

As in previous strikes unemployment insurance recipients must attend at local offices to submit report cards and pick up cheques.

A survey of local stores with their own charge account schemes indicates plans for billing customers and receiving payment have not as yet been determined.

Bus, Rail and Couriers Say Business Booming

Just because there is a postal strike doesn't mean you have to invest in a flock of carrier pigeons.

If you still want to get that everdue birthday gift to your grandmother in Toronto there are ways, but they're more expensive than dropping it in the mail box.

If she's spry enough to get to the nearest terminal — bus or rail — she can have it shipped by bus and she expects the express load in Belleville to increase by four times over what it was before the mail strike.

"I'm gaining customers who have never shipped by bus before," said Mr. Mcilwraith.

Almost every business in Belleville, he said, is shipping by bus and he expects the load to remain steady."

But if you or your grandmother can't get to the bus terminal, don't give up hope, there are other ways.

Canadian National Railways will not only take your parcel to Toronto but they'll pick it up and deliver it for about $5.50 providing it weighs less than 50 pounds.

Leslie Taylor, Belleville CN Express, said Wednesday he has noticed an increase in the number of parcels, particularly small packages.

Courier Service is probably the quickest way to ship a parcel, and legally it is the only way to get a letter delivered from your door to your grandmother's door. Neither the bus companies nor the railways are licensed to do it.

Purolator Courier Ltd., guarantees overnight delivery between Belleville and Toronto, said manager Bill Herbert. Shipment of letters or parcels weighing less than five pounds it costs about $4.25 he said.

"We're getting customers we never knew existed," said Mr. Herbert.

Most deliveries, he said, are within the city and the increase in business comes from both business and individuals.

And if you'd rather send a telegram you'll find Belleville CNCP Telecommunications one of the busiest offices in the city.

Belleville manager Bill Mitchell says he'll need a second operator if business continues increasing as it has since the strike began.

Jolson?

Al Jolson made a comeback Wednesday night at Centennial High School in the person of Ron Reynolds, a 68-year-old member of the Belleville Festival City Rhythm Band. Before the performance the band entertained students of the school.

A Community Key

A happy Mayor Peter Dickinson flourishes a ceremonial key that means a big achievement for his town of Deseronto. It was presented during official opening of the town's new community recreation centre Wednesday.

New Community Centre Welcome Town Addition

DESERONTO — A heap of high hopes ended up on ice here Wednesday.

For the community of 1,800 it was a happy ending.

Town officially opened the community centre it had been planning for years.

The event was the ceremonial seal on ski operation which started last December. It officially indicated town officials.

It's a project "that the town has wanted for a long, long time," Mayor Peter Dickinson declared from the centre's hockey rink — already iced for use — to the citizens and official spokesmen who joined in the event.

The contemporary structure stands in contrast to its predecessor — an outdoor rink around which youngsters often stood in zero weather while awaiting their turn to play hockey, he recalled.

And Clarke Rollins, MPP Hastings — Peterborough, emphasized the significance of the project to a rural community.

He said attention to the needs of rural municipalities is "long overdue" by government.

The centre not only is being used by Deseronto. It's providing a recreation facility for neighboring municipalities, said town recreation director Jack Layfield.

The centre makes reality of civic hopes stretching back to the late 1960s, noted the mayor.

It was the results of financing — ranging from negotiating of big senior government funding—down to community walkathons, dances, bakesales.

A major hurdle was passed with approval of the project by a winter capital works project. The federal government earmarked up to $150,000 — much of it spent on winter labor and therefore need not be paid back. There were community recreation centre grants from the province. The town provided funds from the sale of property, and will also issue a debenture. A special fundraising campaign to date has brought in another $45,000.

Construction started a year ago on the project — which has 80-by-180 foot rink and 200 seats along with a community hall.

Inquest Opens Into Death of Two Workers

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The first day of testimony at an inquest into the death of two workers at Constellation Carpets was clouded with faulty memories and contradictory statements Wednesday while a coroner's jury waded through the events leadings up to the Feb. 21 explosion.

On the day of the explosion, a number of Constellation employees and two electricians from a Belleville firm were working in the plant's power supply room at the carpet plant.

Testimony at Wednesday's hearing showed the explosion occurred when one of the private contractors attempted to remove a high voltage fuse from the fuse panel.

The contractor and a Constellation employee died later in a Kingston hospital from severe burns. One man also had his condition complicated with pneumonia.

Leslie Chapman, plant electrician, was present in the room when the explosion occurred. Still undergoing treatment for burns, Mr. Chapman is considered a key witness at the inquiry.

When Mr. Chapman's testimony under cross examination by a number lawyers began recalling statements made on the stand earlier, Coroner Dr. Clifford Meyer of Kingston interrupted the proceedings.

"I believe during this inquest there will be some divergent testimony," said the coroner. "That's why some witnesses have been excluded from the court room while others are testifying."

Dr. Meyer told the court Mr. Chapman is giving evidence in the case involving both the Ontario and Canada Evidence Acts which guards his testimony from being used against him.

It is expected approximately six more witnesses will be called before the inquest today before hearings conclude.

Murder Trial Enters Third Day of Testimony

A firearms examiner testified Wednesday at the murder trial of Kenneth James Arthur Mennesby that a shotgun recovered from the scene of the shooting death of Ronald Mennesby Jr. Sr. could not be discharged during accidental firing tests.

Mennesby Jr. is charged with murder not punishable by death in connection with his father's death at their farmhouse on R.R.4, Madoc Township Aug. 1, 1973. He was arrested following a four-day investigation.

Mennesby has admitted through his lawyer, Ronald Thomas of Toronto, that he had the gun in his physical possession when it discharged, killing his father. However, he has pleaded not guilty to intent to perform the act.

Robert George Mennement of the centre of firearms research in Toronto told the 12-member jury during the trial's second day that he received a single-barrel, Cooey, 12 - gauge shotgun from Ontario Provincial Police Aug. 7, 1973 which was "found in firing condition with no tendency to accidental discharge."

Mr. Mennement also said the muzzle of the shotgun was four feet away from the elder Mennesby's chest when it discharged. He explained this was determined by test firing at laboratory.

However, Mr. Thomas contested Mr. Mennement's conclusion that the four-foot distance by pointing out the test firing was performed using measurements of the elder Mennesby's body. It had been excised from the body.

Dr. John Hillsdon Smith, provincial forensic pathologist, testified that he examined both the shotgun and wadding and the excised tissue being the entrance wound Nov. 14, 1973.

He said he formed the opinion it was "a massive shot had entered the body from behind at an upward angle of angle of 35-30 degrees at the back of the neck and entered the body from above downwards at an approximate angle of 45 degrees to the skin's surface."

However, he said he was unable to determine either the position of the body at the time of the shot or the location of the gun.

In another development on behalf his clients, Mr. Thomas unsuccessfully cross-examined Tuesday. He had said the elder Mennesby's wound "was caused by a shot from a shotgun which was in the possession of the accused."

The extension read that "the accused was in the attic of the Mennesby home at the time the shotgun was discharged."

But Mr. Thomas commented that the extension "in no way alters my position that he (Mennesby) denies the allegation of the crown that he intended to fire the gun."

Ontario Supreme Court Justice Lawrence Pennell elaborated for the jury that the extension meant, "there was no intention to fire the weapon, no intention to cause a death and no intention to cause bodily harm which you might reach in death."

The trial continues today at the Hastings County Courthouse.

Tapes, Player Stolen

Belleville police are looking for tapes and a tape players valuing two Dell from vehicles.

Tapes valued at about $150 were stolen from a vehicle owned by Steven Ray of Picton while it was parked at a Belleville hotel. The tapes, the property of the car, were taken Tuesday.

Terry Shores of RR 2 Frankford lost a tape player and two tapes while his car was parked Wednesday at Northern Electric. The items are valued at about $64, said police.

Headstones Damaged

Damage is estimated at about $100 after vandals knocked down headstones at Lons Memorials, 100 Everett St.

One of the headstones was chipped in damage done sometime overnight, said police.

Procter and Gamble Plant Begins Production

BY COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Procter and Gamble Specialties Ltd. officially put its production line into motion this week — highlighted by a ribbon-cutting ceremony Wednesday formally beginning operation.

Procter and Gamble Specialties Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Procter and Gamble Ltd. of United States is producing Pampers disposable diapers at the Belleville plant.

Company spokesmen said the local plant will be entering to only the Canadian market. Until the plant reaches full production, company products bound for Canadian markets are being shipped through the Belleville plant.

The plant measures nearly four acres in area and has been under construction since May, 1974. It is anticipated the plant will hire about 200 area people.

Approximately 100 have already completed a sophisticated training courses to enable them to work in the manufacturing of Pampers and another 100 are currently taking the training program.

Company officials said Wednesday they expect it will be another year to 18 months before the plant will be operating in high tgear.

During the plant tour for civic dignitaries, Mayor Ben Corke said "of course we're delighted to have your firm in Belleville — and not just because of the tax bill."

Company spokesmen said the training programs and production systems are "shaping up very well ... due largely to a labor force that is composed of fast learners and enthusiasm."

Though only two production lines are working now on the plant's assembly floor, four more are underway — where the 100 currently in training will be stationed.

Company officials said an open house where members of the general public will be invited to tour the facility is anticipated for the spring.

Pampers in Production

The Procter and Gamble plant — employing 200 workers in the production of Pampers disposable diapers — officially went into operation Wednesday following a ribbon-cutting ceremony with Mayor Ben Corke (left), plant manager Pete Wickemeyer and city economic development commissioner Fred Bemis.

Reds Finally Prove They're the Best

BOSTON (AP) — For the last four years, Cincinnati Reds have been thinking like champions.

Now they finally have a championship to prove they're the best.

After a fistful of frustrations, the Reds beat Boston Red Sox 4-3 Wednesday night in the final game of the 1976 World Series.

"We went to the Series in 1972 and thought we were the best team and were beaten by Oakland. We did the same in the playoffs in New York Mets in 1973 and thought we were the best then," said Joe Morgan, who got the game-winning hit which put us in the ninth inning Wednesday night.

"Until we proves it on the field, we're nothing," Morgan added. "Now I can go home and say, 'We're the best.'"

Before winning the tense seventh game in the hostile atmosphere of Boston's colorful old Fenway Park, Cincinnati manager Sparky Anderson had been criticized for not winning big games. His disappointment went back to the 1970 World Series, when the Reds were steamrollered by Baltimore Orioles in five games.

Then, after running away with the National League pennant in 1972, the Reds were defeated by the A's in seven games. In 1973, the Reds won the league's West Division but were upset in the playoffs by the Mets.

The Red Sox took the series opener at Fenway, 6-2, behind the five-hit pitching of Luis Tiant, but the Reds won the second game 3-2 with two runs in the ninth.

Switching to Cincinnati's Riverfront Stadium for the third game, the Reds won 6-5 in 10 innings on a controversial bunt. Boston catcher Carlton Fisk claimed pitcher Ed Armbrister, who had laid down a sacrifice bunt, interfered with his attempt to make a play.

Fisk collided with Armbrister and his throw to second went awry, putting runners on first and third and setting up the winning run.

The notorious "collision bunt" became the cause celebre of this series and Larry Barnett, the home plate umpire who was involved in the play, eventually had his life threatened and needed protection from the FBI.

Tiant came back to salvage the fourth game for the Red Sox, winning 5-4 but the Reds were easy, 9-3 winners in the fifth game.

With the Reds in the driver's seat, leading 3-2 in games, the teams came back to Boston for the last weekend.

But it turned into a lost weekend as rain washed out not only Saturday's and Sunday's games but Monday night's rescheduled one as well.

When they finally got back to action for the sixth game, it was well worth the wait. The teams played a game that will probably be remembered for years to come. Carlton Fisk's home run leading off the 12th inning lived the Red Sox from elimination, giving Boston a startling 7-6 win.

That set the stage for the finale. But before the curtain came down for the Red Sox, they took the spotlight.

Boston scored three runs off Gullett with the help of the left-hander's wildness in the third inning.

"I was real concerned, down three runs," Anderson said. "I wanted to stay with Gullett because he's my best, but he was too eager and was overthrowing the ball.

"When he gets away from all those friendly Kentucky folks and fans at Riverfront, sometimes Don gets too keyed up and tends to overthrow which makes his ball straighten out—like tonight."

Lee kept the Reds from scoring through the first five innings, but in the sixth an error by second baseman Denny Doyle opened the door for the Reds. Perez hit a long home run over the left-center field screen and the Reds were suddenly back in business, behind only 3-2.

"Tony started it," Morgan said. "He gave us life when we needed it."

Cincinnati tied it on Pete Rose's run-scoring single in the seventh. The noisy Boston crowd of 35,205 became lost overbearing at this point and even quieter when the Reds bolted ahead in the ninth.

Ken Griffey walked to start the winning rally. He was sacrificed to second by Cesar Geronimo, a defensive star for the Reds all through the Series.

Dan Driessen batted for winner Clay Carroll and grounded out, sending Griffey to third. Rose then walked before Morgan hit loser Jim Burton's 1-3 pitch to centre for the game-winning single.

"It was something low and outside," said Morgan. "To be honest, I probably would have struck out on a pitch like that two years ago.

"But now I'm a better hitter. He made a great pitch. I just stayed with it and flipped it into center field. Everybody's gonna say it was a blooper but I'll take it.

"I waited 11 years for that hit."

Joe Will Take the 'Blooper'

BOSTON (AP) — "It was something low ans outside.

"To be honest I probably would have struck out on a pitch like that two years ago," said Joe Morgan in the Cincinnati Reds locker room Wednesday night.

"Everybody's gonna say it was a blooper, but I'll take it," said the Cincinnati second baseman, whose ninth-inning two-out single produced the Reds' first World Series title in 35 years.

Morgan, who led Cincinnati during the season with a .327 batting mark but was struggling at the plate during the seven-game series, paid homage to team-mates Tony Perez and Pete Rose.

With the Reds trailing 3-0 in the sixth, Perez hit his third home run of the series, a two-run drive that sparked the quiet Cincinnati bench.

"Tony started it," said Morgan, who admitted he was hoping to redeem himself for a poor Series. " He gave us life when we needed it."

Reds catcher Johnny Bench called the Cincinnati victory the ultimate thrill of his career.

"I don't know if anything will matter as much as this moment right now," said the 27-year-old slugger.

Reds manager Sparky Anderson, who described the dramatic struggle as "the greatest class Series ever held," lauded Morgan for his crucial hit, saying "That's the kind of spot Joe likes."

"It boiled down to total desire. These guys never thought they were going to lose."

Will McEnaney the reliever for the Reds who got the final three outs and was credited with a save, said he gave himself a pep talk to fight off the pressure.

"I had waited all my life for this. I said 'Here it is. Let's go get it.'"

Shortstop Dave Concepcion couldn't control his emotions. He cried.

"I've been dreaming of this," said Bench. "I kept thinking the third time would be the charm.

"But after last night's game, I didn't know how bad the charm," he said of Boston's 15-inning, 7-6 victory in the sixth game.

"To see that last fly ball with Cesar Geronimo under it was a moment I'll never forget," Bench said.

Picked Perfect Pitch

BOSTON (AP) — "I don't think I could throw a better pitch. It was just where I wanted it."

That's how rookie left-hander Jim Burton described the pitch which Cincinnati's Joe Morgan blooped into centre field in the ninth inning Wednesday night, giving the Reds to a 4-3 victory over Boston Red Sox and baseball's World Series championship.

Used little this season after being called up from Pawtucket Red Sox of the International League, Burton became the fourth Boston pitcher with the score tied 3-3 in the seventh and deciding game of the Series.

A pair of walks put Cincinnati runners on first and second. The count ran to one ball and two strikes on the Reds' second baseman. Then he fouled off a pitch.

"We decided to throw him a slider on the next pitch," Burton said. "It was just about as perfect a pitch that you can make, exactly where I wanted to put it.

"He just reached out and got the end of the bat on it, poking the ball into centre."

Death Knell Sounds for WFL

NEW YORK (AP) — The World Football League (WFL) became terminally ill in the fall of 1974 as some teams falsified attendance figures and lied to the public. Most defaulted on player payrolls.

A year later, the WFL is dead.

With its revenues weak, with $10 million already lost, with predictions that it might take $40 million and two years more to make any progress, there was really nothing else for the WFL to do.

And so the WFL folded Wednesday, beginning what many believe will be a trend away from the rampant sports expansion boom of the late '60s and early '70s.

Chris Hemmeter, the Hawaiian millionaire who single-handedly rescued the WFL from the ashes of its first disastrous season, reorganizing with new owners and a new financing concept, made the announcement.

"Our decision not to proceed is due primarily to our collective inability to penetrate markets in WFL franchise cities," he said.

Translated, that means the WFL's dismal average crowds of 15,279—its only source of income—was sinking every club deep in red ink.

Looking around him at hockey, basketball and tennis leagues which also are losing millions, Hemmeter said:

"We will not be the last. The bubble of the professional sports' boom is in for a bust."

Predictably, a number of clubs say they want to continue. An official of the San Antonio team says his club and three others are working to form yet another league next year.

Hemmeter was not so optimistic. He said sentiment was overwhelming against continuing and doubted any version of the WFL will spring up again soon.

The decision to end the WFL in the 12th week of its second year means that $30 million—$20 million of it in 1974—has been lost. And $15 million is still owed to players, businesses and season ticket holders from 1974. These people will never see their money. Hemmeter's people, however, have remained current in their payments.

The decision also sent National Football League (NFL) clubs into late-night meetings. Under a bylaw passed a month ago to accommodate the return of John Gilliam from the WFL, NFL clubs have until next Tuesday to sign any player who becomes a free agent because his team or his league had folded.

Thus, the NFL suddenly has about 380 free agents from the WFL on its hands. The big question is whether such high-salaried players as Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and Paul Warfield, formerly with Miami Dolphins, are free agents, or whether they are still bound to their contracts.

John Bassett, the WFL Memphis owner who gave the three former Dolphins a $3.5 million package deal, refused to discuss the status of their contracts.

The players' agent, Ed Keating, said they have received about $1.6 million of the total and now are free agents. However, Csonka, Kiick and Warfield have personal service contracts with Bassett, while the vast majority of WFL players were on week-to-week contracts pegged to a percentage of ticket sales.

If those three are free of Bassett, any NFL team could sign them since they played out their options in Miami. But any other NFL team would have to compensate the Dolphins for signing any of the three.

CFL Looks at 'Buyer's Market

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Several players from the World Football League may be appearing in Canadian Football League uniforms in the near fu

John Barrow, Toronto Argonauts managing director, said Wednesday that the Argos have the CFL negotiating rights to running back Anthony Davis and quarterback Danny White, two WFL stars who received free-agent status when the league folded Wednesday.

Davis, former University of Southern California running back who was the WFL's leading rusher, signed with the Southern California Sun for a contract set at $2 million, a deal that included a $40,000 Rolls Royce registered in his name.

"I don't want to say anything about Anthony Davis," Barrow said. "I don't know yet. Davis and White might have contracts which prohibit us from touching them."

However, Davis' agent, Mike Trope, said the Argonauts have offered to match his Sun contract.

Meanwhile in Edmonton, CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur said Wednesday night he does not know what WFL players have been put on negotiation lists of CFL teams.

"I'm not sure I'd tell you if I knew, but no commissioner of any league gets involved with that," Gaudaur said.

Running backs John Musso of Birmingham Vulcans, waived through the Canadian Football League in June, said in a telephone interview from Birmingham, Ala., that he is "going to play somewhere."

Musso said he plans to talk to Chicago Bears, who hold his National Football League rights, and to some teams in the CFL.

Gary Hobson, Calgary Stampeders general manager, feels the situation has changed with the demise of the league.

"I think it's changed from a seller's to a buyer's market," Hobson said. "I'm leaving tomorrow (Thursday) to talk to a few players. We made the arrangements to go last Monday anticipating this would happen."

Look at all the places where heat can escape. Wasted money and energy! Read how to keep the heat in and the cold out.

Are you heating your home or the great Canadian outdoors?

Heat sneaks out through the ceiling, through windows and doors and tiny cracks. So you end up paying a lot more than you should for fuel. Here are some ideas to help you hold onto your heat—and your money.

CANADA'S ENERGY problems haven't reached the crisis stage, but why wait for that? Let's avoid that possibility by making some savings now.

Start by turning down the thermostat. Check that your furnace is working well. Have a furnace tune-up at least once a year.

Here are 5 more easy ways to save on home heating by keeping the heat in and the cold out.

Insulation pays for itself several times over.

A great many Canadian homes don't have enough insulation. On a dull day, does snow melt on your roof? Does snow disappear from around the walls of your house? Both are warning signs of excessive heat loss.

A thorough reinsulation job can cut your annual fuel bill by up to 50%. Even a modest improvement can save you 20%—$80 on an annual heating bill of $400.

Ceilings should have 6" or more of mineral wool or glass fibre insulation. Wall cavities should be completely filled and basement walls protected to 2 feet below grade level. (To avoid fire hazards, don't use foamed plastic insulation in exposed applications.)

Insulation comes in many forms, but the standard measure of the insulating properties of a product is the resistance value—the "R" value—marked on most products. The higher the "R" value, the better the insulation. Materials are light and easy to handle, so you may be able to do the job yourself.

Bonus: To encourage us to keep the heat in, the Federal Government has dropped the federal sales tax on all insulation and weather-stripping materials, double-pane windows, storm windows and storm doors.

For some free advice, see pages 45 to 74 in 100 Ways to Save Energy and Money In the Home. It contains a step-by-step guide to types of insulation, recommended levels for different locations in the home and installation tips.

Use storm windows and doors.

As much as 25% of your heat loss is through windows and doors. Tighten them up.

When you're putting in new windows, Install double glazing.

Put on storm windows; they'll cut window loss by 50%. And if you don't want a room with a view, tack plastic sheeting over your windows.

That ¼" crack is big trouble.

If you think that weather-stripping and caulking are too much trouble, remember that a ¼" crack along the bottom of a door is exactly the same as a 3" x 3" hole in your living room wall. You wouldn't ignore that!

How tightly should you seal your house? Stop when you find that in cold weather a light fog or mist develops on windows on the downwind side. Most homes have a long way to go to reach this point.

Weather-strip all doors and windows. Seal cracks around ceiling fans, electrical fixtures, plumbing and air ducts.

Use a caulking compound on the outside to seal cracks around windows, doors and vents.

Again, see the 100 Ways book for plenty of help. Pages 75 to 84.

Use solar energy.

It makes sense to use the sun's energy. It's free.

Through the winter, open curtains and drapes during the bright part of the day to let the sun in and close them at night for their insulating value.

Check the escape routes.

Keep your garage door closed. Shut your basement door so the cooler air stays down below. Take a look at your milk chute and mail slot to be sure they're not letting heat sneak out.

Saving energy can save us all.

It's a fact of life that we face possible shortages and soaring prices in just a few years. We must stop wasting energy.

Moderated consumption now, plus planned development of our resources, can extend our way of life far into the future. But we must start now!

Hockey Great Calls It Quits

EDMONTON (CP) — Controversial Jacques Plante, one of the great goaltenders in hockey history, announced Wednesday he has retired after a professional career which spanned 24 years, most of them in the National Hockey League.

In a joint statement, Plante and general manager Bill Hunter said the retirement is effective immediately and Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association will depend on goaltenders Chris Worthy and Dave Dryden this season.

Plante, 45, was signed to a two-year contract last season for $150,000 a year. No announcement was made on what terms Plante received in the retirement agreement. He has not played a game this season.

"After a long and serious study of my personal position as a player, I decided that I wanted to retire while I was still on top," said Plante, who began with Montreal Royals of the now-defunct Quebec Senior Hockey League in 1952 and graduated to Montreal Canadiens of the NHL as a part-time player the next season.

He became Montreal's regular netminder in 1954 and was traded to New York Rangers in 1963. After retiring in 1965, he returned in 1968 to share netminding duties with Glenn Hall for an NHL expansion franchise, St. Louis Blues.

St. Louis traded him to Toronto Maple Leafs in 1970 and the Leafs then shipped him to Boston Bruins where, three seasons ago, he made his last playoff performance.

He left the Bruins on short notice to become coach and general manager of Quebec Nordiques of the WHA. Boston general manager Harry Sinden was so angry he refused to let Plante take his netminding equipment along.

After one season Plante decided to become an active player again and accepted a lucrative offer from Hunter, who was confident Plante would help fill the new 18,000-seat Edmonton Coliseum.

The plan worked early in the season when Plante was a standout, but injuries overtook him and ruined his comeback.

Last season, Plante appeared in 40 games for a goals-against average of 2.65. While he was in the net, the Oilers won 15 games, lost 14 and tied one. They finished last in the Canadian Division.

In his NHL career, Plante won seven Vezina Trophies as the top goaltender, his career goals-against mark in the NHL was 2.37.

Sabres Answer Their Critics

By SCOTT ABBOTT
The Canadian Press

Rick Martin must not take kindly to the chief rap against Buffalo Sabres—sure, they've got firepower, but can they stave off the opposition from scoring twice?

Martin could have answered the question almost single-handedly Wednesday night, rifling three goals in a stretch of first eight minutes in the first period as the Sabres defeated New York Rangers 9-1 in one of seven National Hockey League games.

In other action, Toronto Maple Leafs stopped Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2, Montreal Canadiens downed Detroit Red Wings 4-1, Los Angeles Kings overcame Chicago Black Hawks 3-2, Texas City Scouts dumped Washington Capitals 4-2, St. Louis Blues downed Atlanta Flames 3-1, and California Seals doubled Minnesota North Stars 4-2.

The Sabres surrendered six goals in 80 games last year, an average of three per outing, and still won the Adams Division title with a 49-24-7 record, second only to the Canadiens.

But when the Sabres lost the Stanley Cup final to Philadelphia Flyers, the cry went up again—the goaltending is not adequate to carry them all the way.

In this young season, the Sabres have given up just 12 goals in their six games, all wins and representing the best record in the league. And if they continue at the pace that has seen them score 38 goals in the six games, goaltending will now and then can hardly prevent them from repeating as division champions.

While Martin pushed his goal total to nine, Don Luce contributed two goals and Jim Schoenfeld, Rene Robert, Danny Gare and Jacques Richard added single goals for goalie Gerry Desjardins at ease at home. Rod Gruechner scored the only Rangers goal with an assist from defenceman John Davidson, who certainly would have traded his offensive rarity for a better showing between the pipes.

Errol Thompson's goal at 16:12 of the third period snapped a 2-2 tie and gave the Leafs their win at Toronto. Blaine Stoughton and Darryl Sittler had scored second-period goals for the winners after rookie Rick Blight and Don Lever put the Canucks ahead 2-0 with power-play goals in the first period.

Yvan Cournoyer of the Canadiens and Detroit's Walt McKechnie exchanged first-period goals at Detroit before Murray Wilson, Yvon Lambert and Doug Risebrough put it away for Montreal in the second. Bunny Larocque saw his first action of the year in the Canadiens nets when starter Ken Dryden pulled a hamstring late in the first period and did not return after the intermission.

Butch Goring scored three goals and Gene Carr two to pace the Kings at Chicago. Phil Russell, Phil Myrtle and Ivan Boldirev were enough to give the Hawks a 3-3 tie before Carr and Goring each scored his last goal of the game against Tony Esposito in the final four minutes.

Jean Pronovost's goal at 13:03 of the second period broke a 2-2 tie and Cary Croteau added an insurance goal late in second in the game, in the third as the Scouts won at Washington in a meeting of second-year clubs. Dave Hudson had Kansas City's other goal while Tommy Williams scored twice for the Capitals.

Bert Wilson's goal at 3:19 of the third period earned the Blues a tie at Atlanta. Curt Bennett's fourth goal of the year had put the Flames in front at 12:03 of the second.

Dave Gardner, Al MacAdam, Gary Sabourin and Mike Christie lifted the Seals over the North Stars at Oakland. John French and Ernie Hicke hit for Minnesota.

Pate Funeral Monday

Cause of Death Still Not Clear

CALGARY (CP)—The body of the 23-year-old Tom Pate, the Hamilton Tiger-cat linebacker who died Tuesday night after collapsing during Saturday's Canadian Football League game, will be sent to his home town of Omaha, Neb., today for funeral services and burial.

An autopsy Wednesday on the body of the 220-pound rookie produced no clear reason for the cause of death, although the chief pathologist said only the cause will be known in about a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Pate, the player's parents, said the funeral services will be held at Morning Star Lutheran Church in Omaha, on Monday. Burial will take place the same day.

More than 30 fans attending the Edmonton Eskimos' 9100-a-plate Alumni Wednesday night stood in a moment of silence for Pate.

The athlete's parents and his fiancee, Cindy Drullinger, rushed to Calgary following his collapse.

The coroner's report said "certain tissue" had been retained by the medical team that performed the autopsy and further examination should determine the cause of death.

A statement from the coroner's office said Pate's history of spinal meningitis, which he contracted at age 13 and which left him in a coma for four days, "is not at this time felt to have contributed directly to his death."

Pate went into convulsions on the field immediately after he was blocked high by Calgary halfback Rick Galbos and died shortly after he had been taken to Wesslowski during the final quarter of the game between Hamilton and Hamilton's 25-23 victory.

He was taken by ambulance from the artificial turf at Mac-Mahon stadium to Foothills Hospital about a mile away.

"The coroner's office established that Mr. Pate was gravely ill upon arrival at hospital and that his condition deteriorated despite intensive measures of his being seen by a neurological specialist," the coroner's statement said.

A decision on whether to hold a public inquest will be delayed until the complete pathologist's report is received in November.

Dr. Jack Barigas, a Calgary neurosurgeon, said Pate had a brain hemorrhage, "but whether this was the cause of death or whether this was the result of injuries he received in the football game, we don't know."

HAYES RELEASED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Hayes was released Wednesday by San Francisco 49ers of the National Football League. He was put on waivers to make room for veteran wide receiver Terry Beasley.

PUT ON WAIVERS

LOS ANGELES — Lonnie Hairston, 32, a 6-foot-7, 11-year veteran, who became one of the best prolific rebounders in the National Basketball Association, has been put on waivers by Los Angeles Lakers.

Habs Forced Down

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Quebec Air charter aircraft carrying Montreal Canadiens was forced to land at London Airport when the pert engine quit Wednesday night shortly after takeoff from Detroit following the Canadiens 4-1 National Hockey League victory over the Red Wings.

A Quebec Air spokesman said the twin-engined plane was capable of flying on one engine but the aircraft made the forced landing as a precaution.

Coach Scotty Bowman said the Canadiens decided to stay overnight at a local hotel because of the long wait required for another aircraft.

Cindy Makes Mark

DAMASCUS (CP) — Cindy Nicholas of Toronto, 19-year-old distance swimmer who swam Lake Ontario and the English Channel, was the women's winner of the 16-mile Jabla to Lake swim on the Mutlah Indian peninsula.

Miss Nicholas, 18, also finished fourth over-all with a time of 7:21.44.

Officials estimated that about 150,000 people from neighboring towns watched the start and finish of the race Sunday featuring 13 swimmers from Syria, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Britain, Bulgaria, Argentina and Palestine.

The government canceled a proposed 15-mile Suez canal swim in which Miss Nicholas was to have competed.

Six Prospects Join Tigers

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers of baseball's American League have given veteran infielder Gene Michael his unconditional release and have assigned four young pitchers in the farm system to make room for six prospects from the minors.

Righthander Ike Brookens and lefthander Tom Makowski both of whom were in three games with the Tigers this past season, and Gary Christenson, another southpaw who spent spring training with the team were assigned to Evansville on Wednesday.

Gary Ignatiuk, a lefthander, was released to Montgomery.

Catcher Bob Adams, outfielder Dan Gonzales and infielder Phil Mankowski were purchased from Evansville. Infielder Mark Wagner, pitchers Steve Trella and George Capuzzello were bought from Clinton of the Midwest League.

Lack of Production Hurting the Cowboys

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Cowboys are having their troubles in the first few weeks of the World Hockey Association and coach Joe Crozier can't put his finger on the problem Wednesday night.

"We have goal scorers who are just not scoring," he said after the Cowboys dropped their third loss in four home games and dropped a 3-1 decision to Denver Spurs.

"We're not shooting the puck."

The Cowboys, who have yet to play on the road have been outshot in each game.

Calgary took the lead in the second period, which had all the scoring, on a goal by rookie Steve Hull, but Daryl Maggs put the Spurs ever on a defection.

Rick Morris scored the Denver winner on a short-handed goal with team-mate Bob Liddington off for tripping. With the Cowboys trying to capitalize on their man advantage, defenceman Wally Odo lost the puck and Morris fired a 25-footer to the short side of goalie Don McLean.

Calgary remained in the basement of the Canadian Division, while the surprising Spurs, at Wednesday night, with a 3-2-1 record, moved into a first-place tie in the Western Division with the Phoenix Roadrunners and Minnesota Fighting Saints.

The Calgary-Denver game was the only one scheduled Wednesday night. Action resumes tonight with Edmonton Oilers travelling to Cincinnati to meet the Stingers, Houston Aeros venturing to Indianapolis to take on the Racers and Minnesota Fighting Saints moving out to the West Coast to face San Diego.

In other action two Wednesday, Jacques Plante, one of the most controversial and talented goalies in hockey history, announced his retirement from Edmonton Oilers.

Plante, whose professional career covered 34 years, signed a two-year contract last season for $150,000 a season. There was speculation between Plante and the Oilers about how the final year of the pact will be settled.

The 47-year-old netminder played in the National Hockey League with Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers, St. Louis Blues, Toronto Maple Leafs and Boston Bruins.

He left Boston in short notice to become coach and general manager of Quebec Nordiques of the WHA, but decided to take one last shot at playing and was traded to Edmonton last season for the Rangers contract.

He played well early in the 1974-75 season, but injuries got the better of him and his comeback attempt was ruined.

Plante did not play a game this season as the Oilers went with Dave Dryden and Chris Worthy in the net.

Coach Fined

QUEBEC (CP) — Coach Claude Delage of Sherbrooke Beavers was suspended for two games and fined $100 Wednesday by the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League.

The decision was announced following a league investigation of a game Sunday night in Sherbrooke between the Beavers and Trois-Rivieres Dynamos in which Benoit Plouffe of the Dynamos was left paralyzed from a cross-check by Peter Marsh of the Beavers.

League President Raymond Lagace said in a statement that while the league could not uphold a Dynamos' claim that Beavers ordered his players to use excessive roughness, it appeared the Sherbrooke club exerted control over his players.

Concerning the Plouffe injury, Lagace said that after consultation with referee Guy Rochefort, he did not feel Marsh's check was a deliberate attempt to injure.

Meanwhile the condition of Plouffe, paralysed from the waist down, was unchanged Wednesday. Plouffe broke his neck and sixth vertebrae in his back.

DATSUN STILL THE BEST SMALL MILLEAGE
INTRODUCING DATSUN 610 FOR 76
The new Datsuns have arrived. And for 1976 they're offering an ideal combination of economy and driving pleasure. Economy is a time-honored tradition at Datsun: but to us, the feel of the car is every bit as important.
Datsun's high gas mileage is a matter of public record by now. But we know there's a lot more to economy than just high gas mileage. That's why every Datsun is specifically engineered to last, so that you'll benefit from its traditionally high resale value. We keep our service costs down too. Our electrical and transmission checks can be done easily and quickly through special inspection areas, so time is spent fixing the trouble rather than finding it. When you buy a Datsun, you're buying overall economy, not just high gas mileage.
Datsuns feel great to drive. Because we've put over forty years of engineering expertise into every one. That's why the "Z," 710 and Sportruck feature power-efficient overhead cam engines. And why front wheel drive is added safety. At Datsun, we haven't forgotten that cars are meant to be driven and enjoyed. Performance and feeling are as important to us as economy. The 1976 Datsuns are solid, secure, comfortable, responsive and, most of all, fun to drive. Drive one, and feel the Datsun Spirit at your Datsun dealer, today.
*The Datsun B210, with a manual transmission gets 35 MPG in the city and 49 MPG on the highway, according to latest U.S. E.P.A. test results. Your gas mileage will depend on the kind of driving you do, the condition of your car, and its optional equipment.
DATSUN
The Datsun Spirit... feel it.

Moira Trojans Beat off Challenge From Stubborn Prince Edward Team

Price Edward Collegiate Institute conquered the Bay of Quinte High School Football League season, Wednesday, and as usual, the team was on the short end of the score.

But the Jon Scott-coached team made its final appearance of the season an impressive one, beating Moira Secondary School Trojans in just two touchdowns in a 12-1 loss in junior action at Moira.

It was the fifth win of the season for Trojans who needed a strong effort from the defence to hold off the determined Prince Edward squad.

"We still have a shot at second place," offered Moira coach Ken Smith, "but it depends on how the Trenton — Centennial game turns out, Thursday (today)".

Centennial carries a 5-1 record into today's game with the Trenton High School Tigers who have six wins in as many starts.

"A Trenton win will give us second place," explained Smith.

"Our offence couldn't really get rolling, Wednesday," said Smith "but Prince Edward's defence played extremely well.

"Both teams were strong defensively," he said.

Dave Bennett, moved from the quarterback position to fullback, counted Trojans' first major after halfback Jeff Rencinski had run the ball to the Picton three-yard line. Rumciusa's jaunt covered 30 yards.

Flanker Glenn Gibson completed the scoring in the game, taking a pass from Bennett on the option play. The score came late in the match and wrapped it up for Moira.

Prince Edward's lone point came in the first quarter on a punt through the end zone.

Unblinking Eye of Camera Catches Damsel in Distress

MEXICO CITY (CP) — It was team-mate Janet Nutter of Toronto who won the gold medal in the Pan-American Games platform diving competition Wednesday, but the Mexican women's audience cherished fond memories of bronze medalist Linda Cuthbert.

The 19-year-old from Beaconsfield, Que., was performing one of her optional dives when the strap of her suit broke as she hit the water. The suit slipped to her waist but she repaired the damage before she surfaced.

Linda's mishap was witnessed by an underwater television camera which beamed it throughout the country. The gallantry, the network offered two reruns of the incident, the second while she was doing live commentary without being aware of what was being shown on the screen.

"I really wanted to do well," Miss Cuthbert said afterward. "I thought I was diving well right up to that point and then things seemed to kind of come apart."

Things were also coming apart for the Canadian swimming team. Its predecessor in Cali, Colombia, four years ago had won six gold medals, but the current edition has only one gold in 21 events completed to date.

Both the United States and Canadian teams had left some of their top swimmers at home but the Americans, with five victories in as many races Wednesday, continued to show their mastery of the pool.

The times, while slow by current world standards in most races, almost invariably broke Games records.

Canadians won medals in all five races. Lina Chenard of Quebec City and Cheryl Gibson of Edmonton claiming both the silver and bronze in the women's 200-metre backstroke behind Donna Wennerstrom of the U.S. Miss Chenard had won the 100-metre backstroke two days earlier.

Joann Baker of Thunder Bay, Ont., won another silver in the women's 200 breaststroke and the Canadian team of Steve Hardy of Vancouver; Mike Blondal of Beaconsfield, Daryl Skilling of Thunder Bay, Ont. and Bruce Robertson of Vancouver was second in the men's 800 freestyle relay.

Other bronze medallists were Michelle Oliver of Agincourt, Ont., in the women's 400 freestyle and Bill Sawchuk of Thunder Bay in the men's 200 individual medley.

Canada won its third silver medal in synchronized swimming as the Calgary Aquabelles finished behind the U.S. in the eight-girl team event.

Jamie and Hugh Kidd of Brantford, Ont., gave Canada its second silver, after completed the seven-day yachting program in second place in the Flying Dutchman class.

Brazil officials expressed satisfaction with the Canadian showing, which included fourth place finishes in two of the other three classes. Four years ago the only Canadian yachting medal was a bronze.

It was another day of U.S. domination at the Games. The Americans swept all the individual medals in women's gymnastics, claiming the top three spots as two of their competitors tried for first place in two of the competitions, and won three of the four yachting events.

The Cubans gave them an encounter in men's gymnastics, claiming six of the seven individual competitions although they finished behind the Americans in both men's and women's team events.

Brazil, in the Flying Dutchman class of yachting, was the only other country to reach the gold-medal table.

Halifax featherweight Chris Clarke assessed himself of no worse than a silver medal by outpointing a Venezuelan opponent in his semi-final bout. He meets Aaron Pryor of the U.S. in the final Saturday, the day after his 19th birthday.

The only other Canadian boxer to reach the semi-finals is Michel Prevost of Montreal in the light middleweight division.

In team sports, the Canadian women's volleyball team kept its faint medal chances alive with a victory over the United States and the baseball and women's basketball teams, both out of the running, defeated teams from El Salvador. The men's basketball team lost to Brazil.

Miss Nutter, who moved to Toronto from Winnipeg last May, fought an ear infection and a determined challenge from world champion Janet Ely of the U.S. to win the platform diving.

Miss Ealey, who finished the compulsory portion in 16th place, 15 points behind Miss Nutter, performed more difficult optional dives than the Canadian girl and narrowed the margin standing. But Miss Nutter held on to win by less than five points.

The medal American, Melissa Richey, who had been second after the compulsories, had a bad day and dropped behind Miss Caldwell in her final dive.

Both Canadian medallists were at the Games only because the top-ranked lower divers, Teri York of Vancouver and Rep Boyd of Montreal, chose to stay home to prepare for the Olympics next year.

Miss Nutter, who graduated from the University of Manitoba last spring, is taking the next year off to concentrate on diving.

"I can hope for gold, work for it, but you never know," she said of her prospects for Montreal.

JUDO CHAMPS MEET VIENNA (Reuter) — More than 300 competitors from about 30 countries will take part in the World Judo championships starting today, including four title defenders from the 1972 championships. The meet will be the last major test before the 1976 Olympic games in Montreal.

SCORE VICTORIES PERTH, Australia (AP) — Americans Cliff Richey and Harold Solomon scored straight victories Wednesday and moved into the quarter-finals of a $40,000 tennis tournament. Richey beat India's Anand Amritraj 6-2, 6-3 in less than an hour and Solomon beat Holland's Rolf Thung 7-5, 6-1.

Shaver Takes Aim at Cranston

EDMONTON (CP) — Twenty-five-year-old Ron Shaver of Cambridge, Ont., is number two and trying harder than ever before.

The slim 125-pounder has made a career of trying to take the Canadian men's skating championship from Tony Cranston of Toronto—so far without success.

He gets another chance during the Skate Canada 75 competition, an annual invitational event opening here today.

The former national junior champion makes no secret of his admiration for Cranston's innovative skating style, "but I know I can beat him. Otherwise I wouldn't be here."

Shaver is the defending champion who won last year in Kitchener, Ont., and was a close second to Cranston in Calgary the previous year, in Skate Canada's inaugural. He has been preparing at Denver, Colo., for several weeks.

Men's compulsory figures kick off the event. Both Canadians have been criticized for their lack of technical excellence, but a reduction in the marking value of compulsory figures is expected to work to their advantage.

The reigning world champion in free skating, American Terry Kubicka who won the free skating competition at Denver this year, also is here for the four-day invitational event.

Cranston had turned in a poor free skating performance that left him fourth overall, while Shaver, nursing a groin injury, was eighth. The other Canadian in the top-level men's event is former champion Kevin Ticks of Windsor, Ont.

Compulsory figures, once worth 50 per cent of the total marks, have been downgraded to 30 per cent with a compulsory short program worth 20 per cent. Free skating makes up the difference.

When the short program was first introduced, free skating and figures were worth 40 per cent each. Skate Canada officials told a news conference the further reduction indicates a serious attempt to increase the emphasis on the brilliance of free skating.

After the day's men's and women's compulsory figures, compulsory dances and exhibition skating highlight the evening program.

The dance program will feature David Porter of Port Perry, Ont. and Barbara Berezowski, of Toronto, Canada's entry team, which finished ninth this year in the world championships.

Berezowski, 21, is the reigning Miss Toronto and will compete Nov. 7 in the Miss Canada Pageant. And she is concerned that winning the pageant could interfere with her preparation for the winter Olympics in Australia in February and the world championships in Sweden in March.

"Being Miss Canada is practically a full-time job for a year and skating comes first with me," she said in an interview.

The rapidly-improving Canadians, joined by Susan Carscallen and Eric Gillies of Willowdale, Ont., and Lorna Wighton of Don Mill, Ont., and John Dowding of Oakville, Ont., as Canada's dance representatives, are especially anxious to compete in the Olympics, where dancing is new to the competition.

In Memoriams

ROBLIN — In loving memory of a dear son and brother James Douglas, who passed away two years ago today. Time rolls on and it hurts the more. Of a day my heart was crushed with sorrow, God took my boy so quickly, And we all in tears were left behind. In the bloom of life death claimed you, In the prime of manhood died. But I hope some day to meet you, Up in heaven I'll meet my boy. —Love always, Mom and Dad, brothers David and Pam, John, Bill and Mary and Hanna.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Eva MacDonald wish to express their sincere appreciation for the many cards of sympathy, flowers and charitable donations received during their recent bereavement. Thanks to Dr. Ostrom, Dr. Seward and St. Paul's United Church Choir, to friends and neighbors who helped with food. A special thanks to Reverend Utter for his comforting words.

I would like to thank neighbors, friends and relatives for their kind cards and gifts. All the nice things they did for Anna while I was in hospital. Nurses and staff of Intensive Care Unit, Dr. Ostrom, Reverend Utter and Dr. Gulas. Many thanks to one and all. — Neil McMillan.

HANOVER, West Germany (AFP) — Soviet jazz composer Raivo Tranmik has asked for political asylum in West Germany, a spokesman for the interior ministry of Lower Saxony said Wednesday.

Tranmik, who has written the scores for a number of films and who is one of the Soviet Union's top jazz musicians, has been visiting his mother-in-law in Lunenburg near here with his wife Chris, who has also asked for asylum.

Tranmik made an earlier request for asylum in June. No decision has yet been taken on whether he will be allowed to stay in West Germany.

PARIS (AP) — Jacques Charon, one of France's foremost actors, died Wednesday at his Paris home after a heart attack. He was 53.

Charon had been a member of the Comedie Francaise repertory group, which specializes in French classic plays, for 34 years and was considered one of the most talented actors and directors of the French theatre.

NEW YORK (CP) — The American Broadcasting Corp. (ABC), enjoying its best season in years, has finished No. 1 in weekly ratings averages for the first time since last January, the latest A. C. Nielsen ratings show.

Nielsen figures released Tuesday for the week ending Oct. 12 estimated that ABC's prime-time viewing audience was 13 million homes each night compared with 12.5 million for the National Broadcasting Corp. (NBC) and about 12 million for the Columbia Broadcasting System (CBS).

In addition, seven of ABC's shows were in the top 20, although CBS captured the top spot with perennial favorite All in the Family.
